ALLIED ARMY IS NOW NEAR TUNISIA

Stimson Has Idea Attack Leaked Out

Secretary of War Says Despite Efforts to Keep A. E. F. Secret Enemy Had Word

Praises Escorts

U-Boats Were Important Due to Great Aid of Navies

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—Secretary of War Stimson said today that despite efforts to keep the North African expedition a secret, the enemy apparently suspected an attack and was believed to have concentrated an extremely large force of submarines in that area.

"The army," he told his press conference, "is deeply grateful to the navy and to the British navy for the magnificent service they rendered in escorting our troops through waters which we know were infested with submarines."

Stimson said that despite the secrecy of the operations it would have been foolish to underestimate the enemy's intelligence to the extent of assuming the Axis knew nothing of the proposed attack on French North Africa.

But, he added, "so vigilant were our naval units that the enemy submarines were almost impotent."

One troop ship was disabled by enemy torpedoes, Stimson said, but the troops aboard launched their landing boats and went ashore.

Stimson said the entire North African operation was not only an outstanding example of efficient planning and unified command but it proved that the infantry, now as always, has a leading part in warfare, and has not been replaced by more recently developed arms.

"In talking about Commandos, Rangers, parachute troops, and air borne troops," the secretary said, "you want to remember that they are especially selected assault infantrymen, trained for landings in hostile territory and for overcoming a particular type of opposition.

"In all modern operations, tanks and airplanes are of very great importance, but in this North African operation the assault troops, which finally conquered the ground, were largely infantry."

The excellence of training provided for American troops, Stimson said, was demonstrated by the fact that most of the men in the North African operation were on board ship for more than a week, went ashore in darkness, fought and marched all of the succeeding day and in many cases through the next night, but were in such excellent condition "that very few" were forced out of combat by exhaustion.

"The operation demonstrates the high qualitative character of American forces," Stimson said. "We are entitled to take encouragement from that fact, but at the same time we would be very foolish if we magnified the size or extent of this operation, or minimized the task before us in raising, training and completing an army sufficient to finish this war.

"It seems to me that the size of this operation throws some light on the criticisms of those who accused us of raising too large an army, a mass army. What we have been trying to do is to train an army team, every bit of which will be as well trained as this team in North Africa, and no larger than is absolutely necessary for the job before us.

"Our target of 7,500,000 men by the end of 1943 is based on very close and conservative calculation of what we will need.

"It is well to remember that Germany today has in France and the Low Countries alone nearly 40 divisions; that she has on the Russian front nearly 200 divisions; and that she and her allies have in Europe nearly 500 divisions. Japan has about 80 divisions."

Big Borrowing Forecast

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau today announced that government borrowing would hit an unprecedented scale on November 30 to meet rising costs of the war. At the same time he disclosed that the treasury's wartime month-to-month financing program may be scrapped in favor of a bi-monthly system. While the secretary did not explain exact terms of the November financing program, he outlined a nationwide voluntary sales system being set up by the treasury which will put the efforts of every possible agency in the country—even idle auto salesmen—behind a drive to bring funds into Uncle Sam's war chest.

If Allies Capture Mediterranean

1 GIBRALTAR, only Allied bridgehead on the north coast of Mediterranean, may be the start of a new overland invasion highway across Spain and France to Germany.

2 TENUOUS VICHY-ALLIED relations broke over American invasion of northwest Africa; this may make a direct invasion of southern France possible and practical.

3 ITALY MIGHT BE bombed out of the war, then used as the land and air base for a frontal attack against Germany across the Alps or for an encircling sweep through France.

4 WITH CHETNIK ARMY still fighting in Yugoslavia, Balkan invasion may be feasible through Greece or, with Italy already knocked out of the war, through Yugoslavia.

Wide World Features

The American invasion of Africa timed with the British defeat of Marshal Rommel gives the first definite direction of Allied long-range strategy in Europe.

The joint movements are designed to give the Allies control of all of North Africa and of the Mediterranean Sea, the latter a military advantage denied the Allies for nearly a year.

If this "first historic step to the liberation and restoration of France" succeeds and the Allies win their preliminary objective, four good alternative invasion routes to Europe and the heart of the Axis will become available.

Diplomatic barriers melt quickly and the Vichy-American relations which precluded a direct land attack through southern France (No. 2 above) dissolved a few hours after the American operation against North Africa.

Economic necessity and possible shifting of political alliances may swing Spain all the way into the Axis or all the way away from it. Either shift would have the way for the No. 1 invasion possibility, a drive north from Gibraltar or other Spanish seaports through France at the Nazis.

Nothing but military considerations could halt devastating bombing of Italy followed by shock troop landings and quick conversion of that country from the Axis danger to Africa into an Allied base against Germany and, if necessary, France.

Fourth ace in the Allied hand is the Balkan war road into Central Europe, making use of the Chetnik army and the unrest in Greece.

With these four cards the Allied high commands would be in a position to out-bluff and out-guess the Axis. This time, as they did in Africa and as Hitler did earlier in the war, the Allies could pick the time and the place and the invasion methods that best suited them.

Allison Plans To Expand Plants

Engine Division Is Ahead of Schedule; Increase 50 Per Cent in Year

Indianapolis, Nov. 12 (AP)—Allison Division of General Motors Corporation, currently well ahead of its initial schedules in the production of water-cooled fighter plane engines, disclosed plans today for a further expansion of its output of aircraft power plants.

Figures on unit output are being withheld. It may be said, however, that the precision built engines that power the high speed pursuit craft of the American air force are rolling off volume production lines at a rate approximately 50 per cent greater than they were at this time last year. Early next year output probably will be stepped up another 50 per cent.

Anticipating the time when manpower shortages will arise to handicap the production effort, officials of the Allison Division already are laying plans to swing from three eight-hour shifts to two 10-hour working shifts.

Allowing for the lag between shift changes and the enforced idleness while equipment is being serviced, the two 10-hour shifts will mean an increase rather than a reduction in over-all production volume, said F. C. Kroeger, vice-president of General Motors and general manager of the Allison Division.

Replacements for men called into the armed services from the Allison factory currently are being made largely through the employment of women for assignments to sub-assembly work and in virtually every department except heat treating and final assembly work. Kroeger told newsmen that women workers in the production division represent about 20 per cent of the total employment in the factory.

"I wouldn't even guess," he said, "how far the employment of women may go before we get through this war. It may reach 40 or 50

Senate Group Suggests Lengthened Work Week

Committee Assails Manpower Commission as Failing in Its Avowed Purpose

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Senate defense investigating committee, strongly advising against compulsory manpower controls, today recommended lengthening of the work week to 48 hours, with any additional overtime to be paid in government bonds.

In a report sharply critical of the administration's failure to evolve a comprehensive program, the committee urged that the problem of channeling sufficient workers into war industries be approached by government direction of employers' hiring policies "rather than in coercive measures applied to the individual employe."

The report, prepared under the direction of Chairman Kilgore (D.-W. Va.), of a sub-committee, proposed that the work week be increased to 48 hours "wherever practicable," with the additional overtime pay given to workers in bonds which they could cash only after the war or could use only in meeting federal taxes.

"Suspending the 40-hour week in non-war industries, with the provision that employers be permitted to pay overtime to the extent paid in 1942, should be studied as a possible answer to severe labor shortages in our civilian industries," the report said.

Declaring the war manpower commission had failed in its seven months existence to formulate a national program, the committee said it was impossible to determine until questions of policy had been settled whether any legislation was needed.

"The public knows there is a manpower problem, because it is becoming increasingly difficult to obtain any kind of help and because industries are slowing down

Complaints Made About Vandalism

Snead Complains That One House Is Damaged

Numerous complaints have been made to the police department of youthful vandalism in various parts of the city. Vacant houses have been broken into by children and in many cases much damage done. One of the latest and most vicious cases is that of the premises at 37 Wall street where several children entered and maliciously damaged the premises.

Recently the premises were renovated and newly decorated by James E. Snead and placed in condition for sale. Unoccupied for a time the house was broken into and considerable damage done. Stones were thrown through the windows breaking glass and then the children entered the place and walked through the broken glass, damaging the newly varnished floors. Doorstops were broken off, the windows were left open and rain and leaves blew in doing much damage to the recently completed work. Keys from the locks were all removed and other damage done. When the damage was discovered the matter was reported to the police and several youths rounded up. Several of the keys were recovered from one of the lads and several members of the gang who had been in the house were located.

Similar acts of vandalism have been reported in several sections of the city where vacant premises have attracted minors from the neighborhoods.

King Gives Vivid Account of A.E.F. African Convoy

Story Reveals U. S. Transport Hit by Torpedo as Convoy Moves Along in Mediterranean

By WILLIAM B. KING
(U. S. Correspondent With the A. E. F. in North Africa)

Aboard a Transport With a U. S. Amphibious Battle Force in the Mediterranean, Nov. 7 (Delayed) (AP)—The explosive crash of a torpedo striking the ship just behind us ushered in the eventful final day of our convoy voyage carrying U. S. and British troops to a point from which landing operations could be carried out against Algeria.

A piercing alarm signal meaning immediate danger for our ship—heavily loaded with highly trained American soldiers and their modern battle equipment—followed instantaneously, sending Army and Navy gun crews racing to their battle stations.

The ship, which had been hit while trailing behind us, was smoking heavily and began falling behind as the convoy ploughed through the Mediterranean in the gray light of pre-dawn.

Two seamen and a fire control officer described how an enemy plane believed to be Italian glided swiftly in, loosed two torpedoes and disappeared.

Our ship flicked out a query on the signal lamps and after a moment the stricken sister ship replied: "Hit."

Casualties were light. Plans were put in motion to tow her.

Two more alarms sounded before lunch time and as sunset approached Axis planes made a determined effort to attack again, but fire from the escorting warships kept them so high they appeared only as specks in the sky.

Firing within the convoy was sporadic, but on the horizon a heavy supporting force of British battleships and large carriers could be seen putting up a virtual barrage.

As the day grew darker cannon flashes lighted the horizon in momentary flares and tracer shells cut the sky in lurid streaks. High above, the shells were bursting in clusters, but there was no evidence they scored a hit.

Depth Charges Dropped

While anti-aircraft guns were firing, escorting destroyers dropped depth charges both in our path a few hundred yards ahead of us and to port.

At 3:40 p. m., the bridge ordered the ship to resume her normal life. The convoy ploughed on through the choppy Mediterranean under the cover of darkness.

Immediately after the tenseness of battle, a filet mignon dinner was served with all the trimmings, including a printed menu prepared by the U. S. Coast Guard personnel manning the ship. "Happy Landing, Au Revoir," the decorated menu said.

The day of excitement capped a trip to the strait of Gibraltar without a single serious threat from U-boat or bomber. The infinite planning and cogwheel cooperation of the United States and British Navies and armed forces did the job.

As the day and hour for landing on the beach just east of Algiers grew nearer the atmosphere bristled with evidence of the men's desire to get into action for which they had been training intensively for almost two years.

In every cabin and in every corner of the large troop quarters men were tenderly cleaning their small arms and loading clips and drums with ammunition. Deeper in the holds soldiers in greasy fatigues were giving last-minute adjustments to their light tanks, heavy guns and numerous vehicles they planned to take into battle "combat loaded" so that men and equipment could be landed on a hostile shore in the shortest time, under fire if necessary.

In the words of the commodore who was in command, this convoy was "quite without incident."

The convoy, which was only part of the force bearing down on Africa, consisted of transports and cargo ships and other auxiliary vessels.

The first alarm came in the early afternoon of the first day in the Mediterranean.

The piercing signal which rang through the ship on the speaker system sent gunners to their posts as it had done at least once daily in practice alerts. Then the voice on the speaker said: "This is no practice. Enemy planes sighted."

The soldiers were ordered from open decks and gunners waited grimly, but the planes remained only specks in the distance.

The troops were well on the way on the last leg of their journey before they learned their mission. Battalion and executive officers were assembled in the wardroom of one of the battle units

U. S. Planes Down 17 Jap Bombers in Solomons Attack

Score Brings Jap Total in Solomons Drive to 566 Planes

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—Destruction of 17 Japanese bombers and fighters which tried to attack American positions on Guadalcanal in the Solomon Islands was announced today by the navy.

Seven United States fighters were lost.

In addition to the planes definitely destroyed when the American fighter planes intercepted two enemy dive bomber formations over Guadalcanal on Wednesday (Guadalcanal time), five Japanese bombers and fighters were reported as probably destroyed.

Those definitely shot down raised the total of Japanese planes listed in navy communiques as having been shot down or otherwise destroyed to 566 in the Solomons campaign.

A navy communique said the first attack on Wednesday was made by ten enemy dive bombers and 12 fighters.

Our interceptors — Grumman wildcats—shot down six bombers and five fighters.

The day's second attack, also by dive bomber formation, was made by 25 bombers and five fighters. This time the Wildcats bagged six bombers.

Three additional enemy bombers and two fighters were reported "as probably destroyed during the encounters," the navy said.

No detail of the loss of seven United States fighters was given.

On ground and in the air American and allied troops are slamming hard at the Japanese in the south Pacific, inflicting heavy damage on equipment and driving back enemy land forces on New Guinea and Guadalcanal.

The aerial attacks for the most part are of a harassing nature intended apparently to prevent assaults on allied positions and forestall the bringing up of reinforcements or supplies.

But on the ground, official reports indicate the action is a strong offensive, pushing back the Japanese attempting to recapture Henderson airfield on Guadalcanal and encircling enemy positions on the northwest coast of New Guinea.

At Oivi on New Guinea, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported the enemy had been

Nazis Say Big Liner Torpedoed; Axis Masses Men

By ROGER D. GREENE
(Associated Press War Editor)

Anglo-American troop columns today were reported approaching the border of Tunisia, site of ancient Carthage, while Allied war planes struck the first blow in the battle for the French North Africa colony with an attack on the Tunis airdrome.

Axis air-borne troops and planes, as well as Italian Marines, were said to be massing in Tunisia to meet the Allied drive from the west.

United Nations warships were reported already hovering off the Tunisian coast.

Dispatches said the United Nations land forces included United States Army troops under Maj. Gen. Charles Ryder and the British 1st Army under Gen. K. A. N. Anderson.

As the high-ranking officer, Gen. Anderson was in command.

British bombers were reported to have struck the first blow today in the battle for Tunisia, North Africa, attacking an airdrome near Tunis where Axis airborne troops and planes were said to be massing as American soldiers raced toward the Tunisian frontier from the west.

"At least 19 Axis air craft were set on fire (at Tunis) and as many again damaged," British headquarters announced.

The Vichy (French) radio had previously denied that Axis aerial forces were landing in Tunisia, as reported by the Allied command yesterday.

Tunisia, a French protectorate and one-time pirate stronghold, is a buffer state between American-occupied Algeria and Italian Libya.

Hitler's high command reported that Axis planes, joining in the battle of northwest Africa, had bombed American-held Algiers and scored hits on two aircraft carriers, two cruisers, two destroyers and a big merchant ship off the Algerian coast.

The Nazi communique also asserted that the 85,000-ton British passenger liner Queen Elizabeth, sister ship of the Queen Mary, had been torpedoed in the north Atlantic.

All these claims lacked confirmation from any Allied source.

The communique said two transports totalling 16,000 tons were sunk at Bougie, Allied-occupied port 110 miles east of Algiers, and declared that "continuous waves" of Axis planes attacking Allied landing parties and damaged 12 warships and merchant ships.

Allied reports said the Germans had sent about 1,000 airmen, with dive-bombers and fighters, to Tunisia to meet the Anglo-American offensive.

Importance Emphasized

Bizerte, the chief port, is only 150 miles below the Italian island of Sicily and 300 miles from the toe of the Italian boot.

American and British troops under Lieut.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower were reported speeding across Algeria to combat an Axis attempt to seize the key French colony and also help trap Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's armies retreating from Egypt.

A British communique said the mass of Rommel's tattered Africa corps had reached a point between Bardia and Gambut, well inside Libya, under violent attack by allied warplanes.

As for Rommel's hopless allies, left in the lurch when Nazi mechanized forces pulled stakes in headlong flight from the El Alamein, the German News Agency DNB reported that German transport planes were engaged every day in bringing wounded Italians from the Qattara depression to the Axis stronghold at Tobruk, Libya.

While Hitler tightened his grip on southern France, Italian troops descended on the French Mediterranean Island of Corsica, Napoleon's birthplace, a potential stepping-stone for allied invasion of Italy.

An Italian communique said the island, lying just north of Sardinia off the top of the Italian boot, was occupied while other Fascist troops were moving across the frontier from Italy into France as a safeguard against "British" and American landing attempts."

At the same time, the German radio announced that three Nazi armored divisions had reached the French Mediterranean coast—the target, according to Hitler, of the next allied attack from North Africa.

On the allied side of the ledger, a United Nations spokesman drop-

Americans Made Dangerous Survey

Commandos Helped Officers on Tour 3 Weeks Prior to Occupation

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, Nov. 12 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower disclosed today the story of one of the war's most amazing undercover exploits by a Commando-escorted staff of American officers who made a tour of French North Africa and gained essential military information three weeks before the American occupation began.

Major Gen. Mark W. Clark, the American commander-in-chief's 46-year-old right hand man, was the leader in this mission, as surprising as any created in the imagination of an E. Phillips Oppenheim.

Following are the characters and story as pieced together from details furnished by Eisenhower and Clark:

Scrap Drive in Wards 4 and 5

With the intensification of this country's war effort, we are all moved to do something to help the men in the front lines who will give their lives in the service of our country. This patriotic spirit can be shown in small things, such as getting out scrap metal material to make it possible for others to fight through to victory.

In Kingston the scrap metal drive has been progressing steadily. On Saturday of this week the campaign will continue in the fourth and fifth wards. City trucks will canvass the wards to collect the scrap from householders and school boys will assist in placing the material on the trucks.

Scrap metal is in the national spotlight and needless to say, it is up to the home front. And, too much emphasis cannot be placed on the importance of this drive.

This country, which never fully realized the importance of scrap metal to peacetime life and progress, must now learn to think of it as a basic, indispensable raw material in war.

A few facts, compiled by the W.P.B. Conservation Division, regarding scrap metal consumption since 1900 present a striking example of the pressing need for scrap to meet production requirements of our World War II fighting machine.

Prior to 1942 the peak scrap melt was 33,006,000 tons in 1937 as against an estimated melt of 57,000,000 gross tons for the year 1942. The domestic scrap melt in 1900 totaled 5,100,000 gross tons and this was considered a large scale consumption in that era.

In the banner year of the first World War, which was 1917, consumption was only 26,800,000 tons, or less than the consumption in the first half of 1942. Estimates for next year are conservatively placed at 60,000,000 tons.

The mining of iron ore to meet this terrific junk consumption has been stepped up accordingly to meet these new demands, but it is also imperative to speed up the collection of scrap to keep our war industries going full steam ahead.

Our steel mills, now called on for maximum production, must depend increasingly on scrap. They are using it at such a rate that their stock piles are dangerously low. So here's a job for everybody—get in the scrap. Do your part to see that your home, your community, your industry, and your store starts every available ounce of scrap off to war at once.

Story Reveals U. S. Transport Hit by Torpedo as Convoy Moves Along in Mediterranean

By WILLIAM B. KING
(U. S. Correspondent With the A. E. F. in North Africa)

Aboard a Transport With a U. S. Amphibious Battle Force in the Mediterranean, Nov. 7 (Delayed) (AP)—The explosive crash of a torpedo striking the ship just behind us ushered in the eventful final day of our convoy voyage carrying U. S. and British troops to a point from which landing operations could be carried out against Algeria.

A piercing alarm signal meaning immediate danger for our ship—heavily loaded with highly trained American soldiers and their modern battle equipment—followed instantaneously, sending Army and Navy gun crews racing to their battle stations.

The ship, which had been hit while trailing behind us, was smoking heavily and began falling behind as the convoy ploughed through the Mediterranean in the gray light of pre-dawn.

Two seamen and a fire control officer described how an enemy plane believed to be Italian glided swiftly in, loosed two torpedoes and disappeared.

Our ship flicked out a query on the signal lamps and after a moment the stricken sister ship replied: "Hit."

Casualties were light. Plans were put in motion to tow her.

Two more alarms sounded before lunch time and as sunset approached Axis planes made a determined effort to attack again, but fire from the escorting warships kept them so high they appeared only as specks in the sky.

Firing within the convoy was sporadic, but on the horizon a heavy supporting force of British battleships and large carriers could be seen putting up a virtual barrage.

As the day grew darker cannon flashes lighted the horizon in momentary flares and tracer shells cut the sky in lurid streaks. High above, the shells were bursting in clusters, but there was no evidence they scored a hit.

Depth Charges Dropped

While anti-aircraft guns were firing, escorting destroyers dropped depth charges both in our path a few hundred yards ahead of us and to port.

At 3:40 p. m., the bridge ordered the ship to resume her normal life. The convoy ploughed on through the choppy Mediterranean under the cover of darkness.

Immediately after the tenseness of battle, a filet mignon dinner was served with all the trimmings, including a printed menu prepared by the U. S. Coast Guard personnel manning the ship. "Happy Landing, Au Revoir," the decorated menu said.

The day of excitement capped a trip to the strait of Gibraltar without a single serious threat from U-boat or bomber. The infinite planning and cogwheel cooperation of the United States and British Navies and armed forces did the job.

As the day and hour for landing on the beach just east of Algiers grew nearer the atmosphere bristled with evidence of the men's desire to get into action for which they had been training intensively for almost two years.

In every cabin and in every corner of the large troop quarters men were tenderly cleaning their small arms and loading clips and drums with ammunition. Deeper in the holds soldiers in greasy fatigues were giving last-minute adjustments to their light tanks, heavy guns and numerous vehicles they planned to take into battle "combat loaded" so that men and equipment could be landed on a hostile shore in the shortest time, under fire if necessary.

In the words of the commodore who was in command, this convoy was "quite without incident."

The convoy, which was only part of the force bearing down on Africa, consisted of transports and cargo ships and other auxiliary vessels.

The first alarm came in the early afternoon of the first day in the Mediterranean.

The piercing signal which rang through the ship on the speaker system sent gunners to their posts as it had done at least once daily in practice alerts. Then the voice on the speaker said: "This is no practice. Enemy planes sighted."

The soldiers were ordered from open decks and gunners waited grimly, but the planes remained only specks in the distance.

The troops were well on the way on the last leg of their journey before they learned their mission. Battalion and executive officers were assembled in the wardroom of one of the battle units

U. S. Planes Down 17 Jap Bombers in Solomons Attack

Score Brings Jap Total in Solomons Drive to 566 Planes

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—Destruction of 17 Japanese bombers and fighters which tried to attack American positions on Guadalcanal in the Solomon Islands was announced today by the navy.

Seven United States fighters were lost.

In addition to the planes definitely destroyed when the American fighter planes intercepted two enemy dive bomber formations over Guadalcanal on Wednesday (Guadalcanal time), five Japanese bombers and fighters were reported as probably destroyed.

Those definitely shot down raised the total of Japanese planes listed in navy communiques as having been shot down or otherwise destroyed to 566 in the Solomons campaign.

A navy communique said the first attack on Wednesday was made by ten enemy dive bombers and 12 fighters.

Our interceptors — Grumman wildcats—shot down six bombers and five fighters.

The day's second attack, also by dive bomber formation, was made by 25 bombers and five fighters. This time the Wildcats bagged six bombers.

Three additional enemy bombers and two fighters were reported "as probably destroyed during the encounters," the navy said.

No detail of the loss of seven United States fighters was given.

On ground and in the air American and allied troops are slamming hard at the Japanese in the south Pacific, inflicting heavy damage on equipment and driving back enemy land forces on New Guinea and Guadalcanal.

The aerial attacks for the most part are of a harassing nature intended apparently to prevent assaults on allied positions and forestall the bringing up of reinforcements or supplies.

But on the ground, official reports indicate the action is a strong offensive, pushing back the Japanese attempting to recapture Henderson airfield on Guadalcanal and encircling enemy positions on the northwest coast of New Guinea.

At Oivi on New Guinea, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported the enemy had been

Scrap Drive in Wards 4 and 5

With the intensification of this country's war effort, we are all moved to do something to help the men in the front lines who will give their lives in the service of our country. This patriotic spirit can be shown in small things, such as getting out scrap metal material to make it possible for others to fight through to victory.

In Kingston the scrap metal drive has been progressing steadily. On Saturday of this week the campaign will continue in the fourth and fifth wards. City trucks will canvass the wards to collect the scrap from householders and school boys will assist in placing the material on the trucks.

Scrap metal is in the national spotlight and needless to say, it is up to the home front. And, too much emphasis cannot be placed on the importance of this drive.

This country, which never fully realized the importance of scrap metal to peacetime life and progress, must now learn to think of it as a basic, indispensable raw material in war.

A few facts, compiled by the W.P.B. Conservation Division, regarding scrap metal consumption since 1900 present a striking example of the pressing need for scrap to meet production requirements of our World War II fighting machine.

Prior to 1942 the peak scrap melt was 33,006,000 tons in 1937 as against an estimated melt of 57,000,000 gross tons for the year 1942. The domestic scrap melt in 1900 totaled 5,100,000 gross tons and this was considered a large scale consumption in that era.

In the banner year of the first World War, which was 1917, consumption was only 26,800,000 tons, or less than the consumption in the first half of 1942. Estimates for next year are conservatively placed at 60,000,000 tons.

The mining of iron ore to meet this terrific junk consumption has been stepped up accordingly to meet these new demands, but it is also imperative to speed up the collection of scrap to keep our war industries going full steam ahead.

Our steel mills, now called on for maximum production, must depend increasingly on scrap. They are using it at such a rate that their stock piles are dangerously low. So here's a job for everybody—get in the scrap. Do your part to see that your home, your community, your industry, and your store starts every available ounce of scrap off to war at once.

Nazis Say Big Liner Torpedoed; Axis Masses Men

By ROGER D. GREENE
(Associated Press War Editor)

Anglo-American troop columns today were reported approaching the border of Tunisia, site of ancient Carthage, while Allied war planes struck the first blow in the battle for the French North Africa colony with an attack on the Tunis airdrome.

Axis air-borne troops and planes, as well as Italian Marines, were said to be massing in Tunisia to meet the Allied drive from the west.

United Nations warships were reported already hovering off the Tunisian coast.

Dispatches said the United Nations land forces included United States Army troops under Maj. Gen. Charles Ryder and the British 1st Army under Gen. K. A. N. Anderson.

As the high-ranking officer, Gen. Anderson was in command.

British bombers were reported to have struck the first blow today in the battle for Tunisia, North Africa, attacking an airdrome near Tunis where Axis air-borne troops and planes were said to be massing as American soldiers raced toward the Tunisian frontier from the west.

"At least 19 Axis air craft were set on fire (at Tunis) and as many again damaged," British headquarters announced.

The Vichy (French) radio had previously denied that Axis aerial forces were landing in Tunisia, as reported by the Allied command yesterday.

Tunisia, a French protectorate and one-time pirate stronghold, is a buffer state between American-occupied Algeria and Italian Libya.

Hitler's high command reported that Axis planes, joining in the battle of northwest Africa, had bombed American-held Algiers and scored hits on two aircraft carriers, two cruisers, two destroyers and a big merchant ship off the Algerian coast.

The Nazi communique also asserted that the 85,000-ton British passenger liner Queen Elizabeth, sister ship of the Queen Mary, had been torpedoed in the north Atlantic.

All these claims lacked confirmation from any Allied source.

The communique said two transports totalling 16,000 tons were sunk at Bougie, Allied-occupied port 110 miles east of Algiers, and declared that "continuous waves" of Axis planes attacking Allied landing parties and damaged 12 warships and merchant ships.

Allied reports said the Germans had sent about 1,000 airmen, with dive-bombers and fighters, to Tunisia to meet the Anglo-American offensive.

Importance Emphasized

Bizerte, the chief port, is only 150 miles below the Italian island of Sicily and 300 miles from the toe of the Italian boot.

American and British troops under Lieut.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower were reported speeding across Algeria to combat an Axis attempt to seize the key French colony and also help trap Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's armies retreating from Egypt.

A British communique said the mass of Rommel's tattered Africa corps had reached a point between Bardia and Gambut, well inside Libya, under violent attack by allied warplanes.

As for Rommel's hopless allies, left in the lurch when Nazi mechanized forces pulled stakes in headlong flight from the El Alamein, the German News Agency DNB reported that German transport planes were engaged every day in bringing wounded Italians from the Qattara depression to the Axis stronghold at Tobruk, Libya.

While Hitler tightened his grip on southern France, Italian troops descended on the French Mediterranean Island of Corsica, Napoleon's birthplace, a potential stepping-stone for allied invasion of Italy.

An Italian communique said the island, lying just north of Sardinia off the top of the Italian boot, was occupied while other Fascist troops were moving across the frontier from Italy into France as a safeguard against "British and American landing attempts."

At the same time, the German radio announced that three Nazi armored divisions had reached the French Mediterranean coast—the target, according to Hitler, of the next allied attack from North Africa.

On the allied side of the ledger, a United Nations spokesman drop-

Commandos Helped Officers on Tour 3 Weeks Prior to Occupation

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, Nov. 12 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower disclosed today the story of one of the war's most amazing undercover exploits by a Commando-escorted staff of American officers who made a tour of French North Africa and gained essential military information three weeks before the American occupation began.

Major Gen. Mark W. Clark, the American commander-in-chief's 46-year-old right hand man, was the leader in this mission, as surprising as any created in the imagination of an E. Phillips Oppenheim.

Following are the characters and story as pieced together from details furnished by Eisenhower and Clark:

On the mission with Clark were: Brig. Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, 43, of Honesdale, Pa.; Col. Archelaus L. Hamblen, 46, of Maine; Col. Julius C. Holnes, 45, a former member of the American diplomatic service; Capt. Jerauld Wright of the U. S. Navy, Wash-

Perry, N. Y. — John Schuse, a 25-year-old Algonquin Indian from northern Quebec, and a friend came out of the woods to work at a nearby ordnance plant. They found the rigors of living in a house too great, so they:

Pitched a tent, which Schuse borrowed from a neighbor of Mayor George W. Blodgett, near the plant and are living in it. The Algonquin once had been a guide for the mayor on a Canadian fishing trip.

Bicycle Deluxe

Montgomery, Ala. — A negro and his bicycle were brought into court as part of the evidence in a theft case. The bike had four large headlights, three horns, two bushy fox tails hanging from the handlebars, three batteries for operating horns and lights, a dozen red reflectors and other gadgets, including a metal devil thumbing his nose.

Judge John B. Scott asked the owner where he got them all.

"I's on relief," the negro said. "I don't have to worry about no place to stay or nothing to eat so everything I gets I just spends on my bicycle."

High Fliers

Phoenix, Ariz. — Two men slugged the night watchman at a warehouse, backed up a truck and loaded 100 tires.

Memo to the hold-uppers: They're airplane tires.

Jeepers Creepers

Inglewood, Calif. — A freight train struck an army jeep at a crossing and sent it hurtling through the air.

The four unidentified soldiers jumped just before the collision. They got up, climbed back into the vehicle and drove away.

Police said the freight locomotive was slightly damaged.

Roller Coaster

Topeka, Kas. — The kids probably think Leonard L. Dees is an old meanie.

Unable to get 800 bar rollers for a conveyor he was building in a new egg drying plant, he bought 100 pairs of roller skates, removed the wheels and used them.

They work better than the regular rollers.

In a dairy of 15 to 25 cows, it takes about 30 hours less work a year to take care of each cow, if a milking machine is used in place of hand milking.

Right at Home

Perry, N. Y. — John Schuse, a 25-year-old Algonquin Indian from northern Quebec, and a friend came out of the woods to work at a nearby ordnance plant. They found the rigors of living in a house too great, so they:

Pitched a tent, which Schuse borrowed from a neighbor of Mayor George W. Blodgett, near the plant and are living in it. The Algonquin once had been a guide for the mayor on a Canadian fishing trip.

Bicycle Deluxe

Montgomery, Ala. — A negro and his bicycle were brought into court as part of the evidence in a theft case. The bike had four large headlights, three horns, two bushy fox tails hanging from the handlebars, three batteries for operating horns and lights, a dozen red reflectors and other gadgets, including a metal devil thumbing his nose.

Judge John B. Scott asked the owner where he got them all.

"I's on relief," the negro said. "I don't have to worry about no place to stay or nothing to eat so everything I gets I just spends on my bicycle."

High Fliers

Phoenix, Ariz. — Two men slugged the night watchman at a warehouse, backed up a truck and loaded 100 tires.

Memo to the hold-uppers: They're airplane tires.

Jeepers Creepers

Inglewood, Calif. — A freight train struck an army jeep at a crossing and sent it hurtling through the air.

The four unidentified soldiers jumped just before the collision. They got up, climbed back into the vehicle and drove away.

Police, said the freight locomotive was slightly damaged.

Roller Coaster

Topeka, Kas. — The kids probably think Leonard L. Dees is an old meanie.

Unable to get 800 bar rollers for a conveyor he was building in a new egg drying plant, he bought 100 pairs of roller skates, removed the wheels and used them.

They work better than the regular rollers.

In a dairy of 15 to 25 cows, it takes about 30 hours less work a year to take care of each cow, if a milking machine is used in place of hand milking.

FIGHT JAPS WITH BONDS

There is no doubt that we, as a nation, underestimated Japan as a fighting power. We knew she could not be trusted, but we never placed her on as low a level as she sank to in her sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

Japan is a tough adversary. Her fighting men are fanatics. They will not stoop to anything for their Hirohito. Our marines at Guadalcanal know this. They dare not turn over dead Japs for fear of being blown to bits. Jap soldiers attach bombs and other explosives to the bodies of their dead and when the marines move them they are blown to pieces.

The worst atrocity on the Solomons occurred when a Jap officer came into a camp waving a white flag and told the American commander his men were ready to surrender. Some thirty marines were sent to get the men, but as they approached, the Japs mowed them down like grass. Only two escaped and they did so by swimming back to camp.

That's the type of adversary we are fighting in the Pacific. That's the enemy our boys are battling. They have given a wonderful account of themselves, but they must have supplies. They must have new ships to take the place of those destroyed. They must have new planes and they must have food.

You can't fight with our boys on Guadalcanal, but you can fight with them right here at home by buying War Stamps and Bonds. Our brave boys are worth every dollar we have. Don't let them down. Shoot a Jap with a Bond.

WORDS

It seems that the vigorous and once vulgar word "guts," which came into general use in the last war and then more or less disappeared from polite society, is with us again. The new war brings it back. It is interesting to hear it used with such gusto, along with some of the simple but effective swear-words not ordinarily patronized by the ladies.

Well, such things are probably matters of current style and taste, having little to do with the deeper verities. But anyone who tries to analyze them, and to figure out a logical reason for their general acceptance, may end in perplexity.

This matter of "guts," for example, used as a sturdy substitute for courage or endurance, doesn't make sense. Common observation and intelligence would suggest that, as a rule, the more guts a man or animal has, the less vigor and endurance, and therefore probably the less physical courage. Shakespeare's fat Jack Falstaff is the prize example.

There is no definite standard about this, but it seems that physical prowess tends to be in inverse ratio to the extent of waist-line. Any athlete or soldier knows that usually it's the slender fellow who has the endurance, rather than the fat one. Imagine a Commando with a paunch!

Here is something for the "semantics" sharps to figure out—the men interested in the real meaning of words. Why is such a misunderstanding accepted? Have the fat fellows themselves finally put it over, as Falstaff tried to do?

A BARRIER TO VICTORY

Statistics show that loss from fire for the first nine months of this year was slightly less than in the same period last year. They also show we are not giving enough real thought and energy to fire prevention.

The most potentially deadly fire problem—that of sabotage in our industrial plants—can never be fully controlled without concerted effort on the part of all. The shipyard worker, the airplane factory worker, everyone employed in any capacity in the many and various sub-assembly plants, must individually watch for any inadvertent act, any slight deviation from normal behavior in their fellow workers, that might point to incendiarism and the destruction and delay that fire causes.

In the home, it is up to the housewife to become the fire-watcher. She must double-check the iron or the fireplace screen when she leaves the house. She must prevent the accumulation of trash in attic, basement, and garage; she must see that exposed wiring of household appliances is in good condition. Her job is important and must be done well.

This country faces an ever more difficult job in producing sufficient goods to meet the insatiable needs of a world-wide war machine. Every fire, whether it damages a garage or destroys a factory, consumes materials, money and labor which are needed for the war effort. Every fire is a barrier to fulfillment of the United Nations' cause.

TIRE TROUBLES

Speaking of two-gun men and so on, how about six-tire citizens? It's surprising how many people, in the official check-up that allows five tires to every car, turn up with what might be called an extra extra. And they are almost as sad about parting with that superfluous treasure as they would be if they were left running on their bare rims. Really, there's such a thing as being too thrifty, and thereby getting in bad with people who have more faith in Providence.

On the other hand, the blithe way in which some citizens cheerfully run around on their rims—a practice which may be increasingly common from now on—is refreshing to the soul. It may be perilous and thriftless, but it shows that there is still left, here and there, a stout-hearted faith in God and the future which defies adversity and laughs at risks.

TURNING

"The turning point of the war has come," says Major George Fielding Eliot, the war strategy expert. "We are on the offensive. From now on, we grow stronger in power and position, while the enemy grows weaker. The greatest part of our task by far lies still before us. But we are on our way."

It suggests the famous lines on the Three Fates:

"Spin, spin, Clotho, spin!
Lachesis twist and Atropos sever!
In the shadow of the world
The silent headsman waits forever."

And what are those weird sisters now spinning out for America? Nothing but good, we hope, in the end. But for some time the threads may be tangled.

Senator Norris will be missed, but he's earned a good, long rest.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

KIDNEY STONES

A patient consulted a physician for a pain in the region of the appendix. As the appendix had been removed, the physician told the patient that the pain was likely due to adhesions following the appendix operation. However, to the surprise of the physician X-rays showed a large stone in the kidney and that kidney was removed.

It was because the pain was in the appendix region and there was no pain in the back or pain following the course of the tube carrying urine from kidney to bladder, that caused the physician to mistake kidney stone for adhesions. Thanks to the X-rays the removal of the kidney brought complete relief from pain.

The above, however, is an "exceptional" case as most cases of kidney stone that cause symptoms can be recognized.

Dr. Charles Pierre-Mathe, San Francisco, Director of the Department of Urology, St. Mary's Hospital, in Clinical Medicine, says:

"A sudden, severe pain in the small of back or abdomen which radiates to the groin should be looked on with suspicion by the attending physician. All patients suffering from kidney stones have red blood cells in the urine which can be detected by making a microscopic examination. I have never seen a patient suffering with kidney stone whose urine did not show red blood cells under the microscope. In many patients, crystals, usually of the variety found in the stone present, are encountered. "Properly made X-ray films will reveal more than 99 per cent of kidney stones."

While the family physician with the aid of X-rays, microscopic examination of urine, use of dyes, can locate the position and composition of the stone or stones, Dr. Mathe advises, and most physicians will agree, that a genito-urinary specialist—urologist—should be called into consultation in these cases. The urologist will carry out a complete examination including cystoscopy—instrument with lamps and mirror—use of a catheter up into ureters (the two tubes carrying urine from kidneys to bladder), study of the amount of urine coming from each kidney, and a complete study of the urines collected from kidneys and bladder.

After removal of stone or stones, they are examined to find composition and nature of organisms present so that the proper diet and antiseptics can be used to try to prevent the formation of more stones.

With every prospect that Thanksgiving Day turkeys this year will be selling at 55 cents a pound, it is interesting to recall that in November, 1907, turkeys sold for 20 cents a pound. Living conditions then, however, were much different than they are today.

Better street lighting for Broadway was discussed during the administration of Mayor E. J. Dempsey in 1927, and on November 29, of that year the Board of Public Works authorized Mayor Dempsey to sign a contract with the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation to double the street lighting on the main thoroughfare at an additional cost to the city of $8,335 a year.

One of the best known photographers in Kingston in the years at the turn of the century was Theodore D. Lewis who died in his home on Pearl street on November 22, 1917. Undoubtedly many readers of this column have photographs in their family albums from the T. D. Lewis Studio. During the many years Mr. Lewis was engaged in business as a professional photographer, he became widely known, not only in Kingston but throughout Ulster county.

The other day I wrote that in November the debating team at old Kingston Academy was composed of Raphael Murphy, former Surrogate George F. Kaufman and Attorney John W. Eckert. At that time I called attention to the fact that Mr. Eckert, now dead, for years had served as secretary of the Ulster county Republican party, and also as county attorney. Mr. Kaufman was also active for years, and still is, in the Republican ranks.

Joseph F. Sullivan, veteran newspaper man of The Freeman called my attention to the fact that Mr. Murphy, after graduating from the old academy, left Kingston for New York, and the last he had heard of him he was serving as a municipal judge in that city.

Mr. Sullivan said that Mr. Murphy's father for years was a principal in the Kingston school system, serving as principal of School No. 1, and also at School No. 3.

It was in November, 1927, that Harry P. Dodge, for several years conductor of the Mendelssohn Club, owing to a previous contract, was unable to accept the baton again, and the club elected Elmer A. Tidmarsh of Albany to succeed Mr. Dodge.

Mr. Dodge was a widely known musician of this city, and was a skilled pianist as well as a conductor of vocal choruses.

On November 28, 1917, Hazel street in the Third ward, was thrown open to traffic. This was the newest of the city's streets and had been named by the Common Council in honor of the daughter of Alderman George Schick of the Third ward.

Alderman Schick for years was an engineer on the old Ulster & Delaware railroad and resided on East Chester street, near Hasbrouck avenue.

AFRICA BUYING EGGS

South Africa is placing orders for millions of eggs which will be held under government ownership in an attempt to prevent profiteering by speculators. The Controller of Food Supplies said at Pretoria that his office is ready to buy "unlimited quantities."

Literary Guide

By JOHN SELBY

"America: The Story of a Free People," by Allan Nevins and Henry Steele Commager.

After fiddling around with a review of the most useful book of the week for quite a spell, I decided that the authors thereof had done a better job of describing their work than I could. Part of what they say will follow shortly. The book itself is called "America: the Story of a Free People," and the authors are two well-known men — Allan Nevins and Henry Steele Commanger.

"This history is written for the layman," say the authors, "not for the scholar. It does not pretend to embody original research or attempt to advance new interpretations. It is designed to meet the need for a short narrative history of the American people.

"Much that the authors would have wished to include they have been forced to omit for lack of space, and they have resolutely resisted the temptation to wander down many an interesting bypath of political, military, and cultural history, to re-create forgotten figures, to engage in fascinating controversies.

"They have not conceived American history to be primarily political or economic, or as a series of problems, but as the story of the evolution of a free society. If there is a theme, it is that implied in the title—the development here of a people intelligent enough to want freedom and willing to work for it and to fight for it."

The only fault one is likely to find in this frank statement is over-modesty. The fact is that the authors, being the sort of historians they are, have not failed to use a good deal of attractive side matter. They have had to rush along fairly fast. But not so fast that they could not include many things that most short American histories omit—such as the true political base upon which the colonies first rested. Under England, the colonies were probably the least tyrannized of any on the globe. The authors show why.

It seems to me the writing itself is almost ideal for the purpose. It is not so showy it blinds the reader, and it is not so dull it puts him to sleep. It moves along neatly, and moves the reader as well.

Irish Salvage Bones

Announcement of a campaign for the salvage of bones in Belfast, Northern Ireland, served also to throw light on Irish individuality even in this phase of war economy. The suggestion that neighboring householders should share cans in which to save bones was rejected with John Davidson, salvage chairman, and others agreeing warring neighbors would refuse to share their bone cans. It was decided to provide a can for each home.

Roosevelt and Churchill Seem to Be Slightly Muddled in Remarks on North African Campaign

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 12 — There's something rather puzzling about the information given out by President Roosevelt in Washington and Prime Minister Churchill in London with respect to the time when the North African offensive was decided upon and just what Josef Stalin was told about it.

Evidently answering questions of the press and intending to strike back at critics who were demanding a "second front" last summer, both the President and the Prime Miniister made some disclosures which seem to raise questions of allied unity. On the fact of it, the impression is given either that Josef Stalin was an outsider not cognizant of the facts or that Mr. Stalin knew all along what was going on but didn't consider the North African offensive to be a second front or a sufficiently strong diversionary movement of German forces that would aid Russia.

The President disclosed that by the end of June there was general agreement on the African offensive and that by the end of July certain fundamental questions, such as the point of attack and matters involving shipping and the manufacturing problem, were decided upon. Mr. Roosevelt revealed that the second front had already been determined upon by Britain and America last summer, and the approximate date decided upon, but in the succeeding months he and Mr. Churchill had "to take it on the chin" from persons on the outside not cognizant of the facts.

Simultaneously in London, the Prime Minister in a speech, not to the press but to the parliment, explained why a second-front attack on the continent "might have been a relief to our feelings," but that it would have been a disaster which "would have been no help to Russia" and instead "would have been a great disservice."

Then came the important disclosure by Mr. Churchill, namely, that last June he had given the Russian government a written document making it clear that Britain was preparing "to make a landing on the continent in 1942 but could not promise to do so." Perhaps this was a reference to the raid at Dieppe because he was speaking of the European continent and not North Africa.

The Prime Minister went on to make this significant comment: "I am certainly not one who needs to be prodded. If anything, I am on a prod."

To whom was the Prime Minister referring? To Wendell Willkie who, in discussing a second front, while in Moscow, said that sometimes military leaders needed to be prodded? Or was Mr. Churchill referring to a public statement issued by Premier Stalin to the Associated Press shortly after Mr. Willkie left, reiterating his demand for a second front? Or was the Prime Minister answering Mr. Stalin's speech on the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Soviet Republic last week? On that occasion, the Soviet chief pointed out that the whole operation in Egypt involved a small number of army divisions for both the Germans and the British and did not, in effect, constitute a diversion that could relieve pressure on the Stalingrad and Caucasus fronts. He was still calling for a bigger second front.

The Prime Minister apparently does not consider that what has happened in Africa thus far is the second front the Russians have asked for, because he says concerning a second front on the continent: "all this is proceeding but it takes time. But should the enemy become demoralized, careful preparations would be needed."

It will occur to any well informed observer that there is a lack of accord here somewhere. On the one hand, it is stated officially by the President that the press can assume that our principal fighting allies were taken into consultation before anything was done. On the other hand, those who demanded a second front—both Joseph Stalin and Wendell Willkie—are now criticized as ignorant of the facts.

One explanation offered here is that, despite the explanations, the North African offensive was planned in the summer but not actually decided upon until the autumn. One friend of Wendell Willkie suggested that the final decision was really made during the month of October and that it was still contingent on General Alexander's success in Egypt in breaking up Rommel's army. It may have been organized, of course, with a "zero hour" for some time this month.

But all this still doesn't explain why both the Prime Minister and the President on the same day took occasion to answer critics. Certainly they must have known that if they were slapping at Willkie, they were blasting away also at the principal exponent of a second front, namely, the head of an allied government whose millions of soldiers have made the supreme sacrific on the plains of Russia so that Britain and America might have time to organize to ward off the Nazi conquerors of Europe. It's all very puzzling.

Five-Year Plan Advised For State Farm Programs

Ithaca—"Labor and equipment will be the biggest problems to New York state farmers next year in their effort to produce food and fiber," says Dean Carl E. Ladd of the New York State College of Agriculture. "We will need to study what other countries have accomplished, and plan to use every possible resource to get work done."

If we are to plan for a wartime farm program, says Dean Ladd, we may as well plan for several more years of war, even though some may hope that it will end sooner. Even after the war is over, he adds, we will probably have a shortage of labor on farms, with heavy employment in manufacturing, and with large numbers of men in the army acting as a world police force.

"England has probably made more effective use of labor than any other country," Dean Ladd points out. "Like England we shall probably need to experiment much more, and use more women, transients, and boys on farms. Harvest labor is not so difficult to get as is year-round labor that is needed on dairy and other year-round farm enterprises where workers need both judgment and skill. Even unskilled harvest workers need skilled foremen to guide them."

Pool Equipment

New York farmers are doing more to improve the efficiency of their farm machinery than farmers in any other state, but we will probably need to make even greater use of our larger pieces of farm equipment, he says. Some of the larger farm machines will still be available for purchase in 1943, and they can be used on neighborhood pools to do the work of several farms. In England farm tractors are pooled for use on different farms as the need arises. We may have to do this in wartime.

Farmers cannot purchase much equipment or engage in building in wartime, but they can establish a money reserve so that they can build their farm plants to full efficiency after the war, the Dean suggests. A reserve in War Bonds or other savings will enable them to do this without going into debt.

"Post-war problems occupy much less of our time than they did a year ago, as agriculture, with all other groups of the nation, adjusts itself to the emergency and concentrates on meeting the needs of first winning the war through maximum production."

Air stirred into fruits and vegetables while they are cooking causes the loss of part of their vitamins.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — The capital political observers are just now dusting themselves off and getting back on their feet. That election knocked them for a ground-loop.

There have been landslides before and there will be again. But the old hosses around here can't remember one that caught the politicians themselves farther off base. Republican Leader Joe Martin and his cohorts, having their sweetest dreams, didn't see anything like that. Senator Alben Barkley and his boys had nightmares, perhaps, but they didn't go as far as what happened.

Now, it comes down to taking stock, and when it comes to that the oldtimers aren't much better off than they were on that Wednesday morning when the returns rolled in.

There are, however, several subjects that keep cropping up in any discussion.

No. 1 is what effect this is going to have on 1944. To try to predict at this time is a waste of words. The war can be over, at its best, or at its worst in 1944. Whatever happens will change the situation. But one thing is being repeated constantly around Washington today: Both parties are in a mess.

The G.O.P., for all its staggering gains, is looking right down both barrels of a hair-trigger gun. One is named Thomas E. Dewey and the other Wendell L. Willkie. Sometime between now and the next general election, they are going to have to duck one or the other. Will it be Willkie and the impressive vote he rolled up two years ago against the greatest vote-getter the country has ever seen? Or will it be Dewey, who upset the Democratic applecart in his dash for the governorship of New York?

How will third-term Governor Bricker, of Ohio, and two-time No. 1 Willkie man, Governor Stassen, fit into the picture? Dewey's precedent shattering victory can't be brushed off, but neither can the fact that a Willkie Democrat, running on a Republican ticket, turned out New Deal Senator Josh Lee in normally Democratic Oklahoma or that Clare Booth Luce, a staunch Willkieite from the drop of the hat, walked into office as a Connecticut congresswoman.

I don't believe capital observers from now on will ignore the fact that it's just possible Joe Voter doesn't give a whoop about all this behind-the-scenes business; but they can't forget either that with Mr. A. Politician, it's bread-and-butter and the future of democracy. If the in-man can't guess better what the public wants than he did in this crisis, then Congress, the only elected body in Washington (barring the President and Vice-president) had better fold its tent.

Just as a postscript, it might be worth mentioning that Washington is say that so far as World War II is concerned prohibition is a dead issue. It's likely that Senator Lee's defeat in Oklahoma had several other factors involved than that dry amendment he endeavored to tack onto the 18-19 draft law.

The first general conference of governors of the United States was held at the White House in 1908 when Theodore Roosevelt was president.

Hi-Y Boys Present Wartime Bill

Voting for 18-Year Olds Is Suggested at Conference

Seven members of the Hi-Y Club of the Y. M. C. A. attended the area assembly for Hi-Y at Goshen yesterday. They are Jack Pope, Clyde Wonderly, Thomas Galey, Roger Vogt, Allan Vogt, Raymond Armater and Robert Hillis.

The area assemblies are being held this week throughout the state in preparation for the annual Hi-Y Assembly held at Albany each year, scheduled for December 11 to 13. The Goshen conference was conducted by Niel Fuller, a former secretary at the Kingston Y. M. C. A. and in charge of Orange County Y. M. C. A. at the present time.

At this sectional conference, the Kingston boys presented a bill making it possible for all people 18 years of age and over to have a vote. This bill was submitted at this time in conjunction with the idea that boys 18 years of age may be drafted. Word was received by telegram last evening at the "Y" that the bill was successfully passed at 2:48 p. m. yesterday and it will now be prepared for presentation at the Albany Assembly.

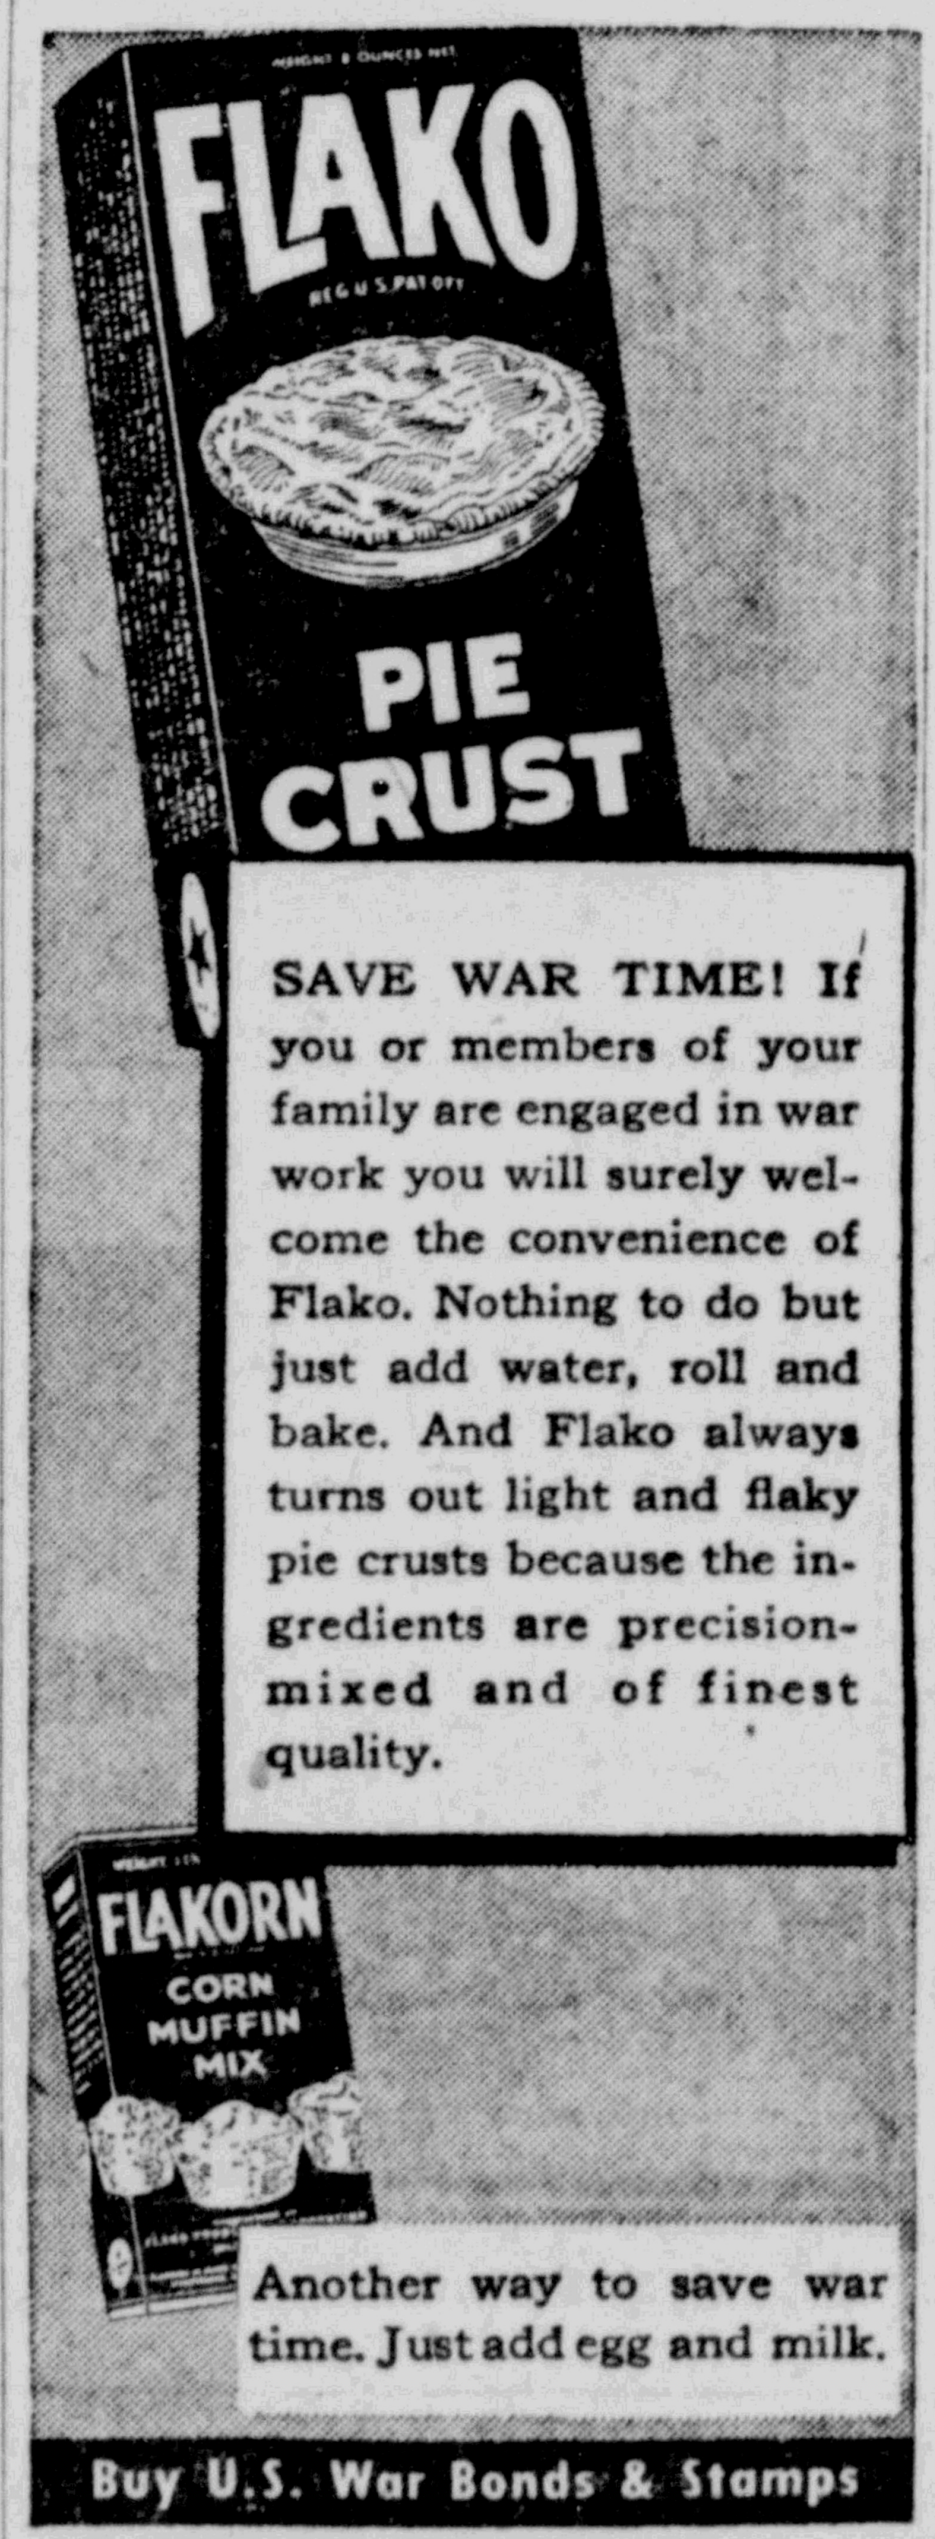
The Kingston Club has been working on this bill for the past two weeks at the regular meeting, Monday nights. They have been assisted by Senator Arthur H. Wicks, who spent considerable time with the boys and last Monday evening by Superintendent Arthur J. Laidlaw who stayed during the entire session coaching the representatives on the debatable angles of the bill.

The boys returned today to resume their classes at the high school.

BOOM WHEN ADVERTISED

Little Rock, Ark. (AP)—It pays to advertise. That's the conclusion Bush Binley, Little Rock insurance salesman, has reached after applying modern sales methods to the long-conservative Arkansas Land office. Shortly after Binley took over as land commissioner, approximately 40,000 acres of timber lands that had been set aside for state forests were released for public sale. As an experiment, he advertised in county newspapers. The flood of responses amazed him. Many persons, it developed, hadn't even known the state had lands for sale. Then he inserted ads in about a dozen eastern Arkansas newspapers when appraisals were completed on tax-forfeited lands in that area. The publicity doubled the size of the office mailbag and boosted sales and redemptions by a sizeable figure.

In times of possible disaster, every family should keep on hand a supply of inexpensive, plentiful foods that can be stored without spoiling. Many such foods are easily available to farm families. For information on emergency foods, write to the Office of Publication, Roberts Hall, Ithaca, N. Y., for a copy of War Emergency Bulletin 39, "Wartime Food Reserves at Home."



SAVE WAR TIME! If you or members of your family are engaged in war work you will surely welcome the convenience of Flako. Nothing to do but just add water, roll and bake. And Flako always turns out light and flaky pie crusts because the ingredients are precision-mixed and of finest quality.

Another way to save war time. Just add egg and milk.

'Bess' Quits Singing Role; The Reason? - To Sing!

By JOHN SELBY
(Wide World Arts Editor)

New York—Chaps who talk out of the corners of their mouths may have some difficulty restraining their "Oh, yeahs" when they hear Anne Brown's story. If they heard it from her own lips, they would accept it more easily.

Anne Brown is the original Bess in George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess." Last spring she confounded the company then playing "Porgy" by leaving the cast, refusing a two-year contract that would have brought her $75,000.

"Why?" she was asked, and she answered, "I want to sing concerts."

"Why?" they asked again, and she replied, "because it's my life's ambition."

That was that.

Last spring the Negro soprano's manager, Albert Morini, had no dates. He set himself a goal of 50 for this season, and on October 6 he turned down the 51st offer. He didn't like to, but his singer thought 50 was enough.

The soprano, perhaps the handsomest specimen of her voice and race in serious music, grew naturally into a musical career. She was in the 1934 graduating class at the Institute of Musical Art when she heard that Gershwin was setting Dubose Hayward's "Porgy." She went to him, asking for a minor part. Gershwin gave her Bess, and retitled the opera to make her more prominent.

Since the early "Porgy and Bess" days she has been in London with Lew Leslie's "Blackbirds," and has done straight dramatic work in "Mamba's Daughters." Seven consecutive summers she has sung at Lewisohn Stadium, and at other outdoor concert places as well. But doing a heavy soprano role five to seven times a week was not her idea of advancing in music.

ANNE BROWN
'I Want a Chance at Opera'

"I made up my mind that if I was going ahead, now was the time," she explains. "I quit, cold. Now I want to be the best concert singer I can be—and I want a chance at opera, especially 'Carmen.' Carmen is a sort of Gypsy Bess, anyway."

Miss Brown paints, on the side. She is trying to give much time to her very young daughter, Paula, and to be a wife to her husband, Dr. C. C. Pettit, as well as an artist.

She likes mystery stories, and costume designing. She designs all her clothes but doesn't sew them. She hasn't time. Her hobby is diatetics; her kitchen is full of vegetable juicers and such. She likes raw foods, dislikes white flour, uses almost no sugar.

Believe it or not, raw bread and something she calls "potassium broth" are among her favorites. And spinach souffle.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

Nov. 12—Thanksgiving is in the air and K.H.S. prepares for a gala holiday season.

After electing Joseph Jordan as its president, the Junior Class of 1944 took three more days to complete its elections. President Jordan called the class to order, and the juniors began nominating for vice-president. Mary Darling, Virginia Dowd, Isabel Gill, Irene Haggerty, Gloria Stork and June Zimmermann were nominated. Mary Darling and Isabel Gill emerged the victors after the first ballot. On the second ballot Isabel Gill defeated Mary Darling with 136 votes to Mary's 101.

Next the juniors selected a secretary. Mary Buckley, Gloria Mayone, Bob Corregan, Josephine Rua, Hype Weinberger, Gloria Jones and Gus Cunaveles were nominated. Contrary to the tradition that a girl was best-fitted for class scribe, Gus Cunaveles was elected.

George Zelie, a member of last year's basketball team, was chosen as treasurer.

At the close of the meeting, junior rings were voted on and a committee will be appointed to discuss the matter in the near future.

The Kingston High School Stamp Club has taken over the sale of defense bonds and stamps. President David Spodick, aided by Miss Bestle and Miss Quimby, hopes to accelerate the bond and stamp drive by intra-mural competition. The philatelists also plan to announce the rooms which have purchased the largest amount of war stamps each week.

The final results for the competitions for the 1943 Maroon have been announced. This year's staff is one of the smallest ever to publish the yearbook. This small group will have to work hard since wartime conditions offer many new problems.

In addition to Helen Kruszenski, editor-in-chief and Marie Tiedmann, business manager, who were elected last June, the remaining members of the editorial staff are: Associate Editor, Katherine Kramer; Business Manager, assistant, Marilyn Culver; Organizations Editor, Janet Cochrane; Activities Editor George Moore; Sports Editor, Seymour Werbalowsky; Recorder-of-Events Editor, Joyce Merrihew.

Those who will write the personal comments in the 1943 Maroon are: Anna Adin, Anne Donnaruma, Jack Herlihy, Irving Kotrady, Frieda Kaplowitz, Anna Marie Manfro, Mary Frances Matthews, Marian Ralff, Shirley Smith, Maureen Troy and Eleanor Waterman.

The Art Committee is composed of: Chairman, Donald Murray; Carol Summers, Joan Zell and James Clancy. The staff photographer is Philip Reading, while Pennington studios will handle the professional work. Typists for the Maroon have not been selected.

The faculty advisers will be: Mrs. Terpening, Miss Kirchenblum, Miss Barnett, Miss Schmalkuche, and Mrs. Dillon.

D. R. Captures Award

The Onondaga Hotel in Syracuse was the scene of the first wartime High School Press Conference in New York. Leonard Rabin, Valdo Viglielmo, managing editors of Dame Rumor, and Miss Agnes Scott Smith, faculty advisor, arrived in Syracuse, November 6. The topic emphasized at the conference was "The Service of a School Paper in Wartime."

Dame Rumor, the school paper, has won an all-state rating, with 91 points out of a possible 100. Only four school papers in New York state with a student population of over 1,500 enjoy this honor.

The first day's program included an opening address by Dr. Charles Ward of Syracuse University. The afternoon provided a chance for the K.H.S. group, chaperoned by Clayton Brower and Warren Shultis, former Kingston High School students, now attending the university, to visit the campus.

After the annual banquet that night, prizes were awarded by Dr. Douglass Miller of the Syracuse School of Journalism. Valdo Viglielmo won second prize in the editorial writing contest for his editorial "All Out for War." He also captured third place in the news writing contest.

The keynote address was offered by Dr. Spencer, dean of the Syracuse School of Journalism, who spoke on the topic, "National Unity and the War Effort."

It was announced that this would undoubtedly be the last of such conferences for the duration.

Book Week Quiz Offered

Miss Harriet St. John, school librarian, is directing a Book Quiz over WKNY November 18, from 4 to 4:30 p. m.

The six contestants are being chosen from the high students. Miss Hull and Mrs. McNelis, English teachers, selected William Arnold, Virginia Dowd, Katherine Kramer, Leonard Rabin, Valdo Viglielmo, and Joan Zell as students which they thought well-read. Valdo Viglielmo and Leonard Rabin are veterans of the 1941 and the 1942 "Little Red Schoolhouse" Quiz Kids team.

The students will compete against each other. Questions will be asked concerning best sellers and classics. Miss Barnett, Miss Hull and Mrs. McNelis will be the judges.

Kingston High School won the DUSO cross country championship by defeating Newburgh and Middletown. "Duke" Rion again finished first and was followed by Bill Fitzgerald, Neumont Culver, Dan McGrane and Bob Moser, who took second, third, sixth and seventh places respectively. The Newburgh team, headed by Steckie and Morrow took fourth and fifth places; the other members filled out the other places.

The team made a perfect showing against Middletown, with a 15-40 score.

Ship Catches Fire in Port; Six of Crew Are Burned

New York, Nov. 12 (AP) — Six members of the crew were seriously burned during a fire today in the crew's quarters of a United Nations' ship tied up at an East River pier.

The six men who suffered first and second degree burns were taken to Gouverneur Hospital where their condition was said to be critical. A seventh man was treated at the scene and returned to the ship, police said.

The fire, which started at 4:30 a. m., blazed for half an hour. Police said the damage was slight.

The Navy pointed out that some of the men listed as "missing" might turn up safe.

Song of the Clock!

Listen, my wee one, the clock ticks a song:
"God is your Guardian when night-time is long;
While He is watching you need fear no wrong."
Sleep then, my wee one, the clock ticks a song.
Ida Josephine Brittain.

Gushing Visitor—And has your baby learned to talk yet?

Proud Parent—Oh, my, yes—we're teaching him to keep quiet now!

How Would You Rate?

In the army it seems that in addition to technical requirements for officer candidates there is also a "rating scale" by which the Commanding Officer judges a man's potentialities as an officer A list of more important points as they appeared in a recent issue of Liberty:

He has a sense of humor.

He finishes work he begins.

He accepts orders without quibbling.

He is aware of the limits of his authority.

He grasps the essentials of a situation quickly.

He accepts full responsibility with good grace.

He has the confidence and respect of his associates.

He is accurate in reporting the facts about a situation.

He uses calm judgment in the performance of his duties.

He gives a situation sufficient consideration before taking action.

He subordinates personal interests to demands of his assignment.

Would the Commanding Officer recommend YOU as an an officer?

Jack—What did one duck say to the other duck?

Bill—What?

Jack—Social Security.

Bill—Social Security? I don't get it.

Jack—I know you don't. You will when you are 65.

Every good salesman is a partner of the man he is trying to sell.

Boss—What did my wife say when you telephoned her I was detained and would not be home until late?

Secretary—She said could she depend on that.

Team Work

What is the spirit of Britain? It is the spirit of Freedom, Justice and Decency; the spirit of Fairness and Kindliness and Toleration, that cherishes Ideals of the Rights and Dignity of the individual human being. In short, it is the spirit exemplified in the precepts and practice of Co-operation, of Team-work.

The efforts of any one individual are so very small that alone he can accomplish little. It is the co-operative effort of many which achieves the greatest results. The eight-oar crew can outstrip the lone sculler; but the "eight" which wins the race comprises those men who are imbued with one purpose, who work smoothly and ryhthmically together—all in perfect harmony, seeking the one common goal. Such is Team-work.

Gypsy—I'll tell your fortune, sir?

Man—How much?

Man—Correct.

Symphony of Rivets

Sing a song of rivets, a factory full of men,
Keep the three shifts going, then start in again.
When the bombs are ready, and the planes in turn,
Won't that be a spicy dish to make the Axis burn?
—Julius Kaplowitz.

Minister—Rastus, this is the first time I have seen you at church for a long time. I'm mighty glad to see you home.

Rastus—I had to come Parson. I needs strengthening. I'se got a job white-washin' a chicken coop.

Hull Denounces Invasion

Washington, Nov. 11 (AP)—Secretary of State Hull today denounced the German invasion of unoccupied France as an act in complete harmony with Hitler's regime of lawlessness and utter disregard of solemn obligations. Hull, asked at his press conference whether he thought the German action would bring France back into the war on the side of the allies, replied that it was too early to discuss that phase of the question.

Pertinent Facts On Conscription

Information has been issued from Washington that shortened furloughs for inductees must begin not later than November 17, but furloughs in the Second Service Command Area, which includes New York State, have been limited to seven days since the first of the month, Brigadier General Ames T. Brown, New York State Director of Selective Service, said today at the direction of National Headquarters of the Selective Service System.

It was explained by General Brown that the length of the furloughs is determined by the War Department. Local Boards are cooperating with the departure of inductees for the Reception Center at the end of the furlough period.

He stated further that many New York State boards are being flooded by requests for information.

"All registrants inducted at the present time within New York State are only entitled to a 7-day furlough at the time of induction if they request it," General Brown said.

Egg Supplies Pooled

Virtual rationing of eggs has been established in New Zealand so as to pool all supplies. The regulations empower the Minister of Marketing to declare marketing areas in which he may determine methods of wholesale and retail sale of eggs. The purpose is to insure that in areas where eggs are required in indefinite quantities for civilian needs, such as invalids and babies, and for military and overseas consumption, the Minister can pool supplies and distribute to the public, after these prior needs have been met.

FIGHT JAPS WITH BONDS

There is no doubt that we, as a nation, underestimated Japan as a fighting power. We knew she could not be trusted, but we never placed her on as low a level as she sank to in her sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

Japan is a tough adversary. Her fighting men are fanatics. They will not stoop to anything for their Hirohito. Our marines at Guadalcanal know this. They dare not turn over dead Japs for fear of being blown to bits. Jap soldiers attach bombs and other explosives to the bodies of their dead and when the marines move them they are blown to pieces.

The worst atrocity on the Solomons occurred when a Jap officer came into a camp waving a white flag and told the American commander his men were ready to surrender. Some thirty marines were sent to get the men, but as they approached, the Japs mowed them down like grass. Only two escaped and they did so by swimming back to camp.

That's the type of adversary we are fighting in the Pacific. That's the enemy our boys are battling. They have given a wonderful account of themselves, but they must have supplies. They must have new ships to take the place of those destroyed. They must have new planes and they must have food.

You can't fight with our boys on Guadalcanal, but you can fight with them right here at home by buying War Stamps and Bonds. Our brave boys are worth every dollar we have. Don't let them down. Shoot a Jap with a Bond.

WORDS

It seems that the vigorous and once vulgar word "guts," which came into general use in the last war and then more or less disappeared from polite society, is with us again. The new war brings it back. It is interesting to hear it used with such gusto, along with some of the simple but effective swear-words not ordinarily patronized by the ladies.

Well, such things are probably matters of current style and taste, having little to do with the deeper verities. But anyone who tries to analyze them, and to figure out a logical reason for their general acceptance, may end in perplexity.

This matter of "guts," for example, used as a sturdy substitute for courage or endurance, doesn't make sense. Common observation and intelligence would suggest that, as a rule, the more guts a man or animal has, the less vigor and endurance, and therefore probably the less physical courage. Shakespeare's fat Jack Falstaff is the prize example.

There is no definite standard about this, but it seems that physical prowess tends to be in inverse ratio to the extent of waist-line. Any athlete or soldier knows that usually it's the slender fellow who has the endurance, rather than the fat one. Imagine a Commando with a paunch!

Here is something for the "semantics" sharps to figure out—the men interested in the real meaning of words. Why is such a misunderstanding accepted? Have the fat fellows themselves finally put it over, as Falstaff tried to do?

A BARRIER TO VICTORY

Statistics show that loss from fire for the first nine months of this year was slightly less than in the same period last year. They also show we are not giving enough real thought and energy to fire prevention.

The most potentially deadly fire problem—that of sabotage in our industrial plants—can never be fully controlled without concerted effort on the part of all. The shipyard worker, the airplane factory worker, everyone employed in any capacity in the many and various sub-assembly plants, must individually watch for any inadvertent act, any slight deviation from normal behavior in their fellow workers, that might point to incendiarism and the destruction and delay that fire causes.

In the home, it is up to the housewife to become the fire-watcher. She must double-check the iron or the fireplace screen when she leaves the house. She must prevent the accumulation of trash in attic, basement, and garage; she must see that exposed wiring of household appliances is in good condition. Her job is important and must be done well.

This country faces an ever more difficult job in producing sufficient goods to meet the insatiable needs of a world-wide war machine. Every fire, whether it damages a garage or destroys a factory, consumes materials, money and labor which are needed for the war effort. Every fire is a barrier to fulfillment of the United Nations' cause.

TIRE TROUBLES

Speaking of two-gun men and so on, how about six-tire citizens? It's surprising how many people, in the official check-up that allows five tires to every car, turn up with what might be called an extra extra. And they are almost as sad about parting with that superfluous treasure as they would be if they were left running on their bare rims. Really, there's such a thing as being too thrifty, and thereby getting in bad with people who have more faith in Providence.

On the other hand, the blithe way in which some citizens cheerfully run around on their rims—a practice which may be increasingly common from now on—is refreshing to the soul. It may be perilous and thriftless, but it shows that there is still left, here and there, a stout-hearted faith in God and the future which defies adversity and laughs at risks.

TURNING

"The turning point of the war has come," says Major George Fielding Eliot, the war strategy expert. "We are on the offensive. From now on, we grow stronger in power and position, while the enemy grows weaker. The greatest part of our task by far lies still before us. But we are on our way."

It suggests the famous lines on the Three Fates:

"Spin, spin, Clotho, spin!
Lachesis twist and Atropos sever!
In the shadow of the world
The silent headsman waits forever."

And what are those weird sisters now spinning out for America? Nothing but good, we hope, in the end. But for some time the threads may be tangled.

Senator Norris will be missed, but he's earned a good, long rest.

KIDNEY STONES

A patient consulted a physician for a pain in the region of the appendix. As the appendix had been removed, the physician told the patient that the pain was likely due to adhesions following the appendix operation. However, to the surprise of the physician X-rays showed a large stone in the kidney and that kidney was removed.

It was because the pain was in the appendix region and there was no pain in the back or pain following the course of the tube carrying urine from kidney to bladder, that caused the physician to mistake kidney stone for adhesions. Thanks to the X-rays the removal of the kidney brought complete relief from pain.

The above, however, is an "exceptional" case as most cases of kidney stone that cause symptoms can be recognized.

Dr. Charles Pierre-Mathe, San Francisco, Director of the Department of Urology, St. Mary's Hospital, in Clinical Medicine, says:

"A sudden, severe pain in the small of back or abdomen which radiates to the groin should be looked on with suspicion by the attending physician. All patients suffering from kidney stones have red blood cells in the urine which can be detected by making a microscopic examination. I have never seen a patient suffering with kidney stone whose urine did not show red blood cells under the microscope. In many patients, crystals, usually of the variety found in the stone present, are encountered. "Properly made X-ray films will reveal more than 99 per cent of kidney stones."

While the family physician with the aid of X-rays, microscopic examination of urine, use of dyes, can locate the position and composition of the stone or stones, Dr. Mathe advises, and most physicians will agree, that a genito-urinary specialist—urologist—should be called into consultation in these cases. The urologist will carry out a complete examination including cystoscopy—instrument with lamps and mirror—use of a catheter up into ureters (the two tubes carrying urine from kidneys to bladder), study of the amount of urine coming from each kidney, and a complete study of the urines collected from kidneys and bladder.

After removal of stone or stones, they are examined to find composition and nature of organisms present so that the proper diet and antiseptics can be used to try to prevent the formation of more stones.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

With every prospect that Thanksgiving Day turkeys this year will be selling at 55 cents a pound, it is interesting to recall that in November, 1907, turkeys sold for 20 cents a pound. Living conditions then, however, were much different than they are today.

Better street lighting for Broadway was discussed during the administration of Mayor E. J. Dempsey in 1927, and on November 29, of that year the Board of Public Works authorized Mayor Dempsey to sign a contract with the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation to double the street lighting on the main thoroughfare at an additional cost to the city of $8,335 a year.

One of the best known photographers in Kingston in the years at the turn of the century was Theodore D. Lewis who died in his home on Pearl street on November 22, 1917. Undoubtedly many readers of this column have photographs in their family albums from the T. D. Lewis Studio. During the many years Mr. Lewis was engaged in business as a professional photographer, he became widely known, not only in Kingston but throughout Ulster county.

The other day I wrote that in November the debating team at old Kingston Academy was composed of Raphael Murphy, former Surrogate George F. Kaufman and Attorney John W. Eckert. At that time I called attention to the fact that Mr. Eckert, now dead, for years had served as secretary of the Ulster county Republican party, and also as county attorney. Mr. Kaufman was also active for years, and still is, in the Republican ranks.

Joseph F. Sullivan, veteran newspaper man of The Freeman called my attention to the fact that Mr. Murphy, after graduating from the old academy, left Kingston for New York, and the last he had heard of him he was serving as a municipal judge in that city.

Mr. Sullivan said that Mr. Murphy's father for years was a principal in the Kingston school system, serving as principal of School No. 1, and also at School No. 3.

It was in November, 1927, that Harry P. Dodge, for several years conductor of the Mendelssohn Club, owing to a previous contract, was unable to accept the baton again, and the club elected Elmer A. Tidmarsh of Albany to succeed Mr. Dodge.

Mr. Dodge was a widely known musician of this city, and was a skilled pianist as well as a conductor of vocal choruses.

On November 28, 1917, Hazel street in the Third ward, was thrown open to traffic. This was the newest of the city's streets and had been named by the Common Council in honor of the daughter of Alderman George Schick of the Third ward.

Alderman Schick for years was an engineer on the old Ulster & Delaware railroad and resided on East Chester street, near Hasbrouck avenue.

AFRICA BUYING EGGS

South Africa is placing orders for millions of eggs which will be held under government ownership in an attempt to prevent profiteering by speculators. The Controller of Food Supplies said at Pretoria that his office is ready to buy "unlimited quantities."

NAVY PASSES THE BREAD

Bread baked on board the Royal Navy's battleships, cruisers, and aircraft carriers in great electric ovens is distributed to the smaller warships every day they are on cruise, it is revealed in London. "Bakers' roundsmen" carry the hundreds of loaves in power speedboats.

Mrs. Van Scoyt and Mrs. Hook have gone to Walden for the winter.

Literary Guide

By JOHN SELBY

"America: The Story of a Free People," by Allan Nevins and Henry Steele Commager.

After fiddling around with a review of the most useful book of the week for quite a spell, I decided that the authors thereof had done a better job of describing their work than I could. Part of what they say will follow shortly. The book itself is called "America: the Story of a Free People," and the authors are two well-known men — Allan Nevins and Henry Steele Commager.

"This history is written for the layman," say the authors, "not for the scholar. It does not pretend to embody original research or attempt to advance new interpretations. It is designed to meet the need for a short narrative history of the American people.

"Much that the authors would have wished to include they have been forced to omit for lack of space, and they have resolutely resisted the temptation to wander down many an interesting bypath of political, military, and cultural history, to re-create forgotten figures, to engage in fascinating controversies.

"They have not conceived American history to be primarily political or economic, or as a series of problems, but as the story of the evolution of a free society. If there is a theme, it is that implied in the title—the development here of a people intelligent enough to want freedom and willing to work for it and to fight for it."

The only fault one is likely to find in this frank statement is over-modesty. The fact is that the authors, being the sort of historians they are, have not failed to use a good deal of attractive side matter. They have had to rush along fairly fast. But not so fast that they could not include many things that most short American histories omit—such as the true political base upon which the colonies first rested. Under England, the colonies were probably the least tyrannized of any on the globe. The authors show why.

It seems to me the writing itself is almost ideal for the purpose. It is not so showy it blinds the reader, and it is not so dull it puts him to sleep. It moves along neatly, and moves the reader as well.

Irish Salvage Bones

Announcement of a campaign for the salvage of bones in Belfast, Northern Ireland, served also to throw light on Irish individuality even in this phase of war economy. The suggestion that neighboring householders should share cans in which to save bones was rejected with John Davidson, salvage chairman, and others agreeing warring neighbors would refuse to share their bone cans. It was decided to provide a can for each home.

Roosevelt and Churchill Seem to Be Slightly Muddled in Remarks on North African Campaign

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 12 — There's something rather puzzling about the information given out by President Roosevelt in Washington and Prime Minister Churchill in London with respect to the time when the North African offensive was decided upon and just what Josef Stalin was told about it.

Evidently answering questions of the press and intending to strike back at critics who were demanding a "second front" last summer, both the President and the Prime Minister made some disclosures which seem to raise questions of allied unity. On the fact of it, the impression is given either that Josef Stalin was an outsider not cognizant of the facts or that Mr. Stalin knew all along what was going on but didn't consider the North African offensive to be a second front or a sufficiently strong diversionary movement of German forces that would aid Russia.

The President disclosed that by the end of June there was general agreement on the African offensive and that by the end of July certain fundamental questions, such as the point of attack and matters involving shipping and the manufacturing problem, were decided upon. Mr. Roosevelt revealed that the second front had already been determined upon by Britain and America last summer, and the approximate date decided upon, but in the succeeding months he and Mr. Churchill had "to take it on the chin" from persons on the outside not cognizant of the facts.

Simultaneously in London, the Prime Minister in a speech, not to the press but to the parliment, explained why a second-front attack on the continent "might have been a relief to our feelings," but that it would have been a disaster which "would have been no help to Russia" and instead "would have been a great disservice."

Then came the important disclosure by Mr. Churchill, namely, that last June he had given the Russian government a written document making it clear that Britain was preparing "to make a landing on the continent in 1942 but could not promise to do so." Perhaps this was a reference to the raid at Dieppe because he was speaking of the European continent and not North Africa.

The Prime Minister went on to make this significant comment: "I am certainly not one who needs to be prodded. If anything, I am on a prod."

To whom was the Prime Minister referring? To Wendell Willkie who, in discussing a second front, while in Moscow, said that sometimes military leaders needed to be prodded? Or was Mr. Churchill referring to a public statement issued by Premier Stalin to the Associated Press shortly after Mr. Willkie left, reiterating his demand for a second front? Or was the Prime Minister answering Mr. Stalin's speech on the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Soviet Republic last week? On that occasion, the Soviet chief pointed out that the whole operation in Egypt involved a small number of army divisions for both the Germans and the British and did not, in effect, constitute a diversion that could relieve pressure on the Stalingrad and Caucasus fronts. He was still calling for a bigger second front.

The Prime Minister apparently does not consider that what has happened in Africa thus far is the second front the Russians have asked for, because he says concerning a second front on the continent: "all this is proceeding but it takes time. But should the enemy become demoralized, careful preparations would be needed."

It will occur to any well informed observer that there is a lack of accord here somewhere. On the one hand, it is stated officially by the President that the press can assume that our principal fighting allies were taken into consultation before anything was done. On the other hand, those who demanded a second front—both Joseph Stalin and Wendell Willkie—are now criticized as ignorant of the facts.

One explanation offered here is that, despite the explanations, the North African offensive was planned in the summer but not actually decided upon until the autumn. One friend of Wendell Willkie suggested that the final decision was really made during the month of October and that it was still contingent on General Alexander's success in Egypt in breaking up Rommel's army. It may have been organized, of course, with a "zero hour" for some time this month.

But all this still doesn't explain why both the Prime Minister and the President on the same day took occasion to answer critics. Certainly they must have known that if they were slapping at Willkie, they were blasting away also at the principal exponent of a second front, namely, the head of an allied government whose millions of soldiers have made the supreme sacrific on the plains of Russia so that Britain and America might have time to organize to ward off the Nazi conquerors of Europe. It's all very puzzling.

Five-Year Plan Advised For State Farm Programs

Ithaca—"Labor and equipment will be the biggest problems to New York state farmers next year in their effort to produce food and fiber," says Dean Carl E. Ladd of the New York State College of Agriculture. "We will need to study what other countries have accomplished, and plan to use every possible resource to get work done."

If we are to plan for a wartime farm program, says Dean Ladd, we may as well plan for several more years of war, even though some may hope that it will end sooner. Even after the war is over, he adds, we will probably have a shortage of labor on farms, with heavy employment in manufacturing, and with large numbers of men in the army acting as a world police force.

"England has probably made more effective use of labor than any other country," Dean Ladd points out. "Like England we shall probably need to experiment much more, and use more women, transients, and boys on farms. Harvest labor is not so difficult to get as is year-round labor that is needed on dairy and other year-round farm enterprises where workers need both judgment and skill. Even unskilled harvest workers need skilled foremen to guide them."

Pool Equipment

New York farmers are doing more to improve the efficiency of their farm machinery than farmers in any other state, but we will probably need to make even greater use of our larger pieces of farm equipment, he says. Some of the larger farm machines will still be available for purchase in 1943, and they can be used on neighborhood pools to do the work of several farms. In England farm tractors are pooled for use on different farms as the need arises. We may have to do this in wartime.

Farmers cannot purchase much equipment or engage in building in wartime, but they can establish a money reserve so that they can build their farm plants to full efficiency after the war, the Dean suggests. A reserve in War Bonds or other savings will enable them to do this without going into debt.

"Post-war problems occupy much less of our time than they did a year ago, as agriculture, with all other groups of the nation, adjusts itself to the emergency and concentrates on meeting the needs of first winning the war through maximum production."

Air stirred into fruits and vegetables while they are cooking causes the loss of part of their vitamins.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — The capital political observers are just now dusting themselves off and getting back on their feet. That election knocked them for a ground-loop.

There have been landslides before and there will be again. But the old hosses around here can't remember one that caught the politicians themselves farther off base. Republican Leader Joe Martin and his cohorts, having their sweetest dreams, didn't see anything like that. Senator Alben Barkley and his boys had nightmares, perhaps, but they didn't go as far as what happened.

Now, it comes down to taking stock, and when it comes to that the oldtimers aren't much better off than they were on that Wednesday morning when the returns rolled in.

There are, however, several subjects that keep cropping up in any discussion.

No. 1 is what effect this is going to have on 1944. To try to predict at this time is a waste of words. The war can be over at its best, or at its worst in 1944. Whatever happens will change the situation. But one thing is being repeated constantly around Washington today: Both parties are in a mess.

The G.O.P., for all its staggering gains, is looking right down both barrels of a hair-trigger gun. One is named Thomas E. Dewey and the other Wendell L. Willkie. Sometime between now and the next general election, they are going to have to duck one or the other. Will it be Willkie and the impressive vote he rolled up two years ago against the greatest vote-getter the country has ever seen? Or will it be Dewey, who upset the Democratic applecart in his dash for the governorship of New York?

How will third-term Governor Bricker, of Ohio, and two-time No. 1 Willkie man, Governor Stassen, fit into the picture? Dewey's precedent shattering victory can't be brushed off, but neither can the fact that a Willkie Democrat, running on a Republican ticket, turned out New Deal Senator Josh Lee in normally Democratic Oklahoma or that Clare Booth Luce, a staunch Willkieite from the drop of the hat, walked into office as a Connecticut congresswoman.

I don't believe capital observers from now on will ignore the fact that it's just possible Joe Voter doesn't give a whoop about all this behind-the-scenes business; but they can't forget either that with Mr. A. Politician, it's bread-and-butter and the future of democracy. If the in-man can't guess better what the public wants than he did in this crisis, then Congress, the only elected body in Washington (barring the President and Vice-president) had better fold its tent.

Just as a postscript, it might be worth mentioning that Washington is say that so far as World War II is concerned prohibition is a dead issue. It's likely that Senator Lee's defeat in Oklahoma had several other factors involved than that dry amendment he endeavored to tack onto the 18-19 draft law.

Esopus Committee Gives Its Report

Nursing Group Report Follows '42 Annual Meeting

The annual report of the Town of Esopus Public Health Nursing Committee was given as follows at the annual meeting October 28, held at the Stuyvesant Hotel:

"This, the fifth year of the existence of the Esopus Nursing Committee, has been a little different from other years because of our endeavor to help the Town Defense Council.

"In January, a Home Nursing Course was given by the Red Cross at our Health Center. The course ran for 16 weeks and the instructor was Miss Schairer of the Kingston Hospital. We also organized a Home Nursing Course in Ulster Park which was held at the school house by agreement with the trustees. Our town nurse, Miss Marie Deyo, conducted this course and also gave First Aid instruction to the Girl Scouts in Port Ewen at the Health Center. A course of lectures on nutrition was held at the Health Center. Mrs. Cyril Small, a trained nutritionist, was the lecturer. We cooperated with the Esopus Fire Department in arranging First Aid classes; one for the firemen, which was conducted by Dr. Till, and one for other men and women which was conducted by Dr. Ingraham and Dr. Ellerbrook.

"In February we spent the whole day at the Center making blankets for a possible emergency. The Red Cross Sewing Circle of Port Ewen, the Ladies' Aid Society of Ulster Park and the Busy Bee Sewing Circle of Esopus all contributed to this enterprise and 23 blankets were finished and turned over to the First Aid Division of the Town Defense Council. It might be of interest to know that the blankets were made of discarded woolen clothes, both men's and women's. The cloth was washed, cut into squares, sewed together and lined with outing flannel and the finished article was good looking.

"Our supply of cod liver oil has gone its sunny way as usual and our sewing group has kept us supplied with obstetrical bundles. Three bundles were used for home deliveries during the year.

"The transportation committee has undergone a change. The lack of gas made the work of this group a problem. It was settled by asking all the clergymen in the township to take over the job. They responded to a man and have been carrying this load for us since May. Forty-seven children were brought to the clinic from the rural areas, with a total of 540 miles driven during the year.

"The Christmas committee made up several gift boxes under the direction of Miss Deyo.

"The State Dental Trailer spent two weeks at the Health Center in March. Of the 55 pre-school children who had been given dental examinations at the clinic during the year, 18 had defects. The defects were remedied by 105 fillings and 15 extractions. Nineteen X-ray plates were made. We feel indebted to our dental hygienist, Miss Rose Mary Mantino, and to the State Health Department for this work.

"On May Day, which is also Child Health Day, open house was held at the Health Center with special exhibits on immunization on display. There were 62 visitors.

"The loan closet has been added to and has been of service to the community. Our hospital bed and two wheel chairs are in constant use, as well as many other items. One tonsillectomy and one pair of glasses were taken care of by the committee.

"We cannot look back on the work of the year without being grateful to our health officer, our supervisor and our town board.

"We have enjoyed working with Miss Deyo and hope this relationship will continue for the mutual benefit of ourselves and the community."

Respectfully submitted,
MRS. PAUL BAILEY.

Nation-Wide Voluntary Meat Rationing Program

Civilian defense volunteers mobilized by Block Leaders in towns and cities throughout the Second Civilian Defense Region, embracing the states of New York, New Jersey and Delaware, were preparing to launch in this area, the nation-wide drive to induce Americans to embark on a voluntary meat rationing program.

The voluntary rationing will be designated as a meat sharing movement, with its object the reduction of civilian meat consumption to 2½ pounds per week so that the nation's meat supplies may be shared with the men of the armed services and with our allies.

George S. Van Schaick, director of the Office of Civilian Defense in the Second Region, formally launched the meat sharing campaign in this area by making public a statement by James M. Landis, U. S. director of civilian defense.

Prefacing the statement by Mr. Landis, Mr. Van Schaick said:

"Civilian defense volunteers—Block Leaders and their aides—have been entrusted with the task of carrying to every home the message that we must share our bounty with our fighting men and with our allies to ensure victory in this war.

"Huge amounts of meat must be supplied to the Army, the Navy and to our allies. That is why civilian consumption of meat must be reduced, or rather limited to 2½ pounds per week for each adult. This is no hardship comparable to those borne by our fighting men and by the civilian populations of other United Nations. Poultry, liver and various other meat products are not included in the rationing plan and meat substitutes, more than adequate to maintain normal healthy protein needs, are amply available.

"When we share meat with our fighting men, we are directly helping them in their battles. When we share with our allies, whose supply is much less than our own even with voluntary rationing, we are likewise aiding them in the fight against the enemy.

"Voluntary meat sharing is no mere patriotic gesture, it is a genuine and important contribution to the war effort."

Mr. Landis' statement follows:

"Block Leaders will contribute directly to our national war program when they win the cooperation of their neighbors in the voluntary conservation of meat.

"Voluntary meat rationing should be clearly understood for exactly what it is—an immediate as well as a longer range plan to fulfill the needs of our armed forces, and, under lend-lease contract, those of our fighting allies.

"It should be made clear that there is no shortage of meat in this country. More meat is being produced this year than ever before in our history, but the demands of war far exceed the demands of peace. We must supply our civilian population, our army, and to a large extent the armies of our allies. We are asked to limit ourselves voluntarily to two and one half pounds of meat each week for each adult; not much less than the average American eats at present, but representing enough of a saving to assure full strength to the battalions of liberty and to help in some measure the hungry, uprooted millions of the earth.

"If one thing is sure in this war it is that food is going to count as a weapon for victory."

Fat Salvage

Yes, it's your scrap fat homemakers, that will help win the war for fat is a vital war material.

A lot of fat is wasted in the average home, so here's a chance for you women who really want to "do something" to help win the war.

There are two things you can do:

Be more thrifty in your own use of fats so that none is wasted, and, therefore you buy less.

IN WARM STORAGE

Jefferson City (AP) — That fuss overseas caught Robert James with several hundred prize-winning show chickens and he's still stuck with them. James now spends his time keeping his fourteen varieties groomed, for he believes that when the world is normal again show chickens will be in greater demand that ever before. A year ago he made 35 states with 600 unique chickens and geese, displaying them at poultry shows and fairs to the tune of $500 weekly in prize money. His cornish games, cochins, Australian Kewis, Crevecoeurs, Sultans and Polish are biding their time too. "There's very few poultry shows nowadays," James says. "All the boys over the country are selling their birds for next to nothing. Mine are worth more than $5,000 right now, and I wouldn't part with them."

War Moves Speedily Toward Formidable Engagements

Cairo, Incredible City, Tries to Be Gay During Strife

Metropolis, Close to War Zone, Is Like Fantasy of Unreality; Hysteria Is Keynote

By TOBY WIANT and DON WHITEHEAD

Cairo, Nov. 12 (AP)—Incredible Cairo is living in the valley of the shadow of war, trying desperately to be gay and normal, succeeding only in being gay.

There's a note of hysteria in the babble of voices, that constant blatting of automobile horns, the restless surge of humanity through the streets. . . .

We arrived in this ancient city after a 10,000 mile trip from New York expecting to find a grim, gloomy citadel bristling with guns and subdued by the nearness of Rommel's armies.

Instead we found a never-never land of confused unreality where most of the people are trying to forget or ignore the war—and doing very well except for the suppressed excitement which can be felt with electric awareness.

The strange contrasts of Cairo are confusing to the newcomer. The skyline is western, but the heart of Cairo is of the East. And the growing population of Americans and British doesn't alter the fact that Cairo belongs to Egypt.

We are only minutes by air from the desert battleground, and yet we have no feeling of being close to the actual fighting. There is little to remind us that a war is near.

That's because the people seem so unconcerned. They don't talk much about the war. They don't rush to buy newspapers containing the latest communiques. They appear more interested in the boom that has swept Cairo.

Cabarets and bars are crowded mostly with uniformed men celebrating a few hours' leave or just celebrating. They have to drink fast for alcoholic beverages are served only from 12:30 to 2 p. m., and from 6 to 10. You're fortunate to find a seat in a bar.

Movie houses are packed, one theatre showing "The Man Who Came to Dinner" was sold out the other night long before the picture was scheduled to begin.

Hotels Are Crowded

Hotels are crammed with lucky people of many nationalities—lucky because they were able to find a room. It takes pull to get a room on short notice. Apartments are out of reach of persons of ordinary means, and profiteers are having a field day. One man foresaw the rush to Cairo and leased 40 apartments. He sublet them at a total monthly profit of about $2,800.

Since the war began, Cairo's population has doubled. Living costs have soared and still are going up. Simple meals cost $1.50. Beer is 35 cents a bottle and whisky at least 40 cents a drink. Soft drinks cost as much as beer and whisky. American cigarets sell for 50 cents a pack.

There are shortages of rice, corn and wheat. No meat can be bought three days a week. Kerosene and gasoline are rationed, and automobile tires are as scarce as they are in the United States. A black market, where virtually everything can be bought by paying a premium, is beginning to flourish.

At night, it's an adventure in the realm of involuntary manslaughter to ride through Cairo's blackout. Dim blue lights cast an eerie glow through which the taxis plunge without slackening speed. Every minute you expect to see pedestrians bowled over, but somehow they escape with a last-minute leap for safety.

Thick cement barricades five to 10 feet high have been built before some store and cafe entrances to protect customers from flying debris or shell fragments, should Jerry bomb Cairo seriously.

War or no war, the people go ahead with their holidays. The other day Cairo resembled Coney Island on the Fourth of July. Parks and coffee houses were overrun, and the crowds overflowed into the streets. They swarmed over the street cars, climbed onto the tops and hung on the sides.

Cairo is both primitive and modern. Horse-drawn cabs, taxis of forgotten vintage, military motor lorries, sleek limousines and ass-drawn carts flow through the streets in strange procession. Robed Arabs and veiled Moslem women walk side by side with creations that might have come from Bond street and Fifth avenue.

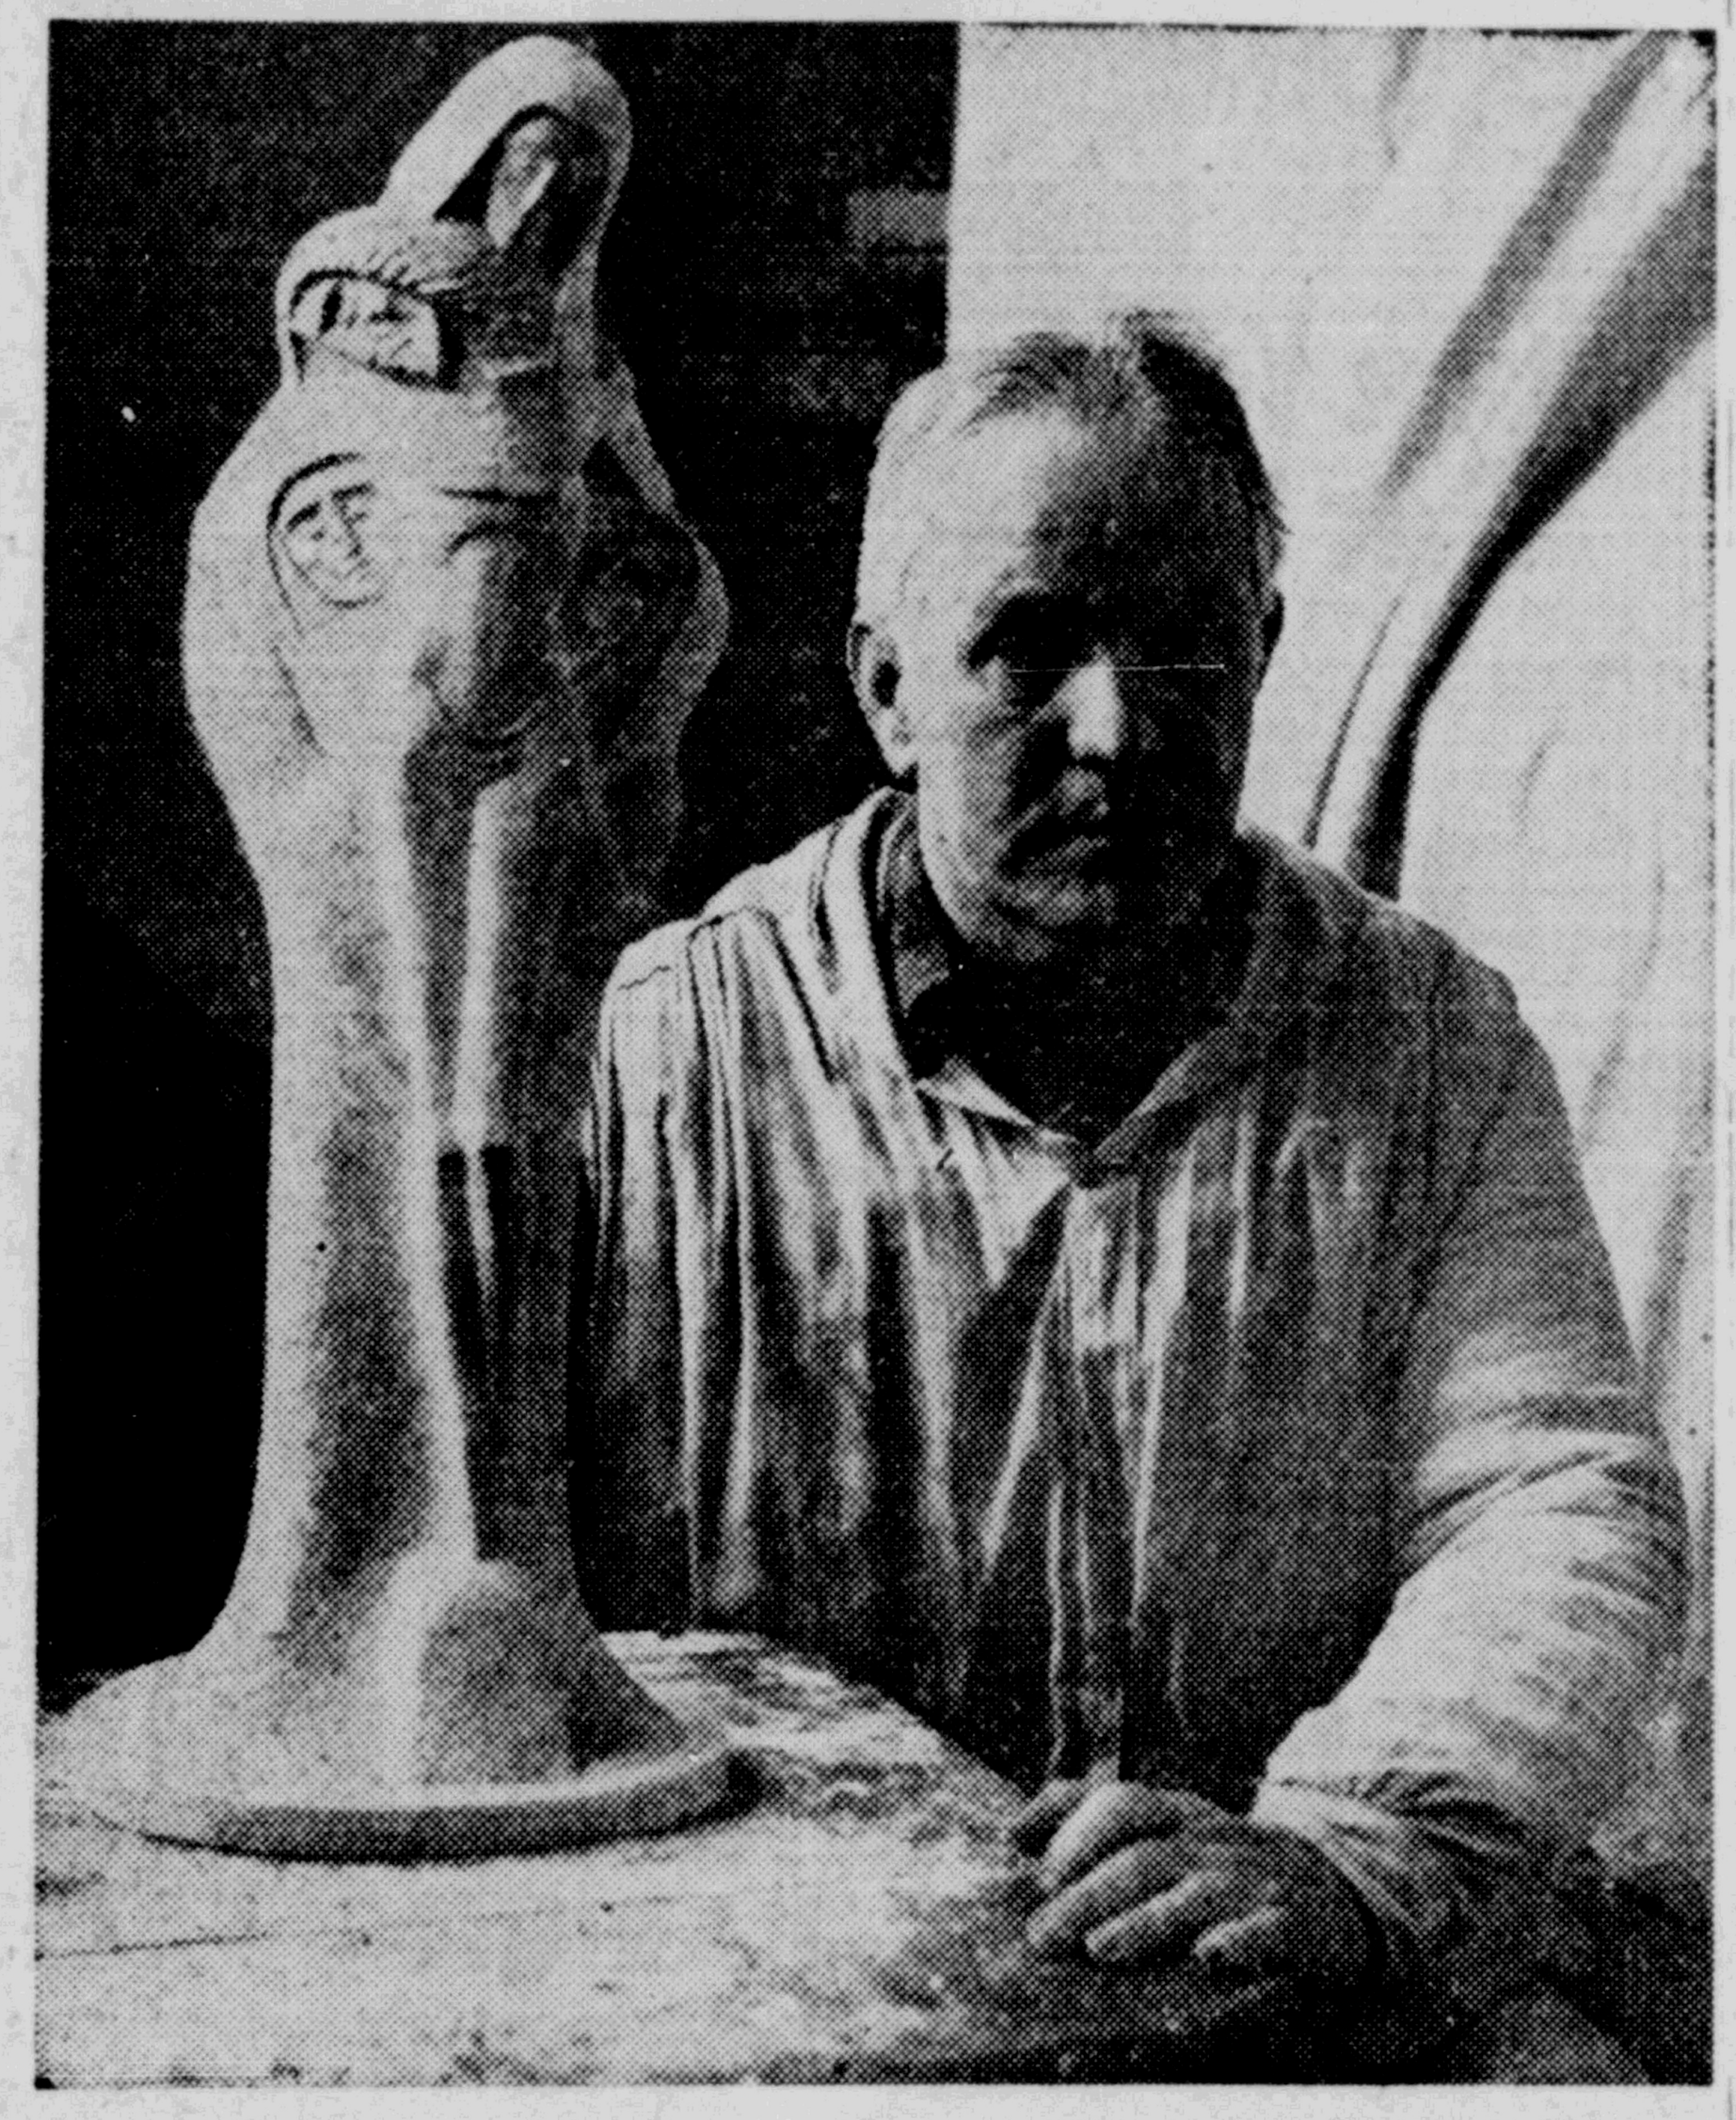
From one doorway comes the quavering wail of Egyptian music and from another the hot rhythm of American jive. On the edge of the desert a motor caravan whirls in a cloud of dust past a camel caravan. There is dirt, ugliness and poverty alongside cleanliness, beauty and wealth.

There still is a brisk business in tourist trade even if most of the tourists are in uniform. Soldiers on leave from the desert wander through the bazaars and haggle over prices.

At the edge of the city where the desert meets the green of the Nile valley, children clamber about the bases of the pyramids.

Only a few of Cairo's modern buildings have sandbags for bomb protection, but the sphinx is up to its ears in them.

Alfeo Faggi Is Awarded $500 Prize



Freeman Photo

Alfeo Faggi, of Woodstock, prominent American sculptor, is shown with a model of his "From the Cross," which was purchased last year by Mrs. Evelyn Shaw Judson, scluptress, and which was awarded the Chicago Art Institute's Logan Memorial Prize last month. Mr. Faggi, who is famed throughout this country for his religious sculptures, notably his "Stations of the Cross," which is in a Chicago Roman Catholic cathedral; his bronze doors; his "Pieta" and "St. Francis," also is a portrait sculptor of distinction. Outstanding among his portraits is a bust of Tagore, East Indian poet. Mr. Faggi will have a one-man show of drawings this winter at the Ferrargil Galleries, New York. During World War 1 Mr. Faggi left his wife and infant son to serve in the A. E. F. and was wounded in action. His son, John Faggi, enlisted in the U. S. Forces the day after Pearl Harbor. The Faggis have been residents of Woodstock since 1921.

Nelson Says Africa Is Only Beginning For United Nations

W.P.B. Chief Says We Have Only Made Beginning in Reconquest of Great Areas

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—Cautioning against over-optimism over war developments, Donald M. Nelson warns that "what is happening in Africa is only a beginning, not an end . . . The German military organization is immensely powerful; it has lost heavily in Russia, but it will still take a lot of licking."

"And on the other side of the world," the War Production Board chief told the Association of National Advertisers last night, "we have only made the barest beginning in the reconquest of the immense and wealthy territories seized by Japan."

He said "there is no present reason to suppose that this is going to be a short war," but he asserted that the American economy was sufficiently vital and flexible to crush the enemy without crumbling in the process.

"It has a greater adaptability," he declared, "than our enemies dreamed; greater, I suppose, than we ourselves suspected."

He said the peacetime distributive and marketing machinery had found a vital, although "vastly different," role in the war economy and could help cushion the conversion to an all-our war effort.

Through it, he added, "our basic structure can be preserved and kept sound for the years of peace and prosperity which lie ahead."

Nelson declared that advertising was an "essential part of our communications system," adding:

"We dare not destroy or cripple that communications system in wartime, and we have no remotest desire to do so."

He said he saw "no reason why any man should assume, now, that no scope is going to be left for the free exercise of his talents; I see no reason to assume that the field is going to tighten up so much that advertising will not still have an important job to do in the distribution of goods."

"While in ordinary times it is advertising which provides the urge for mass production," he said, "today it is the war itself which provides that urge. Advertising has nothing to do with it, and the vital role which it ordinarily fills is denied to it for the duration of the emergency."

The civilian economy, he continued, must be kept sound since a wobbly economy could not carry a huge war program "any more than a half-starved man can do a heavy day's labor."

He declared that some of the things that must be done to win the war would give businessmen "some severe headaches," adding that one of them came in connection with concentration of industry.

Chick Pea Coffee Is Prospect Now

Santa Barbara, Calif., Nov. 12 (AP).—Coffee drinkers may soon be brewing an ersatz coffee made from garvanzos, a chick pea grown here and in Mexico.

Ordinarily garvanzos are cooked like peas or beans, but the county agricultural extension service reported today that heavy shipments of them have been made to several major coffee companies. Santa Barbara county produced nearly 200,000,000 pounds of them last year and has a larger planting this season.

Snowstorm Covers Buffalo Region

State Police Request All Travel Be Reduced

Buffalo, N. Y. Nov. 12 (AP)—From one to five inches of snow cover sections of western New York following the season's first prolonged downfall last night which hampered highway traffic and led state police to request all unnecessary travel be curtailed.

The storm draped Buffalo and suburban areas with one to four inches of soggy snow and made streets slippery and hazardous for motorists. The roof of a two-story building collapsed under the weight of the snow.

An unidentified male pedestrian, about 65, was killed when he was struck by a car in downtown Buffalo.

At Wanakah in southern Erie county, state police reported four to five inches of wet snow. Roads were open but slippery. At Batavia, police said two inches of slush covered highways while at Westfield approximately one inch of snow fell.

Pictures of War in Egypt Shown at Rotary Luncheon

Graphic portrayal of the war in Egypt was viewed by members of the Rotary Club at the noon luncheon-meeting held Wednesday at the Governor Clinton Hotel. The news reel shown by Andre Ceurvorst depicted the land, sea and air battles in the fight for Egypt.

Before the movie reel, Mr. Ceurvorst told of his experience in Egypt after his escape from Holland. The conditions under which our men are fighting in Africa and Egypt were emphasized by the speaker. A full appreciation of the severe conditions there, he stated, can only be had by actual experience. Knowing these conditions, the work of the Allied troops deserve the highest praise, he asserted.

Mr. Ceurvorst was introduced by Henry Fagher, program chairman.

Rationing Lessens Taxable Sales of Gasoline in State

Commission Reports Drop in First 9 Months of Year Is About 29 Per Cent

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 12 (AP)—Rationing cut taxable sales of gasoline approximately 29 per cent the first nine months of 1942, with a proportionately heavy reduction of state revenue.

The State Tax Commission reported today 1,105,059,142 gallons of taxable fuel sold between January 1 and October 1, a decline of 326,577,565 gallons under the same period last year. Gasoline for farm machinery and certain other uses is not subject to the four cents a gallon state levy.

While total tax losses due to rationing were not reported, the effect was shown in October collections on September gasoline sales. The collections were 31 per cent lower than last year. The state received last month $1,747,000 less than the $6,437,646 it collected in October, 1941.

The 25 per cent reduction of the personal income tax, effective this year and next, and reduced sales of alcoholic beverages—except beer and liquor of low alcoholic content—were other factors cited in a $6,407,598 loss in October tax revenue.

The state collected $31,135,895 from 19 revenue sources, with personal income taxpayers remitting $9,228,143, or $2,350,600 less than a year ago. The beverage tax yield dropped $1,230,757 below last year's October figure of $4,401,731.

Revenue from transfer and estate taxes totaled $1,440,977 — a loss of $1,168,953—but "relatively small" increases were reported from some corporation taxes and levies on unincorporated business, income of utilities, cigarettes, parimutuel betting and racing admissions.

Ruling Says W.L.B. Controls Labor Disputes

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—A mediation panel held today that the War Labor Board has jurisdiction over labor disputes of all employes in the United States, including municipal workers, under the wage stabilization order of October 3.

The contention was made in recommending the reinstatement of workers who were discharged by the Newark, N. J., Department of Public Works after a six-day strike of 400 city employes there last month.

In a report signed by two of the three members—the employer member dissented—the panel majority said:

"The activities of municipal employes may be, and in this case are, just as intimately connected with the war effort as those of other employes. Unrest and dissatisfaction arising out of terms and conditions of employment among municipal employes can hamper the successful prosecution of the war.

"The prosecution of a foreign war being within the exclusive province of the federal government, it is unthinkable that the National War Labor Board would endanger the war effort by failing to concern itself with the problems of municipal employes to the same extent that it concerns itself with the problems of those employed by private individuals or corporations."

The Newark strike followed a dispute between the Public Works Department and C.I.O.'s State, County and Municipal Workers of America. Sixty-five of the strikers, "including virtually all the officials of the local union," were refused reinstatement, the report said.

Peacetime Reconstruction Should Embrace Bargaining, Dr. Boland Tells Conference

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 12 (AP)—Peacetime economic reconstruction should embrace "the permanent and bona fide acceptance of the principle of collective bargaining," the New York Conference on Social Work was told today.

"Labor-management cooperation is an outgrowth of collective bargaining," the Rev. Dr. John P. Boland, chairman of the State Labor Relations Board, asserted, adding, "American employers are interested in it."

He cited the importance of collective bargaining "in keeping production continuous, in filling the pockets of the manufacturer's best customers, his own employe, with the capital needed to take the finished goods off the retailers' shelves. . . ."

The Rev. I. Gannon, Fordham University president, asserted that "if the war proves to be a long one, 500 colleges may be sacrificed," but "more disturbing" is the war's threat to "the family and to religion."

"With regard to religion, . . . prayer, charity, suffering, duty, chastity, public worship which everyone understood in less enlightened times, the ignorance of our people, even of some university graduates, is becoming, if possible, more abysmal because of the war," he added.

The Rev. Mr. Boland asserted that out of the war should come "a continuation of the system of free, private enterprise . . . but with all the restrictions which social legislation during the past 40 years has rightfully imposed upon it. It is individual ownership with a social outlook."

New York needs and expects to call shortly about 200,000 women for war industry work, Miss Elsie M. Bond, child care committee chairman of the State War Council, told a section of the conference last night.

Service Cross Goes To Flier's Widow

Mrs. Colin P. Kelly Gets Added Decoration

March Field, Calif., Nov. 12 (AP)—Colin P. Kelly was honored again today. His widow received the distinguished service cross in recognition of his gallantry in sinking a Japanese warship before he crashed to his death early in the war.

The distinguished flying cross posthumously awarded to Kelly for gallantry in the same action was presented to his widow last April.

Maj. Gen. Barney M. Giles, March Field air force commander, was selected to make today's presentation.

Goal Will Be Reached

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—America's merchant shipbuilding goal of 8,000,000 tons in 1942 will be reached, Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the United States Maritime Commission and head of the War Shipping Administration, said today. He told the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, of which he is president, that not only would the 1942 program be met but that President Roosevelt's demand for 16,000,000 tons of ocean-going vessels in 1942 would be fulfilled.

Sergeant Is Upset

An advance base in the South Pacific, Oct. 18 (Delayed) (AP)—Sergeant Ted Fuller of Canton, O., is the conscientious — and embarrassed—crew chief of a transport plane.

The plane was about to take off and Sergeant Fuller carefully checked the weight and the number of passengers. He found both just right and closed the cabin door.

Up dashed a jeep, a man jumped out, ran to the plane and pounded on the door. Fuller stuck his head out and said:

"Sorry, there's no more room. We've got a full load now."

The newcomer just grinned and said: "Guess I'll have to go along, sergeant;——I'm the pilot.

Middle East Leader Pins Medals on Officers, Troops in Hospital

Cairo, Nov. 12 (AP)—Moving swiftly from headquarters to advanced air fields to army hospitals, the new commander of the U. S. forces in the middle east yesterday decorated nearly a hundred officers and men who have been fighting the enemy for months in the air.

Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews pinned the Distinguished Flying Cross on Major Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, commander of the U.S.A.A.F. in the middle east, for gallantry last April in an attack on the Andaman Islands, in the Bay of Bengal.

The Brereton award and several others were made at U.S.A.A.F. headquarters and then Brereton and Andrews, with the latter at the controls, flew to several air bases many miles from Cairo to honor American fliers who paused just long enough in battle operations to receive their awards.

Several other decorations were conferred at three hospitals in the Cairo area where wounded airmen were convalescing.

Brereton's award was announced by the war department in Washington October 30.

Lieut. Lyman Middleditch, of Highland, N. J., was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for his fighting in the Egyptian desert battle.

The awards included 51 silver stars for gallantry in action, 28 Purple Hearts for wounds in action, four Distinguished Flying Crosses, three soldier's medals, two air medals and one Distinguished Service Cross.

A silver star went to Lieut. Alden N. Wood, White Plains, N. Y.

State Farmers Planting Winter Wheat Very Late

Albany,—A much larger proportion than usual of the winter wheat of the State has been planted very late this fall, according to a Federal-State report issued from the New York State of Agriculture and Markets. Two principal factors have contributed to this lateness in seeding.

Frequent and heavy rains have in a great many instances kept the fields too wet for operations. Much wheat is seeded after dry beans, ensilage, corn, etc. are harvested, and since this harvesting was delayed by the rains, the preparation of the fields for wheat was also delayed.

The other big factor has been the shortage of farm labor which has brought about a series of delays, the most important of which are the harvesting of the fall crops and the preparation of the ground for seeding.

A late growing season with plenty of warm weather will be of great assistance to this late seeded wheat, but an early freeze-up would mean a large amount of winter wheat abandonment.

The early seeded wheat shows a high condition since it has had mostly mild temperatures and a plentious supply of moisture, while much of the late planted wheat shows only a small amount of growth to date. However, many of the varieties of winter wheat used in New York State are much hardier than those used a few years ago, and this may be to the advantage of the late seeded wheat. Unless the late seeded grain gets a good root growth before winter sets in it will suffer considerably during the winter and early spring.

Parallel to Days Of Carthage Looms In Mediterranean

As Things Stand, Only One Power Can Survive, Fascist or Democratic, in Modern World

(This column, conducted as a daily feature by DeWitt Mackenzie, is written today by Glenn Babb. Mr. Mackenzie, now touring the war zones, is travelin.)

The focal point of this global, lightning war shifts hundreds of miles in a single day. Yesterday it was Morocco and Algeria. Today it is Tunisia. The indications show that a race for that key to the Mediterranean is developing between the formidable air fleets of Hitler and the newly launched American-British combination of mechanized land forces and air and sea power.

The war thus moves to one of history's most sanguinary and decisive battlefields. Modern Tunis was built near the site of ancient Carthage and along that shore was fought out the last bitter-end struggle of the Punic wars. Then, as now, two forces contending for mastery of the known world clashed. One was destroyed with a completeness that has few parallels.

Adolf Hitler four days ago took occasion to reiterate that two worlds are locked now in a struggle which only one can survive. There would be historic justice therefore if the site of Carthage should witness one of the most fateful chapters of this struggle. The United Nations are pledged to the destruction of the Nazi world order—as distinguished from the misguided human masses that live now under its direction — as complete as that which Scipio Africanus visited on Carthage after its fall in 146 B. C. The ruins were dedicated to the infernal gods, salt was spread above the rubble, human habitation in the whole area was forbidden.

Hitler apparently has reached the Tunisian battlefield first, dropping a few hundred or few thousand air force troops on its chief air bases while marines of his Italian allies have sought to seize the big naval base at Bizerte. This doubtless is only the vanguard of the forces the fuehrer will seek to throw into Tunisia before the American armored columns plunge across the western border or the British fleet is able to bring overpowering strength against Bizerte. The Americans probably already are well along the roads through Eastern Algeria, although up to this morning there was no definite word of their presence farther east than Bougie, 200 miles from the frontier and 280 from Bizerte.

Some dispatches suggest that Hitler, compelled to fall back on his air power since he can not contest Allied command of the seas, will mobilize to the full his luftwaffe, first to seize the air fields, then land infantry and perhaps light armored units, then seek mastery of the skies against the big fleets of bombers and fighters the Americans and British are moving both eastward and westward along the African shore toward a mighty convergence in Tunisia.

There is one suggestion that Hitler may throw as many as 3,000 planes into the battle for the central Mediterranean. This may be beyond his means, but the chances of seeing one of the greatest aerial battles of this war, perhaps the greatest, are good.

Hitler's drive to France's Mediterranean coast clearly shows he realizes that a decisive new phase of the war is opening, one that he can not afford to let go by default. At any rate the skies above the narrow waters—it is less than 100 miles from Cape Bon in Tunisia to Sicily—are sure to be dark with the air fleets.

There is a parallel between the North African campaign now taking form and Britain's tragic effort to aid Greece a year and a half ago. The British knew, when they sent an army across the Mediterranean, that the odds were tremendously in favor of the enemy, who had dictated the choice of battlefield. Also they had to leave one halfwon victory, over the Italians and Germans in Libya, and sacrifice the men and weapons needed to complete it to uphold a cause already as good as lost. Hitler undoubtedly will have to weaken his armies in Russia, perhaps draw on them so heavily that they must pass definitely to the defensive, to fight for Tunisia and attempt to rescue Rommel.

So, if all goes well for the United Nations, somewhere along the African coast there should be an Axis version of the British disasters of Greece and Dunkerque. Tunisia is as likely a place as any.

Britain Has a Kaiser

Britain has in E. C. Gordon England of the Engineering Industries Association a champion of the ideas which made Henry Kaiser famous as the wonder man of the United States, it is reported in London. He advocates for Britain an air merchant service of 5,000 planes. Such a fleet, he says, could bring nearly a million men to Britain in 15 hours, could make a round Atlantic trip every four days, moving 150,000 tons of freight a week in both directions.

The first general conference of governors of the United States was held at the White House in 1908 when Theodore Roosevelt was president.

Hi-Y Boys Present Wartime Bill

Voting for 18-Year Olds Is Suggested at Conference

Seven members of the Hi-Y Club of the Y. M. C. A. attended the area assembly for Hi-Y at Goshen yesterday. They are Jack Pope, Clyde Wonderly, Thomas Galey, Roger Vogt, Allan Vogt, Raymond Armater and Robert Hillis.

The area assemblies are being held this week throughout the state in preparation for the annual Hi-Y Assembly held at Albany each year, scheduled for December 11 to 13. The Goshen conference was conducted by Niel Fuller, a former secretary at the Kingston Y. M. C. A. and in charge of Orange County Y. M. C. A. at the present time.

At this sectional conference, the Kingston boys presented a bill making it possible for all people 18 years of age and over to have a vote. This bill was submitted at this time in conjunction with the idea that boys 18 years of age may be drafted. Word was received by telegram last evening at the "Y" that the bill was successfully passed at 2:48 p. m. yesterday and it will now be prepared for presentation at the Albany Assembly.

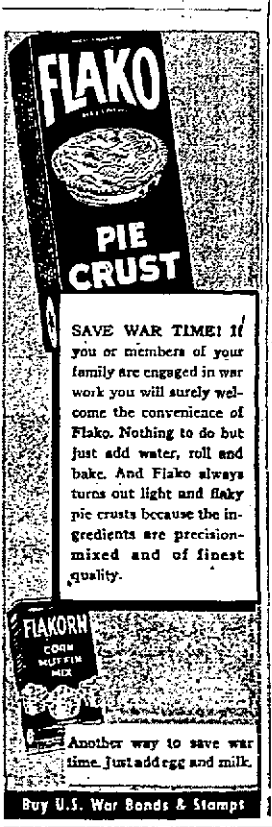
The Kingston Club has been working on this bill for the past two weeks at the regular meeting, Monday nights. They have been assisted by Senator Arthur H. Wicks, who spent considerable time with the boys and last Monday evening by Superintendent Arthur J. Laidlaw who stayed during the entire session coaching the representatives on the debatable angles of the bill.

The boys returned today to resume their classes at the high school.

BOOM WHEN ADVERTISED

Little Rock, Ark. (AP)—It pays to advertise. That's the conclusion Bush Binley, Little Rock insurance salesman, has reached after applying modern sales methods to the long-conservative Arkansas Land office. Shortly after Binley took over as land commissioner, approximately 40,000 acres of timber lands that had been set aside for state forests were released for public sale. As an experiment, he advertised in county newspapers. The flood of responses amazed him. Many persons, it developed, hadn't even known the state had lands for sale. Then he inserted ads in about a dozen eastern Arkansas newspapers when appraisals were completed on tax-forfeited lands in that area. The publicity doubled the size of the office mailbag and boosted sales and redemptions by a sizeable figure.

In times of possible disaster, every family should keep on hand a supply of inexpensive, plentiful foods that can be stored without spoiling. Many such foods are easily available to farm families. For information on emergency foods, write to the Office of Publication, Roberts Hall, Ithaca, N. Y., for a copy of War Emergency Bulletin 39, "Wartime Food Reserves at Home."



SAVE WAR TIME! If you or members of your family are engaged in war work you will surely welcome the convenience of Flako. Nothing to do but just add water, roll and bake. And Flako always turns out light and flaky pie crusts because the ingredients are precision-mixed and of finest quality.

Another way to save war time. Just add egg and milk.

'Bess' Quits Singing Role; The Reason? - To Sing!

By JOHN SELBY
(Wide World Arts Editor)

New York—Chaps who talk out of the corners of their mouths may have some difficulty restraining their "Oh, yeahs" when they hear Anne Brown's story. If they heard it from her own lips, they would accept it more easily.

Anne Brown is the original Bess in George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess." Last spring she confounded the company then playing "Porgy" by leaving the cast, refusing a two-year contract that would have brought her $75,000.

"Why?" she was asked, and she answered, "I want to sing concerts."

"Why?" they asked again, and she replied, "because it's my life's ambition."

That was that.

Last spring the Negro soprano's manager, Albert Morini, had no dates. He set himself a goal of 50 for this season, and on October 6 he turned down the 51st offer. He didn't like to, but his singer thought 50 was enough.

The soprano, perhaps the handsomest specimen of her voice and race in serious music, grew naturally into a musical career. She was in the 1934 graduating class at the Institute of Musical Art when she heard that Gershwin was setting Dubose Hayward's "Porgy." She went to him, asking for a minor part. Gershwin gave her Bess, and retitled the opera to make her more prominent.

Since the early "Porgy and Bess" days she has been in London with Lew Leslie's "Blackbirds," and has done straight dramatic work in "Mamba's Daughters." Seven consecutive summers she has sung at Lewisohn Stadium, and at other outdoor concert places as well. But doing a heavy soprano role five to seven times a week was not her idea of advancing in music.

ANNE BROWN
'I Want a Chance at Opera'

"I made up my mind that if I was going ahead, now was the time," she explains. "I quit, cold. Now I want to be the best concert singer I can be—and I want a chance at opera, especially 'Carmen.' Carmen is a sort of Gypsy Bess, anyway."

Miss Brown paints, on the side. She is trying to give much time to her very young daughter, Paula, and to be a wife to her husband, Dr. C. C. Pettit, as well as an artist.

She likes mystery stories, and costume designing. She designs all her clothes but doesn't sew them. She hasn't time. Her hobby is diatetics; her kitchen is full of vegetable juicers and such. She likes raw foods, dislikes white flour, uses almost no sugar.

Believe it or not, raw bread and something she calls "potassium broth" are among her favorites. And spinach souffle.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

Nov. 12—Thanksgiving is in the air and K.H.S. prepares for a gala holiday season:

After electing Joseph Jordan as its president, the Junior Class of 1944 took three more days to complete its elections. President Jordan called the class to order, and the juniors began nominating for vice-president. Mary Darling, Virginia Dowd, Isabel Gill, Irene Haggerty, Gloria Stork and June Zimmermann were nominated. Mary Darling and Isabel Gill emerged the victors after the first ballot. On the second ballot Isabel Gill defeated Mary Darling with 136 votes to Mary's 101.

Next the juniors selected a secretary. Mary Buckley, Gloria Mayone, Bob Corregan, Josephine Rua, Hype Weinberger, Gloria Jones and Gus Cunaveles were nominated. Contrary to the tradition that a girl was best-fitted for class scribe, Gus Cunaveles was elected.

George Zelie, a member of last year's basketball team, was chosen as treasurer.

At the close of the meeting, junior rings were voted on and a committee will be appointed to discuss the matter in the near future.

The Kingston High School Stamp Club has taken over the sale of defense bonds and stamps. President David Spodick, aided by Miss Bestle and Miss Quimby, hopes to accelerate the bond and stamp drive by intra-mural competition. The philatelists also plan to announce the rooms which have purchased the largest amount of war stamps each week.

The final results for the competitions for the 1943 Maroon have been announced. This year's staff is one of the smallest ever to publish the yearbook. This small group will have to work hard since wartime conditions offer many new problems.

In addition to Helen Kruszenski, editor-in-chief and Marie Tiedmann, business manager, who were elected last June, the remaining members of the editorial staff are: Associate Editor, Katherine Kramer; Business Manager, assistant, Marilyn Culver; Organizations Editor, Janet Cochrane; Activities Editor George Moore; Sports Editor, Seymour Werbalowsky; Recorder-of-Events Editor, Joyce Merrihew.

Those who will write the personal comments in the 1943 Maroon are: Anna Adin, Anne Donnaruma, Jack Herlihy, Irving Kotrady, Frieda Kaplowitz, Anna Marie Manfro, Mary Frances Matthews, Marian Raiff, Shirley Smith, Maureen Troy and Eleanor Waterman.

The Art Committee is composed of: Chairman, Donald Murray; Carol Summers, Joan Zell and James Clancy. The staff photographer is Philip Reading, while Pennington studios will handle the professional work. Typists for the Maroon have not been selected.

The faculty advisers will be: Mrs. Terpening, Miss Kirchenblum, Miss Barnett, Miss Schmalkuche, and Mrs. Dillon.

D. R. Captures Award

The Onondaga Hotel in Syracuse was the scene of the first wartime High School Press Conference in New York. Leonard Rabin, Valdo Viglielmo, managing editors of Dame Rumor, and Miss Agnes Scott Smith, faculty advisor, arrived in Syracuse, November 6. The topic emphasized at the conference was "The Service of a School Paper in Wartime."

Dame Rumor, the school paper, has won an all-state rating, with 91 points out of a possible 100. Only four school papers in New York state with a student population of over 1,500 enjoy this honor.

The first day's program included an opening address by Dr. Charles Ward of Syracuse University. The afternoon provided a chance for the K.H.S. group, chaperoned by Clayton Brower and Warren Shultis, former Kingston High School students, now attending the university, to visit the campus.

After the annual banquet that night, prizes were awarded by Dr. Douglass Miller of the Syracuse School of Journalism. Valdo Viglielmo won second prize in the editorial writing contest for his editorial "All Out for War." He also captured third place in the news writing contest.

The keynote address was offered by Dr. Spencer, dean of the Syracuse School of Journalism, who spoke on the topic, "National Unity and the War Effort."

It was announced that this would undoubtedly be the last of such conferences for the duration.

The team made a perfect showing against Middletown, with a 15-40 score.

Highway Robbery

Zanesville, O., (AP) — Mystery: Who stole the 3,000-pound road grader? Muskingum and Perry county officials would like very much to know. It disappeared from a highway in Madison township, Perry county, where it had been used in recent coal stripping operations. Deputy Sheriff Marsh Summers theorized that the grader, a motorless type, might have been taken apart and carried away piecemeal. Anyway, it's gone—and township roads are going unattended.

Why Be Troubled By Wartime Constipation?

Avoid one of the common causes—lack of "bulk"!

No wonder so many folks feel "all done in" these war days! It's the way we live—longer hours, harder work, irregular eating habits. And in this hurly-burly, meals are apt to be rushed, improperly balanced—and the important matter of "bulk" overlooked.

What a difference getting enough "bulk" might make! For lack of it is one of the common causes of constipation. In such cases, medicinal laxatives are only "makeshift" remedies; they don't correct the cause!

Odd But Science

By H. W. BLAKESLEE
Wide World Science Editor

Schenectady, N. Y. — Masks which are incredibly thin, made of a transparent plastic less than one-tenth of a wave length of light, are being photographed by the electron microscope.

The masks are of the polished faces of samples of metal. After rouge and all other scientific ingenuity has done its utmost in polishing a flat metal surface, the face is still full of hills and valleys, peaks and pits.

The plastic masks, when peeled off such a polished surface, retain on the under side the impression of these irregularities. The result is that the thickness of the film varies greatly, despite its unbelievable thinness.

When placed under an electron microscope, this plastic mass permits the electrons to pass through to the photographic film. But less electrons get through the thicker parts of the mask, since electrons have very little penetrating power.

The result is a shadow protograph of X-ray type, where the shadows are light or dark, exactly like the patterns of hills and valleys in the mask. The photograph therefore is a perfect picture of the face of the polished metal, despite the fact that the electron eye never saw this face.

By this system the electron microscope enlarges the irregularities of the metal face by about 20,000 diameters.

General Motors Output Is Greater Than Peace Record

Detroit, Nov. 12 (AP)—General motors Corporation, largest of the armament makers among the one-time motorcar manufacturers, now is delivering war weapons at a rate greater than the peak of its peace time commercia' output, according to C. E. Wilson, president, but it faces major problems in materials and manpower supply.

The company president told a group of army and navy officers, G. M. executives and news writers last night that materials present the biggest immediate problem.

"It is highly important," he said, "that the new materials control plan be worked out without too much red tape."

Pointing out that General Motors currently is employing more hourly-rated workers than at any time in its history, he said:

"We are getting to the point where we must employ men and women who never worked in industry before."

Wilson indicated he questioned the wisdom of job freezing.

"We ought to go a little carefully on the question of freezing men in their jobs," he said. "That may work in the armed forces where men can be assigned specific tasks and carry out orders. In industry it presents a different situation."

He added his belief that the freezing of men in their jobs quickly would be reflected in a lowering of workers co-operation.

General Motors, Wilson said, is not now making plans for peace time business. "We haven't time for that now," he said.

The corporation since the attack on Pearl Harbor has delivered nearly $1,500,000,000 worth of tanks, aircraft engines, guns, shells and other war materials, he said.

Kingston Feels First Snow Flurries This Morning

Snow flurries, the first of the season, broke over Kingston at 10 o'clock this morning as freezing temperatures again gripped the city. This was the first snow of the season in the city, although snow had fallen earlier in the season in the Catskill Mountains.

Temperatures on Tuesday in the city ranged from 35 to 49 degrees at the city hall, while in other sections of the city the mercury dropped even lower. During the night it gradually grew colder until thermometers registered from 28 to 32 degrees in various sections of the city.

According to the records in the city's engineer's office the total rainfall so far this month has been 1.09 inches.

New Fruit Varieties Receive High Rating

Geneva — A first prize for a collection of 65 grape seedlings, awards of merit for three varieties of apples, and a first class certificate for a new variety of early white grapes were given to entries of new fruits exhibited by the State Experiment Station here in the Victory Garden Harvest Festival held recently in Boston under the auspices of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

The collection of unnamed seedling grapes represented the most promising selection from the hundreds of seedlings growing in the Station's grape-breeding project. The Seneca grape was entered in a special class for new fruits where the entries did not compete with each other but were evaluated as to their outstanding characteristics which merited special consideration.

Seneca is one of the products of the efforts of the Station fruit breeders to develop a hardy grape of the vinifera or European type, commonly referred to in this country as "California" grapes. Seneca is almost a pure vinifera with medium sized bunches of oval, yellow berries, according to the Station fruit specialists, who continue their description as follows: "In texture Seneca is firm like a true vinifera melting and tender, and the flavor is sweet, vinous and aromatic. The skin can be eaten with the berry. The vine is vigorous, healthy, productive and hardy. The variety is highly recommended as a dessert grape."

The three apples varieties to receive awards of merit were Kendall, Milton and Macoun, all of the McIntosh type. The award of merit is the highest award given by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for new varieties shown for the first time at a Society exhibit. Milton ripens about a month ahead of McIntosh, while the other two come in about with McIntosh. Planting stock of these new apples and of the Seneca grape, as well as many other new varieties originated by the Experiment Station can be obtained fom the New York State Fruit Testing Association at Geneva which cooperates with the Station in propagating and distributing its new varieties.

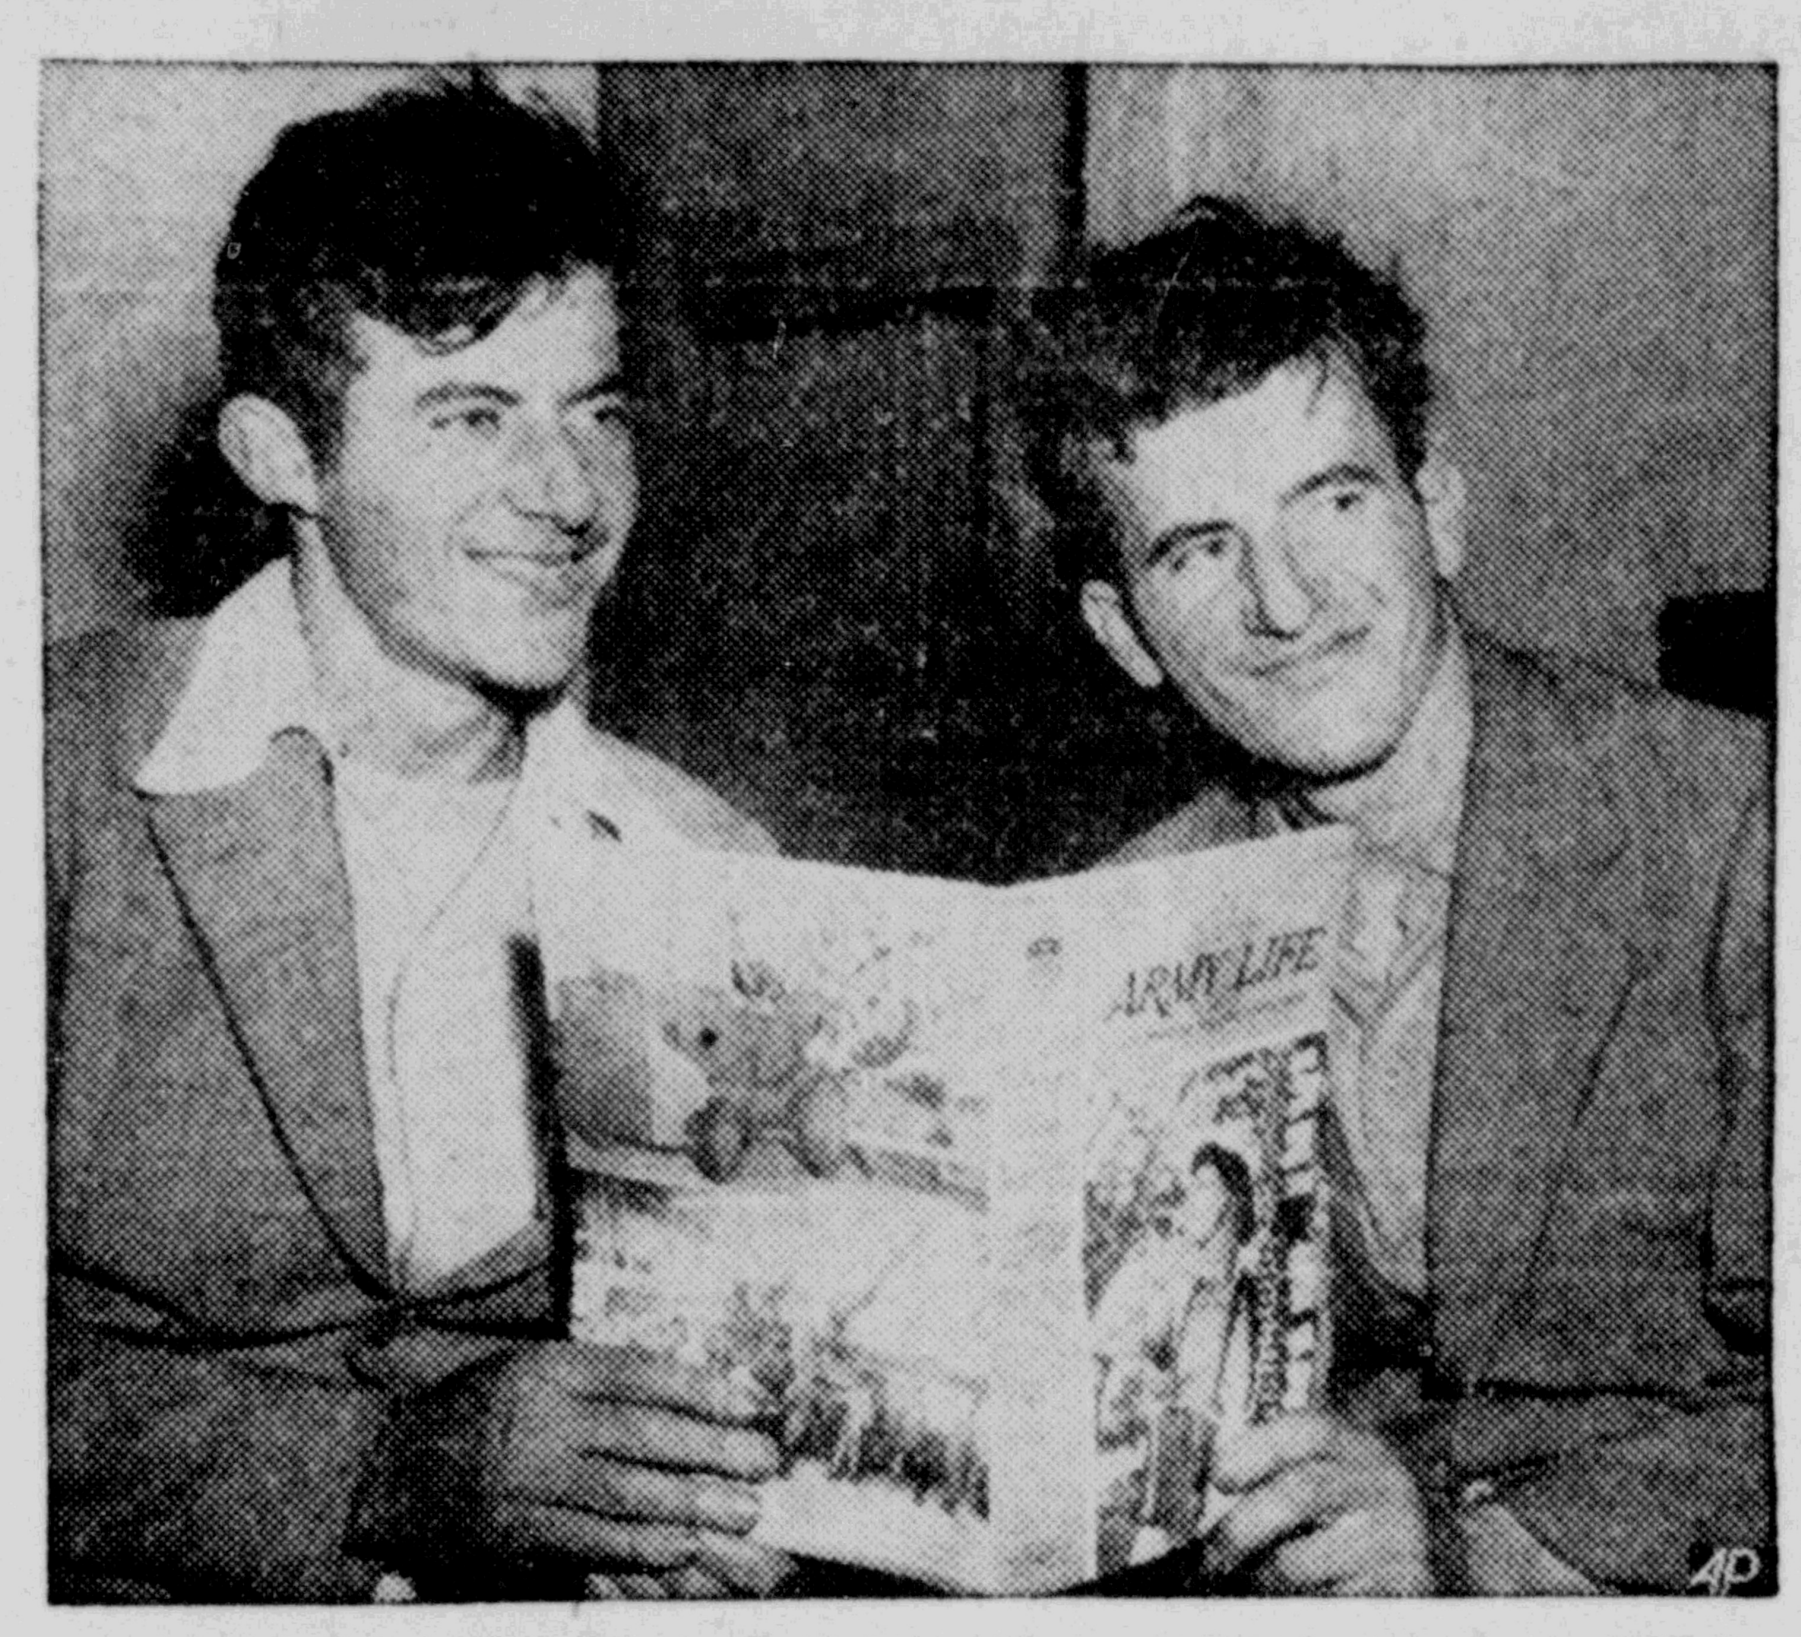
DIDN'T REGISTER—BUT WANT TO FIGHT



Nick (left) and Zack Zachery, 20-year-old twins from Whitesville, W. Va., look over an army life magazine as they await their physical examinations at the U. S. Investigation revealed the twins had failed to register for the draft but a Federal judge paroled them with the proviso that they enlist.

Beef Problem Is Seasonal in Basis, Packers Assert

Chicago, Nov. 12 (AP)—If you are unable to obtain a really good steak in your favorite restaurant, or at your butcher's, it isn't because the army has bought all the choice meat. Both the army and the meat packers were agreed upon that fact today.

A spokesman for the Army Quartermaster Corps said, "the army wants good meat, but we aren't trying to corner choice grades. We buy the average run of stuff, and, because the kind of beef coming to market recently hasn't been as good as in the past, we've even lowered the standards."

Meat packers, admitting there had been a slight drop in the amount of choice beef available to consumers, agreed that it wasn't because the army was taking it all, or any important part of it. They said the army bought "good meat—better than average," but not an excessive amount of choice grades.

Packers said the agricultural marketing administration, which does the lend-lease buying, had purchased very little beef of any type. The A.M.A. concentrates upon pork in the meat field.

Whatever decline might be noticeable in the amount of quality beef available to consumers can be attributed, packers asserted, to the fact that this is not the season for choice, well-fed cattle to come to market.

Aroff Is Dismissed

San Francisco, Nov. 12 (AP)—Maurice Aroff, formerly a lieutenant commander, has been dismissed from the navy, Lieut. Marvin McCarthy, naval press relations officer at Washington disclosed last night. Lieutenant McCarthy declined to elaborate on his brief statement. Aroff was tried by a court martial last summer on charges of misconduct and falsehood.

Waste, Fat Should Be Saved for War

Collection Instructions to Be Put in Markets

The Women's Division of the Kingston Salvage Committee met recently at the home of the chairman, Mrs. E. I. McCaffery, to discuss plans for promoting the salvage and collection of waste fats.

Posters and instruction sheets will be placed in all of the city's meat markets, and leaflets will be distributed through the aid of the schools.

The committee is hoping that the women of Kingston will get behind this drive to make it a success as the government is urgently in need of fats.

The leaflets which are being distributed state briefly four things not to do.

Don't take less than 1 pound at a time to your meat dealer.

Don't take fats to the meat dealer in glass containers or paper bags.

Don't let fats stand so long that they become rancid. If they do, the glycerine content is reduced.

Don't take your fats to the meat dealer on week-ends if you can avoid it. Help him by returning them early in the week.

Girl Scout Troops 5 and 7 are assisting in the collection. The money derived from the sale is turned over to the local Service Men's Center on upper Broadway. Anyone who cannot take the fat to a meat dealer and wishes to help the Girl Scouts in the project, may leave his name at the volunteer defense office and a Girl Scout will call at the home.

OLD OVERHOLT STRAIGHT RYE WHISKEY
A. Overholt & Co. Inc.
BROAD FORD, PA. U.S.A.

For more than 132 years, folks who relish fine rye whiskey have praised the rich, sturdy flavor of Old Overholt. That's why it's now America's fastest-selling bottled in bond rye.

But Old Overholt wants to be friends with everybody. So, to please those who like a milder whiskey—lighter than 100 proof—Old Overholt now also comes bottled out of bond at 86 proof.

You'll find Old Overholt 86 proof distinguished by the same rich flavor—but lighter in body—and lower in price. And, like all Old Overholt—six years old!

Try this 86 proof version of Old Overholt. Taste its fine flavor all through a tall drink—down to the last good drop.

NOTE TO THE "REGULARS"
Don't be alarmed, you Old Overholt fans who like your favorite rye in all the glory of its full 100 proof. Old Overholt also comes—as alway—bottled in bond.

Sleep then, my wee one, the clock ticks a song.
Ida Josephine Brittain.

Gushing Visitor—And has your baby learned to talk yet?

Proud Parent—Oh, my, yes—we're teaching him to keep quiet now!

How Would You Rate?

In the army it seems that in addition to technical requirements for officer candidates there is also a "rating scale" by which the Commanding Officer judges a man's potentialities as an officer A list of more important points as they appeared in a recent issue of Liberty:

He has a sense of humor.

He finishes work he begins.

He accepts orders without quibbling.

He is aware of the limits of his authority.

He grasps the essentials of a situation quickly.

He accepts full responsibility with good grace.

He has the confidence and respect of his associates.

He is accurate in reporting the facts about a situation.

He uses calm judgment in the performance of his duties.

He subordinates personal interests to demands of his assignment.

Would the Commanding Officer recommend YOU as an an officer?

Jack—What did one duck say to the other duck?

Bill—What?

Jack—Social Security.

Bill—Social Security? I don't get it.

Jack—I know you don't. You will when you are 65.

Every good salesman is a partner of the man he is trying to sell.

Boss—What did my wife say when you telephoned her I was detained and would not be home until late?

Secretary—She said could she depend on that.

Team Work

What is the spirit of Britain? It is the spirit of Freedom, Justice and Decency; the spirit of Fairness and Kindliness and Toleration, that cherishes Ideals of the Rights and Dignity of the individual human being. In short, it is the spirit exemplified in the precepts and practice of Co-operation, of Team-work.

The efforts of any one individual are so very small that alone he can accomplish little. It is the co-operative effort of many which achieves the greatest results. The eight-oar crew can outstrip the lone sculler; but the "eight" which wins the race comprises those men who are imbued with one purpose, who work smoothly and rhythmically together—all in perfect harmony, seeking the one common goal. Such is Team-work.

Gypsy—I'll tell your fortune, sir?

Man—How much?

Man—Correct.

Symphony of Rivets

Sing a song of rivets, a factory full of men,
Keep the three shifts going, then start in again.
When the bombs are ready, and the planes in turn,
Won't that be a spicy dish to make the Axis burn?
—Julius Kaplowitz.

Minister—Rastus, this is the first time I have seen you at church for a long time. I'm mighty glad to see you home.

Rastus—I had to come Parson, I needs strengthening. I'se got a job white-washin' a chicken coop.

Hull Denounces Invasion

Washington, Nov. 11 (AP)—Secretary of State Hull today denounced the German invasion of unoccupied France as an act in complete harmony with Hitler's regime of lawlessness and utter disregard of solemn obligations. Hull, asked at his press conference whether he thought the German action would bring France back into the war on the side of the allies, replied that it was too early to discuss that phase of the question.

Legion Ball Is Successful Event

With nearly 1,300 present, the American Legion Armistice Ball at the municipal auditorium, last evening, is the outstanding attendance success of the season thus far. There were a number of service men throughout the audience and by holding the stage show early in the evening more time was left for dancing. The auditorium was decorated with red, white and blue banners, shields of blue and gold holding American flags and posters urging enlistment with the fighting forces and national defense projects.

War is taking a toll from the list of entertainers available also. One of the six acts booked for the ball was cancelled by the draft. Both Sinclair and LeRoy, a comedy team, are now serving in the army and of the team of Fenwick and Cooke, who substituted, Mr. Fenwick reported this morning at 5 a. m. at Fort Jay. This team gave a humorous acrobatic routine including a clever bicycle stunt.

They were followed by The Maginies with their feats of magic in making a ringing alarm clock disappear, siphoning milk from a bottle across the stage to a bowl across the stage by means of a piece of "string" and using the aid of a soldier from the audience in performing several tricks.

Bert Lynn, inventor of the Vibrolynn, presented arrangements on his new guitar instrument, from the recitation of "Mary Had a Little Lamb" to the dronings of planes and bombs in a musical blitzkrieg. With the aid of searchlights and flashes on the darkened stage, this last number was made more realistic to the audience.

The Memory Lane Trio whose total years of harmony in the entertainment world numbers 210, sang three groups of songs popular at the turn of the century and some which have become folk songs of America. They concluded their portion of the program with some of George M. Cohan's popular airs including "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy" and "It's a Grand Old Flag."

Probably the most adroit entertainment was that of voice impressionist Billy Ames who has been heard on the March of Time program and "The Traveling Reporter" shows of the radio. His impressions of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jimmy Fiddler, Walter Winchell, Fred Allen, Raymond Gram Swing, Gabriel Heater and even Mrs. Roosevelt were expertly given. Mr. Ames was recalled to the stage for encores. He obliged with a skit of Jimmy Durante and a familiar tobacco auctioneer. The stage show ended with ball room dance team of Ann Pritchard and Jack Lord.

Lee Mains acted as master of ceremonies and the entertainment was given under the direction of Harry A. Shea of New York city. Mayor William F. Edelmuth formally opened the ball at 8:30 o'clock and a word of greeting was brought to the audience by Commander William Mellert, chairman of the ball.

Preceding the stage show the orchestra under the direction of Jacob Mollott gave a short concert program. This orchestra played for dancing following the show until 1 a. m. Flowers and refreshments were on sale during the evening under the supervision of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

At 11 o'clock, the usual moment of silence was observed in memory of the service men who have died for their country. The colors were presented under the leadership of Edwin Ashby, veteran of World War I and serving in the army now as private first class. He was assisted by two sailors, James Reilly and James Shultz, and two soldiers, Paul J. George and Tony Giaimo. Taps were sounded by Bugler Frank Sass.

Buboltz-Herrick

After the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, after which Mr. and Mrs. Buboltz left for a short wedding trip. Mr. Buboltz will enter army service November 17.

Beck, graduate of New Paltz State Teachers' College, to Sgt. Ernest Flewelling, son of Mrs. Frederick Flewelling of Poughkeepsie. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock on the evening of November 5, in the Army chapel at Kilmer Field, New Brunswick, N. J.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and attended by her sister, Mrs. William Black, as matron of honor. Reginald Flewelling was his brother's best man.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the Roger Smith Hotel, New Brunswick. The bride is a member of the teaching staff of the Huntington Schools. Sergeant Flewelling was graduated from Poughkeepsie schools and attended the Photography School in New York. Prior to entering service he was employed by the New York Telephone Company.

Mrs. Newton Fessenden of Fair street was hostess yesterday to the Atharhacton Club. Mrs. Charles Arnold, vice president, conducted a short business meeting and Mrs. Everett Fessenden gave the paper of the day, a review of the book, "Heads and Tales" by Melvina Hoffman.

The book is an autobiography of Miss Hoffman's work as a sculptress. She spoke of her arrival in Paris in 1911 to study with Rodin, dean of French sculptors and of the outstanding work she did in the figures of the Hall of Man at the Field Museum at Chicago. This group contains authentic studies of the races of men. In order to create this project, Miss Hoffman travelled throughout the world to study the peoples. It ranks as one of the great achievements in the artistic world.

The club will meet next Wednesday at 4 p. m. at the home of Miss Agnes Scott Smith, 222 Hurley avenue. The next meeting thereafter will be Wednesday, December 2.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personally of a House," "The Blue Book of Social Usage," etc.)

"Thank You for Calling" Is A Telephone Courtesy

A reader who tells me that she has noticed the growing custom of saying "Thank you for calling", when any conversation with a friend has ended, writes further: "I've been wondering why telephone etiquette was different from visiting etiquette. That is, when someone calls to see us we don't thank her for coming but rather express pleasure at seeing her."

To this I must answer, Oh but we do! That is, we say, "Thank you for coming to see me," when we mean it. The telephoned expression is perhaps more often said, because it has to substitute for the missing smile and handshake with which we say good-bye to a visitor.

The Doctor Is Also a Captain

Dear Mrs. Post: My fiance is an M. D. and is now a captain in the United States Army. On our wedding invitations how shall his name be engraved? I understand that military titles take precedence over others, and yet I think it is a shame not to identify him with his profession.

Answer: Officially a doctor with the rank of captain, or higher, in the army, is given his military title. According to this, your invitations should be engraved:

Captain John Mason Jones
Medical Corps, United States Army
(smaller type)

Since it is true that identifying a bridegroom with the medical corps does not definitely require that he be an M. D. for this reason "Dr." is on occasion prefixed to his name. But the form given above is the correct one.

Divorcee Runs Into Confusion

Dear Mrs. Post: Since my divorce I've called myself Mrs. Sara E. Black—using this name socially and in business. (I am well known in business). It would, I am sure, be almost in the nature of a shock to most people to receive a wedding invitation from me in the name of Mrs. Black to my daughter's wedding. (White being my maiden name which I've never been known by in this town). Just how wrong would it be to use this name I am known by.

Answer: "Wrong" is not quite the right word, since the objection to "Mrs." followed by a woman's christian name is merely that of the disapproval of people of best taste. Since you are known by this name and by no other, it would certainly seem sensible to use it rather than to assume another on this one occasion.

Saluting Our Flag

Dear Mrs. Post: Please tell me what the dictates of good taste prescribe in the following case: If a woman who is to be an instructor in a public school has a badly deformed right hand, what should she do during the ceremony of saluting the flag when the Pledge of Allegiance is given daily?

Answer: I would suggest that she told out her left hand.

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad however to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "A Dance Can Be Simple." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman P. O. Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y. Leaflets cannot be mailed unless self-addressed envelope bears correct amount of postage. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Mrs. John Hobart Holcomb of Saugerties announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Jean Frances Holcomb, of Catskill, to Douglas V. Bush, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bush of Catskill. Kobel-Schroeder

Mrs. Elly Schroeder, owner of Schroeder's Mountain Lake Resort, and Joseph Kobel of Route 1, Kingston, were united in marriage by Justice of the Peace Leonard Albert of Tillson, Monday, November 9, at 4:30 p. m. at Tillson. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ritter. Mr. Kobel leaves November 13, to report for duty in the United States Army.

FOOD

How to Stretch That Meat

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
Wide World Food Editor

CHICKEN CROQUETTES: Thrifty and unrationed.

With taxes hitting us all harder than ever and living costs so high, the family food budget will need special watching this winter.

One of the best ways to reduce food costs is to serve nutritious and taste-appealing dishes which make meat go farther. You can use meat more often in the form of stews, pot pie, pastry roll and vegetable meat hash or loaf which give the meat flavor without using large amounts.

Meat is one of the best sources of protein in the diet. Milk, cheese, poultry, fish, eggs, dry beans, soy beans and peanuts, however, are also good protein foods. Dry beans are inexpensive, energy-supplying foods and "they stick to the ribs" on cold days. They need to be seasoned with something spicy and especially appetizing.

Chicken Croquettes

3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons minced green pepper
2 tablespoons minced pimiento
½ cup milk
½ cup chicken stock
1½ cups chopped cooked chicken
Sifted bread or cracker crumbs
1 egg, beaten with 3 tablespoons milk and dash of salt

Combine tapioca, salt, paprika, green pepper, pimiento, milk and stock in top of double boiler. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook 8 to 10 minutes after water boils again, stirring frequently. Add chicken and mix thoroughly. Chill. Shape into cones. Roll in crumbs, dip in egg mixture, then roll again in crumbs. Fry in deep fat (390 F.) 1 minute, or until golden brown. Drain. Makes 8.

MEAT VEGETABLE CAKES use a pound of meat to serve 5 or 6: Mix together 1 pound chopped beef (any economy cut), 1 cup boiled rice, 1 cup cooked carrots and 2 tablespoons each chopped celery, parsley and onions. Add ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika and one egg (or 2 yolks). Shape into cakes about 2/3 inches thick. Sprinkle with flour and brown on both sides in 3 tablespoons fat heated in frying pan. Cover and cook 10 minutes over low heat. Top and surround with savory sauce or gravy made from drippings. Serve with stewed tomatoes, cabbage relish salad and fresh apple sauce and ginger cookies for dessert.

PEANUT RICE LOAF: To serve 4 mix together 1 cup chopped salted peanuts, 1 cup boiled rice or bread cubes, ½ cup diced celery, 2 tablespoons each chopped onions, parsley and pimentos. Add ½ cup hot milk, 1 beaten egg, ¼ teaspoon each paprika and salt and 3 tablespoons fat, melted. Pour into buttered baking dish. Bake 50 minutes in moderate oven. Serve with hot tomato sauce, escalloped cabbage, bran muffins and apricot cobbler.

CHEESED EGGS can be prepared in short time and call for simple staples usually found in the refrigerator. Make up 2 cups creamy white sauce, add 2/3 cup grated or finely sliced cheese and 4 hard-cooked eggs, sliced. Cook until blended in double boiler. Stir several times. Add ¼ cup chopped ripe or green olives. Serve with buttered beets, tossed green salad and apple roll with cream.

MACARONI AND CHEESE takes on new interest when some mushrooms are added. Try this: Melt 5 tablespoons butter and add 1/3 cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon each celery salt and paprika. Add 2 cups milk and cook slowly until creamy sauce forms, stir in 2/3 cup sliced or grated cheese and ½ cup cooked or canned mushrooms. Cook slowly until blended. Add 3 cups cooked macaroni and pour into buttered, shallow baking dish. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake 45 minutes in moderate oven. Serve with mashed turnips, grapefruit salad and baked date or raisin pudding with orange sauce.

Pertinent Facts On Conscription

Information has been issued from Washington that shortened furloughs for inductees must begin not later than November 17, but furloughs in the Second Service Command Area, which includes New York State, have been limited to seven days since the first of the month, Brigadier General Ames T. Brown, New York State Director of Selective Service, said today at the direction of National Headquarters of the Selective Service System.

It was explained by General Brown that the length of the furloughs is determined by the War Department. Local Boards are cooperating with the departure of inductees for the Reception Center at the end of the furlough period.

He stated further that many New York State boards are being flooded by requests for information.

"All registrants inducted at the present time within New York State are only entitled to a 7-day furlough at the time of induction if they request it," General Brown said.

Egg Supplies Pooled

Virtual rationing of eggs has been established in New Zealand so as to pool all supplies. The regulations empower the Minister of Marketing to declare marketing areas in which he may determine methods of wholesale and retail sale of eggs. The purpose is to insure that in areas where eggs are required in indefinite quantities for civilian needs, such as invalids and babies, and for military and overseas consumption, the Minister can pool supplies and distribute to the public, after these prior needs have been met.

Navy Men Donate Mattresses to 'Y'

'Y' Can Now Accommodate More Men Overnight

Through the generosity of several Navy men who have been living at the Y.M.C.A. during the time they were stationed in Kingston, at the local shipyards, the Y. will be better able to take care of service men who apply there for sleeping quarters. Several of the Navy men who will shortly be transferred to active duty at sea have donated their mattresses to the Y. since they will be issued new ones when they put to sea.

The local Y.M.C.A. like all Associations throughout the country, offers free sleeping accommodations to service men passing through the city but has been hampered by lack of equipment. In the past, cots have been provided but there were not enough mattresses. Thus the donation of the sailors from the Hiltebrant yard means that more service men can be cared for. This gesture on their part to aid their fellow service men will make it possible to accommodate about a half dozen more service men in the Y. dormitory.

All Y.M.C.A. facilities such as showers, bath, game rooms and other equipment are open free of charge to service men in uniform at all times.

Tax Laws Should Be Known by Cooperatives

Ithaca, N. Y.—Farm cooperatives must be operated strictly within the provisions of the income-tax law to be exempt from corporation income tax, says Prof. Whiton Powell of the New York State College of Agriculture. Farmers who are members, stockholders or directors in farm cooperatives should be sure that their organizations are so run as to be tax-exempt, to avoid embarrassment by a sudden call for funds from the federal tax collector.

Many persons think that farm cooperatives are exempt from tax because they market farm produce or buy farm supplies on a group basis, says Prof. Powell. Actually each cooperative must file with the collector of internal revenue a form which specifies just how the business is operated. Principal rules which make a cooperative legally tax-exempt are the following:

A cooperative must be owned and controlled only by farmers, so only farmers should be members or stockholders with the right to vote.

More than half of the business of the cooperative must be transacted with members or stockholders. In a purchasing business, not more than 15 per cent of the business may be with persons who are neither farmers or members. This means that a cooperative must keep for proof, records of business done each year with each member and non-member.

No Profit

The income tax-exempt cooperative must operate so that no one makes a profit from other persons. Dividends must be limited to 8 per cent on capital stock, for example, and member and non-member patrons must be treated alike. Non-members patrons must receive patronage dividends at the same rate as members. If reserves are built up for later distribution, the cooperative must keep track of how much is due all patrons alike. There must be no way in which member patrons can benefit at the expense of non-member patrons.

Incorrect distribution of patronage dividends is one of the simplest faults by which cooperatives lose their exemption from income tax, says Powell.

Farmers who are members of small cooperatives which buy and sell supplies for a few local communities may find a study of the rulings on corporation taxes valuable to their organization.

Officers of cooperatives who want advice on organization and operation of their business, may request their county agricultural agent to arrange for it.

BACKGROUNDER

Free Nation In Dark Africa

Wide World Features

Liberia, where U. S. troops have established a base, is a republic, founded and developed with American sympathy and financial aid.

Freed slaves from the United States established Liberia in 1822, declared it a republic in 1847, modelled the constitution on ours. This country helped with loans and by buying Liberian rubber, oil, nuts, ivory and ginger.

On the South Atlantic Coast, Liberia faces Europe-South Africa sea routes for about 350 miles. Inland, it extends from 75 to 150 miles.

President is Edwin J. Barclay, serving an eight-year term expiring in 1944, who with his Cabinet forms the Executive branch. The Legislature consists of eight Senators elected for six years, and 15 Representatives elected for four.

Most of Liberia is covered with tropical forests, rich in timber. Railroads are almost totally lacking, but there are many waterways. Total population is 1,500,000; of these 100,000—English-speaking Protestants along the coast—are civilized.

Farmers Are Requested To Make Maple Syrup

Ithaca—Farmers who can "swap labor" and find enough sap buckets and other equipment to tap their sugar maple trees in the spring should be rewarded by a good market for maple products next year.

Extra workers for the sugaring, and new equipment for gathering and boiling maple sap will not be available for the 1943 season, says Prof. James D. Pond, of the New York State College of Agriculture. But every farmer who has a good sugar bush and can manage to operate it, will be furnishing consumers with a fine-flavored sugar or syrup of the kind that was in great demand in 1942.

Some farmers have planned pipelines or troughs to carry sap from high points in the sugar bush to the storage tanks at the sap house, to save much heavy work. Others will plan to tap only the most productive trees. A few maple producers who have tested the sugar content of the sap from various trees will tap only the ones with the sweetest sap.

The "glass age" in containers for maple syrup will really come next spring, predicts Prof. Pond, as no tin containers will be supplied. Probably only a few hundred tin cans for syrup are left over from last year, in the entire state.

Sap and syrup thermometers, and hydrometers for measuring the weight of syrup, are plentiful, so farmers will be able to pack their maple products to meet high standards. Felt filters, needed for graded syrup, are also plentiful.

Esopus Committee Gives Its Report

Nursing Group Report Follows '42 Annual Meeting

The annual report of the Town of Esopus Public Health Nursing Committee was given as follows at the annual meeting October 28, held at the Stuyvesant Hotel:

"This, the fifth year of the existence of the Esopus Nursing Committee, has been a little different from other years because of our endeavor to help the Town Defense Council.

"In January, a Home Nursing Course was given by the Red Cross at our Health Center. The course ran for 16 weeks and the instructor was Miss Schairer of the Kingston Hospital. We also organized a Home Nursing Course in Ulster Park which was held at the school house by agreement with the trustees. Our town nurse, Miss Marie Deyo, conducted this course and also gave First Aid instruction to the Girl Scouts in Port Ewen at the Health Center. A course of lectures on nutrition was held at the Health Center. Mrs. Cyril Small, a trained nutritionist, was the lecturer. We cooperated with the Esopus Fire Department in arranging First Aid classes; one for the firemen, which was conducted by Dr. Till, and one for other men and women which was conducted by Dr. Ingraham and Dr. Ellerbrook.

"In February we spent the whole day at the Center making blankets for a possible emergency. The Red Cross Sewing Circle of Port Ewen, the Ladies' Aid Society of Ulster Park and the Busy Bee Sewing Circle of Esopus all contributed to this enterprise and 23 blankets were finished and turned over to the First Aid Division of the Town Defense Council. It might be of interest to know that the blankets were made of discarded woolen clothes, both men's and women's. The cloth was washed, cut into squares, sewed together and lined with outing flannel and the finished article was good looking.

"Our supply of cod liver oil has gone its sunny way as usual and our sewing group has kept us supplied with obstetrical bundles. Three bundles were used for home deliveries during the year.

"The transportation committee has undergone a change. The lack of gas made the work of this group a problem. It was settled by asking all the clergymen in the township to take over the job. They responded to a man and have been carrying this load for us since May. Forty-seven children were brought to the clinic from the rural areas, with a total of 540 miles driven during the year.

"The Christmas committee made up several gift boxes under the direction of Miss Deyo.

"The State Dental Trailer spent two weeks at the Health Center in March. Of the 55 pre-school children who had been given dental examinations at the clinic during the year, 18 had defects. The defects were remedied by 105 fillings and 15 extractions. Nineteen X-ray plates were made. We feel indebted to our dental hygienist, Miss Rose Mary Mantino, and to the State Health Department for this work.

"On May Day, which is also Child Health Day, open house was held at the Health Center with special exhibits on immunization on display. There were 62 visitors.

"The loan closet has been added to and has been of service to the community. Our hospital bed and two wheel chairs are in constant use, as well as many other items. One tonsillectomy and one pair of glasses were taken care of by the committee.

"We cannot look back on the work of the year without being grateful to our health officer, our supervisor and our town board.

"We have enjoyed working with Miss Deyo and hope this relationship will continue for the mutual benefit of ourselves and the community."

Respectfully submitted,
MRS. PAUL BAILEY.

Nation-Wide Voluntary Meat Rationing Program

Civilian defense volunteers mobilized by Block Leaders in towns and cities throughout the Second Civilian Defense Region, embracing the states of New York, New Jersey and Delaware, were preparing to launch in this area, the nation-wide drive to induce Americans to embark on a voluntary meat rationing program.

The voluntary rationing will be designated as a meat sharing movement, with its object the reduction of civilian meat consumption to 2½ pounds per week so that the nation's meat supplies may be shared with the men of the armed services and with our allies.

George S. Van Schaick, director of the Office of Civilian Defense in the Second Region, formally launched the meat sharing campaign in this area by making public a statement by James M. Landis, U. S. director of civilian defense.

Prefacing the statement by Mr. Landis, Mr. Van Schaick said:

"Civilian defense volunteers—Block Leaders and their aides—have been entrusted with the task of carrying to every home the message that we must share our bounty with our fighting men and with our allies to ensure victory in this war.

"Huge amounts of meat must be supplied to the Army, the Navy and to our allies. That is why civilian consumption of meat must be reduced, or rather limited to 2½ pounds per week for each adult. This is no hardship comparable to those borne by our fighting men and by the civilian populations of other United Nations. Poultry, liver and various other meat products are not included in the rationing plan and meat substitutes, more than adequate to maintain normal healthy protein needs, are amply available.

"When we share meat with our fighting men, we are directly helping them in their battles. When we share with our allies, whose supply is much less than our own even with voluntary rationing, we are likewise aiding them in the fight against the enemy.

"Voluntary meat sharing is no mere patriotic gesture, it is a genuine and important contribution to the war effort."

Mr. Landis' statement follows:

"Block Leaders will contribute directly to our national war program when they win the cooperation of their neighbors in the voluntary conservation of meat.

"Voluntary meat rationing should be clearly understood for exactly what it is—an immediate as well as a longer range plan to fulfill the needs of our armed forces, and, under lend-lease contract, those of our fighting allies.

"It should be made clear that there is no shortage of meat in this country. More meat is being produced this year than ever before in our history, but the demands of war far exceed the demands of peace. We must supply our civilian population, our army, and to a large extent the armies of our allies. We are asked to limit ourselves voluntarily to two and one half pounds of meat each week for each adult: not much less than the average American eats at present, but representing enough of a saving to assure full strength to the battalions of liberty and to help in some measure the hungry, uprooted millions of the earth.

"If one thing is sure in this war it is that food is going to count as a weapon for victory."

Fat Salvage

Yes, it's your scrap fat homemakers, that will help win the war for fat is a vital war material.

A lot of fat is wasted in the average home, so here's a chance for you women who really want to "do something" to help win the war.

There are two things you can do:

Be more thrifty in your own use of fats so that none is wasted, and therefore you buy less.

Save the fats which you might ordinarily throw out, for the national fat salvage campaign.

To prevent strain on the warp threads of rugs, move the vacuum cleaner, the carpet sweeper, or the broom across the rug crosswise instead of lengthwise.

IN WARM STORAGE

Jefferson City (AP) — That fuss overseas caught Robert James with several hundred prize-winning show chickens and he's still stuck with them. James now spends his time keeping his fourteen varieties groomed, for he believes that when the world is normal again show chickens will be in greater demand that ever before. A year ago he made 35 states with 600 unique chickens and geese, displaying them at poultry shows and fairs to the tune of $500 weekly in prize money. His cornish games, cochins, Australian Kewls, Crevecoeurs, Sultans and Polish are biding their time too. "There's very few poultry shows nowadays," James says. "All the boys over the country are selling their birds for next to nothing. Mine are worth more than $5,000 right now, and I wouldn't part with them."

To Play at Ball Thanksgiving Eve

ENOCH LIGHT

Enoch Light and his orchestra, and six acts of Broadway stars, will feature the sixth annual ball of the Congregation Ahavath Israel on Thanksgiving Eve, November 25, in the Municipal Auditorium.

Herman Rafalowsky, general chairman of the annual ball, said today that indications pointed to the fact that this ball would be one of the outstanding social events of the season, and the program of entertainment would be one of the best ever staged in the city.

Light and his orchestra are well known to radio fans. Featuring The Light Brigade, a small six-piece band within the band, the Ocarina Trio, and Starlight, a glamorous young singing star, the band stacks up as one of the outstanding young musical organizations of the country.

Recently the orchestra leader received the plaque of the month awarded by Song Hits Magazine. The award was presented for outstanding musical entertainment. In addition to his ranking as a foremost orchestra leader, Enoch Light also holds a degree from Johns Hopkins University, and he was studying medicine when the Loew and R.K.O. vaudeville theatres offered him a contract to take his college orchestra on a tour of their houses.

The band has been featured from coast to coast and on the continent where the band remained for three years as the outstanding American orchestra in Europe.

ULSTER GIRLS LIKE JOBS

Ulster girls have made an outstanding success of their wartime jobs in factories and work with great zeal, it is disclosed in Belfast. The latest idea to encourage workers who make aircraft parts in dispersal areas is to take them in relays to the main factories where they are shown the assembled planes.

89 Service Men Register At Center During October

During the month of October there were 89 original registrations of service men at the local center. Several of these men came in many times so that there are on the registration book at the present time over 200 entries. Among the men who visited the center were 15 English sailors, six flyers, several men from Stewart Field at Newburgh, besides many of the sailors stationed at the local shipyards, and several army men.

SERVICE MEN'S CENTER

The men who have visited the center have been served lunches and suppers, given tickets for football games, dances and entertainments. Many local people have left their names at the center as being desirous of entertaining the men in their homes for dinner and the men have been sent to their homes for many an enjoyable evening. The committee is deeply grateful to the ladies in the Red Cross Canteen service who have served the meals to the men at the center, and to the many citizens who have entertained them in their homes.

Four hitch-hikers have been sent to Y. M. C. A. for lodging. There was no charge for the service men who were put up over night at the "Y".

Dances are held for the men on Wednesday evenings and every Sunday night buffet suppers are served.

The following donations were received during the month of October: C. M. Thomas, stationery; Harry Van Aken, lock and keys; Mr. Troy, maintenance of juke box; additional furniture and supplies, Mrs. Harry Barnhart, Mrs. Frank Brown, Mrs. C. Freer, Mrs. James Chase, Dr. Mathers, Mrs. Elizabeth Washburn, Elston Sport Shop, Captain Albright and Bundles for Britain.

The following Canteen supplies have been donated: 20th Century Cilub, pies and cake; Schwenks, bread; Peterman's, bread; Ketterers, bread; Grunenwald, bread; Pratt Boice, milk; W. C. T. U., tea and coffee; Harry Beck, bacon and ham; Johnny Pulvirinti, apples; Mrs. A. R. Newcomb, apples; Mrs. Charchian, apples; Mrs. William Hookey, Jr., eggs.

Canteen and food supplies have also been donated by the following: First Aid Class of Port Ewen, Senior Service Scouts Troop No. 11, Mrs. Grace Gadd, Mrs. Francis Bruno, Mrs. De Vall Dunbar, Mrs. Frank Brink, Mr. Hicks. Cigars were donated by Mr. Morgan.

There have been so many magazines donated that it has been hard to keep a complete record of them.

It is with great satisfaction that this report is made, for the members of the committee in charge of the Service Men's Center feel that it is truly serving the purpose for which it was established and that the citizens of Kingston are cooperating in every way.

Condition Is Improved

The condition of James Ray, who has been an employe of the Rhinebeck-Kingston Ferry Company for a number of years, is improving. Mr. Ray has been a patient in the Kingston Hospital since Monday.

Wreath Is Placed on Tablet

Observing the annual Armistice Day ceremonies the American Legion places a wreath at the memorial tablet to those who made the supreme sacrifice in World War, No. 1, as William Mellert, Jr., blows taps, the Rev. War Moves Speedily Toward Formidable Engagements

Cairo, Incredible City, Tries to Be Gay During Strife

By TOBY WIANT and DON WHITEHEAD

Cairo, Nov. 12 (AP)—Incredible Cairo is living in the valley of the shadow of war, trying desperately to be gay and normal, succeeding only in being gay.

There's a note of hysteria in the babble of voices, that constant blatting of automobile horns, the restless surge of humanity through the streets. . . .

We arrived in this ancient city after a 10,000 mile trip from New York expecting to find a grim, gloomy citadel bristling with guns and subdued by the nearness of Rommel's armies.

Instead we found a never-never land of confused unreality where most of the people are trying to forget or ignore the war—and doing very well except for the suppressed excitement which can be felt with electric awareness.

The strange contrasts of Cairo are confusing to the newcomer. The skyline is western, but the heart of Cairo is of the East. And the growing population of Americans and British doesn't alter the fact that Cairo belongs to Egypt.

We are only minutes by air from the desert battleground, and yet we have no feeling of being close to the actual fighting. There is little to remind us that a war is near.

That's because the people seem so unconcerned. They don't talk much about the war. They don't rush to buy newspapers containing the latest communiques. They appear more interested in the boom that has swept Cairo.

Cabarets and bars are crowded mostly with uniformed men celebrating a few hours' leave or just celebrating. They have to drink fast for alcoholic beverages are served only from 12:30 to 2 p. m., and from 6 to 10. You're fortunate to find a seat in a bar.

Movie houses are packed, one theatre showing "The Man Who Came to Dinner" was sold out the other night long before the picture was scheduled to begin.

Hotels Are Crowded

Hotels are crammed with lucky people of many nationalities—lucky because they were able to find a room. It takes pull to get a room on short notice. Apartments are out of reach of persons of ordinary means, and profiteers are having a field day. One man foresaw the rush to Cairo and leased 40 apartments. He sublet them at a total monthly profit of about $2,800.

Since the war began, Cairo's population has doubled. Living costs have soared and still are going up. Simple meals cost $1.50. Beer is 35 cents a bottle and whisky at least 40 cents a drink. Soft drinks cost as much as beer and whisky. American cigarets sell for 50 cents a pack.

There are shortages of rice, corn and wheat. No meat can be bought three days a week. Kerosene and gasoline are rationed, and automobile tires are as scarce as they are in the United States. A black market, where virtually everything can be bought by paying a premium, is beginning to flourish.

At night, it's an adventure in the realm of involuntary manslaughter to ride through Cairo's blackout. Dim blue lights cast an eerie glow through which the taxis plunge without slackening speed. Every minute you expect to see pedestrians bowled over, but somehow they escape with a last-minute leap for safety.

Thick cement barricades five to 10 feet high have been built before some store and cafe entrances to protect customers from flying debris or shell fragments, should Jerry bomb Cairo seriously.

War or no war, the people go ahead with their holidays. The other day Cairo resembled Coney Island on the Fourth of July. Parks and coffee houses were overrun, and the crowds overflowed into the streets. They swarmed over the street cars, climbed onto the tops and hung on the sides.

Cairo is both primitive and modern. Horse-drawn cabs, taxis of forgotten vintage, military motor lorries, sleek limousines and ass-drawn carts flow through the streets in strange procession. Robed Arabs and veiled Moslem women walk side by side with creations that might have come from Bond street and Fifth avenue.

From one doorway comes the quavering wail of Egyptian music and from another the hot rhythm of American jive. On the edge of the desert a motor caravan whirls in a cloud of dust past a camel caravan. There is dirt, ugliness and poverty alongside cleanliness, beauty and wealth.

There still is a brisk business in tourist trade even if most of the tourists are in uniform. Soldiers on leave from the desert wander through the bazaars and haggle over prices.

At the edge of the city where the desert meets the green of the Nile valley, children clamber about the bases of the pyramids.

Alfeo Faggi, of Woodstock, prominent American sculptor, is shown with a model of his "From the Cross," which was purchased last year by Mrs. Evelyn Shaw Judson, scluptress, and which was awarded the Chicago Art Institute's Logan Memorial Prize last month. Mr. Faggi, who is famed throughout this country for his religious sculptures, notably his "Stations of the Cross," which is in a Chicago Roman Catholic cathedral; his bronze doors; his "Pieta" and "St. Francis," also is a portrait sculptor of distinction. Outstanding among his portraits is a bust of Tagore, East Indian poet. Mr. Faggi will have a one-man show of drawings this winter at the Ferrargil Galleries, New York. During World War 1 Mr. Faggi left his wife and infant son to serve in the A. E. F. and was wounded in action. His son, John Faggi, enlisted in the U. S. Forces the day after Pearl Harbor. The Faggis have been residents of Woodstock since 1921.

Nelson Says Africa Is Only Beginning For United Nations

W.P.B. Chief Says We Have Only Made Beginning in Reconquest of Great Areas

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—Cautioning against over-optimism over war developments, Donald M. Nelson warns that "what is happening in Africa is only a beginning, not an end . . . The German military organization is immensely powerful; it has lost heavily in Russia, but it will still take a lot of licking."

"And on the other side of the world," the War Production Board chief told the Association of National Advertisers last night, "we have only made the barest beginning in the reconquest of the immense and wealthy territories seized by Japan."

He said "there is no present reason to suppose that this is going to be a short war," but he asserted that the American economy was sufficiently vital and flexible to crush the enemy without crumbling in the process.

"It has a greater adaptability," he declared, "than our enemies dreamed; greater, I suppose, than we ourselves suspected."

He said the peacetime distributive and marketing machinery had found a vital, although "vastly different," role in the war economy and could help cushion the conversion to an all-our war effort.

Through it, he added, "our basic structure can be preserved and kept sound for the years of peace and prosperity which lie ahead."

Nelson declared that advertising was an "essential part of our communications system," adding:

"We dare not destroy or cripple that communications system in wartime, and we have no remotest desire to do so."

He said he saw "no reason why any man should assume, now, that no scope is going to be left for the free exercise of his talents; I see no reason to assume that the field is going to tighten up so much that advertising will not still have an important job to do in the distribution of goods."

"While in ordinary times it is advertising which provides the urge for mass production," he said, "today it is the war itself which provides that urge. Advertising has nothing to do with it, and the vital role which it ordinarily fills is denied to it for the duration of the emergency."

The civilian economy, he continued, must be kept sound since a wobbly economy could not carry a huge war program "any more than a half-starved man can do a heavy day's labor."

He declared that some of the things that must be done to win the war would give businessmen "some severe headaches," adding that one of them came in connection with concentration of industry.

Chick Pea Coffee Is Prospect Now

Santa Barbara, Calif., Nov. 12 (AP)—Coffee drinkers may soon be brewing an ersatz coffee, made from garvanzos, a chick pea grown here and in Mexico.

Ordinarily garvanzos are cooked like peas or beans, but the county agricultural extension service reported today that heavy shipments of them have been made to several major coffee companies. Santa Barbara county produced nearly 200,000,000 pounds of them last year and has a larger planting this season.

Snowstorm Covers Buffalo Region

State Police Request All Travel Be Reduced

Buffalo, N. Y. Nov. 12 (AP)—From one to five inches of snow cover sections of western New York following the season's first prolonged downfall last night which hampered highway traffic and led state police to request all unnecessary travel be curtailed.

The storm draped Buffalo and suburban areas with one to four inches of soggy snow and made streets slippery and hazardous for motorists. The roof of a two-story building collapsed under the weight of the snow.

An unidentified male pedestrian, about 65, was killed when he was struck by a car in downtown Buffalo.

At Wanakah in southern Erie county, state police reported four to five inches of wet snow. Roads were open but slippery. At Batavia, police said two inches of slush covered highways while at Westfield approximately one inch of snow fell.

Pictures of War in Egypt Shown at Rotary Luncheon

Graphic portrayal of the war in Egypt was viewed by members of the Rotary Club at the noon luncheon-meeting held Wednesday at the Governor Clinton Hotel. The news reel shown by Andre Ceurvorst depicted the land, sea and air battles in the fight for Egypt.

Before the movie reel, Mr. Ceurvorst told of his experience in Egypt after his escape from Holland. The conditions under which our men are fighting in Africa and Egypt were emphasized by the speaker. A full appreciation of the severe conditions there, he stated, can only be had by actual experience. Knowing these conditions, the work of the Allied troops deserve the highest praise, he asserted.

Mr. Ceurvorst was introduced by Henry Fagher, program chairman.

Expenditures by the American public for personal services during 1942 will total $15,662,000,000, an increase of 10.7 per cent compared with 1941, according to the Department of Commerce.

Rationing Lessens Taxable Sales of Gasoline in State

Commission Reports Drop in First 9 Months of Year Is About 29 Per Cent

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 12 (AP)—Rationing cut taxable sales of gasoline approximately 29 per cent the first nine months of 1942, with a proportionately heavy reduction of state revenue.

The State Tax Commission reported today 1,105,059,142 gallons of taxable fuel sold between January 1 and October 1, a decline of 326,577,565 gallons under the same period last year. Gasoline for farm machinery and certain other uses is not subject to the four cents a gallon state levy.

While total tax losses due to rationing were not reported, the effect was shown in October collections on September gasoline sales. The collections were 31 per cent lower than last year. The state received last month $1,747,000 less than the $6,437,646 it collected in October, 1941.

The 25 per cent reduction of the personal income tax, effective this year and next, and reduced sales of alcoholic beverages—except beer and liquor of low alcoholic content—were other factors cited in a $6,407,598 loss in October tax revenue.

The state collected $31,135,895 from 19 revenue sources, with personal income taxpayers remitting $9,228,143, or $2,350,600 less than a year ago. The beverage tax yield dropped $1,230,757 below last year's October figure of $4,401,731.

Revenue from transfer and estate taxes totaled $1,440,977 — a loss of $1,168,953—but "relatively small" increases were reported from some corporation taxes and levies on unincorporated business, income of utilities, cigarettes, parimutuel betting and racing admissions.

Ruling Says W.L.B. Controls Labor Disputes

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—A mediation panel held today that the War Labor Board has jurisdiction over labor disputes of all employes in the United States, including municipal workers, under the wage stabilization order of October 3.

The contention was made in recommending the reinstatement of workers who were discharged by the Newark, N. J., Department of Public Works after a six-day strike of 400 city employes there last month.

In a report signed by two of the three members—the employer member dissented—the panel majority said:

"The activities of municipal employes may be, and in this case are, just as intimately connected with the war effort as those of other employes. Unrest and dissatisfaction arising out of terms and conditions of employment among municipal employes can hamper the successful prosecution of the war.

"The prosecution of a foreign war being within the exclusive province of the federal government, it is unthinkable that the National War Labor Board would endanger the war effort by failing to concern itself with the problems of municipal employes to the same extent that it concerns itself with the problems of those employed by private individuals or corporations."

The Newark strike followed a dispute between the Public Works Department and C.I.O.'s State, County and Municipal Workers of America. Sixty-five of the strikers, "including virtually all the officials of the local union," were refused reinstatement, the report said.

Agudas Achim Will Hold Union Service Friday

The local Aleph Zadik Aleph, Junior B'nai B'rith will participate in the largest nationally organized program of Jewish religious services conducted by youth on Friday, November 13, at the Congregation Agudas Achim, 24 West Union street, for the three local congregations.

Walter Suskind, chaplain of the chapter will act as rabbi. S. Werbalowsky, president of the organization will deliver the sermon. Cantor M. Brown and the A. Z. A. choir will officiate at the service.

An opening prayer will be delivered by B. Shendler and a closing prayer by L. Rabin. Rabbi Bernard Gershuny, chairman of the A. Z. A. will deliver an introductory address. Rabbi Herbert Bloom, member of the advisory board will greet the gathering. Bernie Cohen, president of the local B'nai B'rith Girls will participate in the program.

Hy Hayes, director of the New York region will be the guest speaker of the evening. A social hour will follow the service.

Launched in 1927, A. Z. A. Sabbath is a part of the year-round A. Z. A. program of religious services, observance of all religious holidays by chapter programs, and annual contests in sermon writing and Hebrew letter-writing.

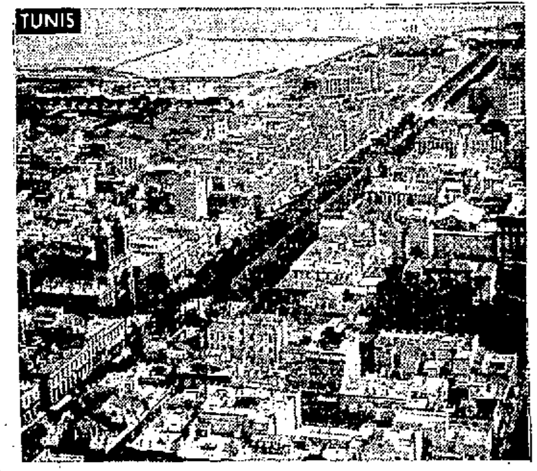
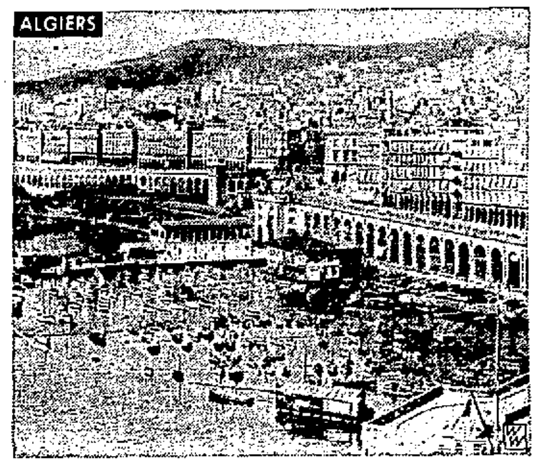
TRIPOLI, largest city in Libya, has a population of 108,000 and the best harbor between Alexandria and Tunisia. Homes of the well-to-do sit on hills overlooking the shore.



TUNIS is two cities: One European, modern and gay; the other native, with most buildings dating from the 13th to 15th century. Its population totals 220,000.



ALGIERS, with 250,000 people, as a European-type city with modern homes, arcaded streets. Before the war its port was second only to Marseilles in the French Empire in the amount of tonnage cleared.

Peacetime Reconstruction Should Embrace Bargaining, Dr. Boland Tells Conference

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 12 (AP)—Peacetime economic reconstruction should embrace "the permanent and bona fide acceptance of the principle of collective bargaining," the New York Conference on Social Work was told today.

"Labor-management cooperation is an outgrowth of collective bargaining," the Rev. Dr. John P. Boland, chairman of the State Labor Relations Board, asserted, adding, "American employers are interested in it."

He cited the importance of collective bargaining "in keeping production continuous, in filling the pockets of the manufacturer's best customers, his own employe, with the capital needed to take the finished goods off the retailers' shelves. . . ."

The Rev. I. Gannon, Fordham University president, asserted that "if the war proves to be a long one, 500 colleges may be sacrificed," but "more disturbing" is the war's threat to "the family and to religion."

"With regard to religion, . . . prayer, charity, suffering, duty, chastity, public worship which everyone understood in less enlightened times, the ignorance of our people, even of some university graduates, is becoming, if possible, more abysmal because of the war," he added.

The Rev. Mr. Boland asserted that out of the war should come "a continuation of the system of free, private enterprise . . . but with all the restrictions which social legislation during the past 40 years has rightfully imposed upon it. It is individual ownership with a social outlook."

New York needs and expects to call shortly about 200,000 women for war industry work, Miss Elsie M. Bond, child care committee chairman of the State War Council, told a section of the conference last night.

Service Cross Goes To Flier's Widow

Mrs. Colin P. Kelly Gets Added Decoration

March Field, Calif., Nov. 12 (AP)—Colin P. Kelly was honored again today. His widow received the distinguished service cross in recognition of his gallantry in sinking a Japanese warship before he crashed to his death early in the war.

The distinguished flying cross posthumously awarded to Kelly for gallantry in the same action was presented to his widow last April.

Maj. Gen. Barney M. Giles, March Field air force commander, was selected to make today's presentation.

Goal Will Be Reached

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—America's merchant shipbuilding goal of 8,000,000 tons in 1942 will be reached, Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the United States Maritime Commission and head of the War Shipping Administration, said today. He told the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, of which he is president, that not only would the 1942 program be met but that President Roosevelt's demand for 16,000,000 tons of ocean-going vessels in 1942 would be fulfilled.

Sergeant Is Upset

An advance base in the South Pacific, Oct. 18 (Delayed) (AP)—Sergeant Ted Fuller of Canton, O., is the conscientious — and embarrassed—crew chief of a transport plane.

The plane was about to take off and Sergeant Fuller carefully checked the weight and the number of passengers. He found both just right and closed the cabin door.

Up dashed a jeep, a man jumped out, ran to the plane and pounded on the door. Fuller stuck his head out and said:

"Sorry, there's no more room. We've got a full load now."

The newcomer just grinned and said: "Guess I'll have to go along, sergeant;——I'm the pilot.

Middle East Leader Pins Medals on Officers, Troops in Hospital

Cairo, Nov. 12 (AP)—Moving swiftly from headquarters to advanced air fields to army hospitals, the new commander of the U. S. forces in the middle east yesterday decorated nearly a hundred officers and men who have been fighting the enemy for months in the air.

Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews pinned the Distinguished Flying Cross on Major Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, commander of the U.S.A.A.F. in the middle east, for gallantry last April in an attack on the Andaman Islands, in the Bay of Bengal.

The Brereton award and several others were made at U.S.A.A.F. headquarters and then Brereton and Andrews, with the latter at the controls, flew to several air bases many miles from Cairo to honor American fliers who paused just long enough in battle operations to receive their awards.

Several other decorations were conferred at three hospitals in the Cairo area where wounded airmen were convalescing.

Brereton's award was announced by the war department in Washington October 30.

Lieut. Lyman Middleditch, of Highland, N. J., was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for his fighting in the Egyptian desert battle.

The awards included 51 silver stars for gallantry in action, 28 Purple Hearts for wounds in action, four Distinguished Flying Crosses, three soldier's medals, two air medals and one Distinguished Service Cross.

A silver star went to Lieut. Alden N. Wood, White Plains, N. Y.

State Farmers Planting Winter Wheat Very Late

Albany,—A much larger proportion than usual of the winter wheat of the State has been planted very late this fall, according to a Federal-State report issued from the New York State of Agriculture and Markets. Two principal factors have contributed to this lateness in seeding.

Frequent and heavy rains have in a great many instances kept the fields too wet for operations. Much wheat is seeded after dry beans, ensilage, corn, etc. are harvested, and since this harvesting was delayed by the rains, the preparation of the fields for wheat was also delayed.

The other big factor has been the shortage of farm labor which has brought about a series of delays, the most important of which are the harvesting of the fall crops and the preparation of the ground for seeding.

A late growing season with plenty of warm weather will be of great assistance to this late seeded wheat, but an early freeze-up would mean a large amount of winter wheat abandonment.

The early seeded wheat shows a high condition since it has had mostly mild temperatures and a plentious supply of moisture, while much of the late planted wheat shows only a small amount of growth to date. However, many of the varieties of winter wheat used in New York State are much hardier than those used a few years ago, and this may be to the advantage of the late seeded wheat. Unless the late seeded grain gets a good root growth before winter sets in it will suffer considerably during the winter and early spring.

The Central Bank of Ecuador, located at Quito, has called United States currency for deposit. Simultaneously exportation and importation of the currency has been forbidden, although the government has provided for remittance of dollars to Ecuadorians living abroad and an exchange system for tourists. Parallel to Days Of Carthage Looms In Mediterranean

As Things Stand, Only One Power Can Survive, Fascist or Democratic, in Modern World

(This column, conducted as a daily feature by DeWitt Mackenzie, is written today by Glenn Babb. Mr. Mackenzie, now touring the war zones, is travelin.)

The focal point of this global, lightning war shifts hundreds of miles in a single day. Yesterday it was Morocco and Algeria. Today it is Tunisia. The indications show that a race for that key to the Mediterranean is developing between the formidable air fleets of Hitler and the newly launched American-British combination of mechanized land forces and air and sea power.

The war thus moves to one of history's most sanguinary and decisive battlefields. Modern Tunis was built near the site of ancient Carthage and along that shore was fought out the last bitter-end struggle of the Punic wars. Then, as now, two forces contending for mastery of the known world clashed. One was destroyed with a completeness that has few parallels.

Adolf Hitler four days ago took occasion to reiterate that two worlds are locked now in a struggle which only one can survive. There would be historic justice therefore if the site of Carthage should witness one of the most fateful chapters of this struggle. The United Nations are pledged to the destruction of the Nazi world order—as distinguished from the misguided human masses that live now under its direction — as complete as that which Scipio Africanus visited on Carthage after its fall in 146 B. C. The ruins were dedicated to the infernal gods, salt was spread above the rubble, human habitation in the whole area was forbidden.

Hitler apparently has reached the Tunisian battlefield first, dropping a few hundred or few thousand air force troops on its chief air bases while marines of his Italian allies have sought to seize the big naval base at Bizerte. This doubtless is only the vanguard of the forces the fuehrer will seek to throw into Tunisia before the American armored columns plunge across the western border or the British fleet is able to bring overpowering strength against Bizerte. The Americans probably already are well along the roads through Eastern Algeria, although up to this morning there was no definite word of their presence farther east than Bougie, 200 miles from the frontier and 280 from Bizerte.

Some dispatches suggest that Hitler, compelled to fall back on his air power since he can not contest Allied command of the seas, will mobilize to the full his luftwaffe, first to seize the air fields, then land infantry and perhaps light armored units, then seek mastery of the skies against the big fleets of bombers and fighters the Americans and British are moving both eastward and westward along the African shore toward a mighty convergence in Tunisia.

There is one suggestion that Hitler may throw as many as 3,000 planes into the battle for the central Mediterranean. This may be beyond his means, but the chances of seeing one of the greatest aerial battles of this war, perhaps the greatest, are good.

Hitler's drive to France's Mediterranean coast clearly shows he realizes that a decisive new phase of the war is opening, one that he can not afford to let go by default. At any rate the skies above the narrow waters—it is less than 100 miles from Cape Bon in Tunisia to Sicily—are sure to be dark with the air fleets.

There is a parallel between the North African campaign now taking form and Britain's tragic effort to aid Greece a year and a half ago. The British knew, when they sent an army across the Mediterranean, that the odds were tremendously in favor of the enemy, who had dictated the choice of battlefield. Also they had to leave one halfwon victory, over the Italians and Germans in Libya, and sacrifice the men and weapons needed to complete it to uphold a cause already as good as lost. Hitler undoubtedly will have to weaken his armies in Russia, perhaps draw on them so heavily that they must pass definitely to the defensive, to fight for Tunisia and attempt to rescue Rommel.

So, if all goes well for the United Nations, somewhere along the African coast there should be an Axis version of the British disasters of Greece and Dunkerque. Tunisia is as likely a place as any.

Britain Has a Kaiser

Britain has in E. C. Gordon England of the Engineering Industries Association a champion of the ideas which made Henry Kaiser famous as the wonder man of the United States, it is reported in London. He advocates for Britain an air merchant service of 5,000 planes. Such a fleet, he says, could bring nearly a million men to Britain in 15 hours, could make a round Atlantic trip every four days, moving 150,000 tons of freight a week in both directions.

Minnesota University Has Developed New Flax Type

Coincident with the pinching off of flaxseed imports from South America, the University of Minnesota announced that it has developed a new flax—Biwing—of higher average quality and yielding ability than varieties now grown here.

Five years ago, more than 75 per cent of the flaxseed crushed in the United States for linseed oil, one of the chief ingredients of paint and varnish, was imported from South America. Gradually production here was stepped up, but even last year more than 24,000,000 bushels of seed were imported, compared with a domestic crop of 31,485,000 bushels.

During the first six months of this year approximately 7,790,000 bushels of seed were imported but it now appears that will be all for 1942, as the War Production board has halted flaxseed shipments from South America because of a lack of shipping space.

Thus, domestic production must be stepped up materially, and it is the hope of Minnesota agronomists that the Biwing variety will play an important part in lessening the impact of the import restriction. It is expected to yield appreciably above the ten-bushel-per-acre state average of recent seasons.

Adding to the cash income farmers get from the crop is the manufacture of cigarette papers from flax straw, an industry which developed when the war limited imports of this type of paper. Farmers previously had considered the straw worthless. The meal remaining after the oil has been extracted has been a standard livestock feed for years.

Woman Does Governing

For more than a year, the shire of Ethridge, in North Queensland, has been governed solely—and with unusual efficiency—by a woman, Mrs. Ethel Latchford.

In addition to the administration of all local government business, Mrs. Latchford had collected taxes, enforced ordinances and in some instances performed the duties of magistrate.

She was appointed in the fall of 1941 after the Ethridge shire council, composed exclusively of men, decided its continued deadlocks over various matters were holding up business and asked to be dissolved.

Shandaken Health Committee Reports

Summary of Work for '42 Is Given at Meeting

The Public Health Nursing Committee of Shandaken reported the following summary of work at the annual county meeting October 28 at the Stuyvesant Hotel:

The Town of Shandaken Nursing Committee extends greetings of 1942 to the fourth annual regional meeting.

We now hold our consultations in our new health center rooms at Allaben. These rooms consist of a large reception room, doctor's consulting and examining room, a room for the dental hygienist and a toilet and washroom completely equipped for our little children. We have a large supply closet and ample space for our loan closet. Fluorescent lighting and new oil heaters.

Our record for the past year is as follows:

One hundred and twenty-seven pre-school children examined by doctor.

Eighty-seven children vaccinated.

Forty-seven children given toxoid.

Twenty children treated at the dental trailer in addition to the many pre-school children who were treated by the dental hygienist at the consultations.

Our town health officer, Dr. Charles Quinn, held a clinic for school children this year and 103 children were vaccinated and given toxoid.

We distributed two gallons of cod liver oil last year and are starting this fall with two gallons.

Our obstetrical bundles the past year cost over $60, so you can readily see that the population of our town is increasing.

We work in close cooperation with Miss O'Shea and at the present time have eight orthopedic cases.

This year we had Dr. Joseph Ferriola and R. Kittley, his assistant, with the dental trailer. Seventeen clinics were held. We started with 25 patients and finished 20. Twenty-five X-rays were taken, nine anesthesias given, 13 extractions, 130 silver fillings in baby teeth, 37 fillings in permanent teeth, two cement fillings in baby teeth, two temporary fillings in baby teeth, nine silver nitrate treatments. There were 13 children examined for the first time, 12 children re-examined and 95 revisits.

Our county nurse, Miss Behrens, has had a very trying and busy year. She certainly has endeared herself to our community. Many of her cases needed daily care and she has never failed to make her daily visit.

We have been handicapped this year by transportation, as every one has. Owing to the gasoline and tire restrictions we are now using the buses for certain districts and it seems to be working out fairly well.

We have noticed this year, that the parents seem to be in better financial condition and all tonsil and eye cases have been taken care of by the parents.

Through the appreciation of one of the mothers, whose children have been attending our clinics since we started three years ago, our health rooms are kept spotlessly clean.

The town of Shandaken Nursing Committee wishes to take this opportunity of thanking our town board for its wonderful cooperation in renovating the health center. It also appropriated $800 for the use of the health center this year.

Respectfully submitted,
MRS. W. H. CRUICKSHANK,
President, Shandaken Public Health Nursing Committee.

Taking It and Liking It

Australian soldiers are noted for their great fighting ability—and toughness—but one American infantry division, training somewhere in the Commonwealth for the fight against the Japanese, has impressed Australian newspaper men and radio commentators as about the last word in taking it and liking it.

Gordon Williams of the Australian Broadcasting company recently traveled with this division on maneuvers. In 10 days, carrying full equipment—an average of about 62 pounds—they traversed some of the wildest jungle country in Australia. They marched, during one five-day period, more than 122 miles, preparing their own food. They went at top speed in the sham fighting. Some platoons had to carry heavy mortars through the jungle growth. They made it on schedule and not one man fell by the wayside.

"They impressed one as being a division of lumber jacks," said Williams, "but really every man jack of them, according to personnel officers, came from some urban center in the United States. If this division is a sample of the American army as a whole, and I am assured that it is not different from the others, then I cringe to think of what will happen to the enemy when the heat's really on."

VOLUNTARY meat rationing (2½ lbs. per person weekly) is under way, government rationing is to come. Meat's main value in diet is muscle-building protein. This chart shows the quantity of other types of food that supply the same amount of protein as one pound of red muscle meat (pork, veal, beef, lamb). The substitutes won't make up entirely for meat, however, because some of the proteins, particularly the vegetable, are of less value; and the iron and vitamin contents vary, but are usually less.

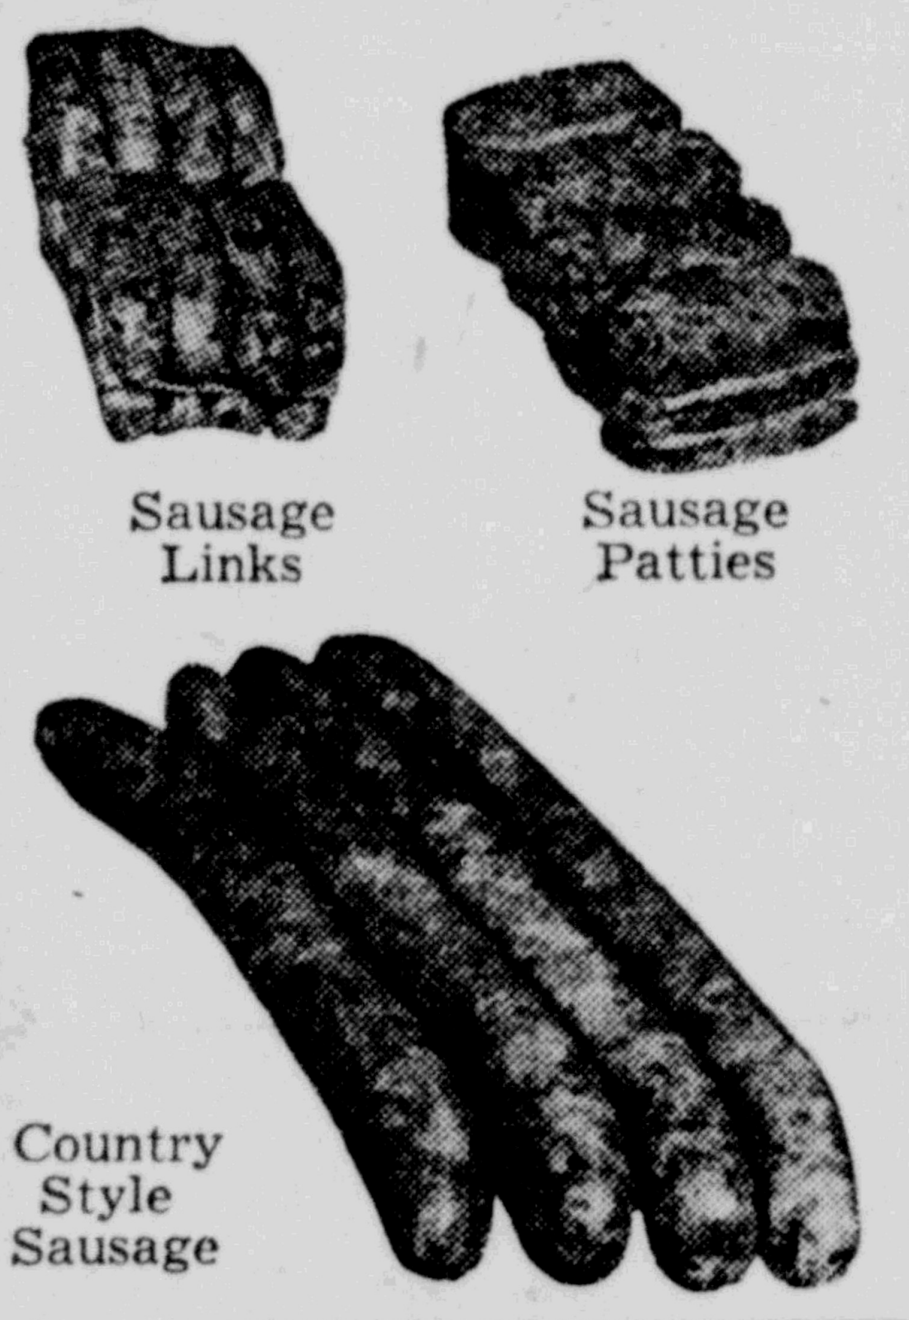
Your Food—and Nutrition

In planning an adequate diet for adults and children, the entire day's food ration should be considered as a whole. The "yardstick" of good nutrition, recommended by the government, lists eight groups of food to be eaten every day. By planning three substantial meals a day, a sufficient amount of each group of food can be included without difficulty.

This means that breakfast has become a real meal again. Fruit, eggs, and part of the day's requirement of meat may be eaten at breakfast. Sausage, bacon and ham slices are favorite meats for breakfast because they are tempting to the appetite, easily prepared and a good source of energy.

Skimpy breakfasts are out, for the duration. If you aren't doing enough work to need a hearty first meal of the day, you aren't doing your share! But the chances are that you do need this added nourishment, whether you realize it or not. Many persons not accustomed to busy days have been doing themselves harm by eating too little in the morning.

Begin the day with a breakfast that will "stand by you" at least until noon. Homemakers should see that each member of the family follows this rule. That includes the school children who need energy for work and play.



A Tip-Top Breakfast Dish

Country style sausage and scrambled eggs on toast points, are a fast. It is a combination good for fine main dish for a hearty break lunch or supper as well.

This doesn't mean that breakfasts need be fussy meals, or hard to prepare. Simple, everyday fare such as sausage and scrambled eggs, added to the usual menu of fruit juice, toast and coffee, will turn a snack into a real meal.

Delicious for Breakfast

Sausage as breakfast fare has two important features. It is tasty enough to whip up even a lazy appetite, and it is easy to cook. In addition, it is nutritious. The fat it contains is a fine source of energy, and the lean part of the pork provides protein, minerals and vitamins.

Pork sausage comes in three familiar styles. There is the bulk sausage, which can be shaped into patties, the little sausage links and country style sausage, which is contained in a continuous casing to be cut into any desired lengths.

Sausage should be cooked slowly, in moist heat. Here is the standard method of cooking sausage links or country sausage. It isn't necessary to prick the links when they are cooked at low temperature.

Sausage Links

Place the sausage in a cold frying pan. Add about two tablespoons of water. Cover the pan and cook slowly until the water evaporates. Remove the cover and allow the sausage to brown.

Bulk Sausage

Shape into patties. Place in skillet over low heat and cook slowly until they are a golden brown on both sides, and thoroughly cooked through.

Eggs can be scrambled in the sausage drippings after the sausage has been removed from the pan. Pour off the excess fat, and don't waste any of it.

HOME BUREAU

The Kingston Home Bureau unit will hold a foods meeting, November 17, at 1 o'clock at the Home Bureau Office, Wall street. The leader will be Mrs. Charles Seligman.

Brazil Produces Fuel

Brazil is getting charcoal and important by-products from a pilot plant recently constructed in Sao Paulo because of the scarcity of charcoal and strategic chemicals. The plant which has a daily capacity of half a ton of charcoal, also produces acetic acid, methyl alcohol, and tar acetone, as well as non-condensable gases, including butene, hydrogen, and methane. Engineers favored an initial plant four times larger, but shortage of equipment compelled adoption of a more conservative plan.

Is it ever wise to borrow money?

We don't believe anyone should ever borrow to buy things that are not actually needed . . . nor should they get a loan for any unessential purpose.

There are times, however, when a loan is the only wise solution to a money problem, or when it is to a person's advantage to borrow. For instance, to pay off a debt, for medical, hospital or dental expenses, car or house repairs, or some other worthy purpose. In such cases we'd like to serve you.

'Personal' makes loans on signature, furniture or auto, and doesn't involve your friends or employer. Sensible monthly payments are arranged. $9.75 a month repays a $100 loan in 12 months and other amounts are in proportion. If you need $10 to $300 and a loan is the best solution to your problem, come in or phone us today.

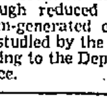
Highway Robbery

Zanesville, O., (AP) — Mystery: Who stole the 3,000-pound road grader? Muskingum and Perry county officials would like very much to know. It disappeared from a highway in Madison township, Perry county, where it had been used in recent coal stripping operations. Deputy Sheriff Marsh Summers theorized that the grader, a motorless type, might have been taken apart and carried away piecemeal. Anyway, it's gone—and township roads are going unattended.

Conservation of coal in Chile through reduced consumption of steam-generated electricity is being studied by the Government, according to the Department of Commerce.

Why Be Troubled By Wartime Constipation?

Avoid one of the common causes—lack of "bulk"!



No wonder so many folks feel "all done in" these war days! It's the way we live—longer hours, harder work, irregular eating habits. And in this hurly-burly, meals are apt to be rushed, improperly balanced—and the important matter of "bulk" overlooked.

What a difference getting enough "bulk" might make! For lack of it is one of the common causes of constipation. In such cases, medicinal laxatives are only "makeshift" remedies; they don't correct the cause!

Odd But Science

By H. W. BLAKESLEE
Wide World Science Editor

Schenectady, N. Y. — Masks which are incredibly thin, made of a transparent plastic less than one-tenth of a wave length of light, are being photographed by the electron microscope.

The masks are of the polished faces of samples of metal. After rouge and all other scientific ingenuity has done its utmost in polishing a flat metal surface, the face is still full of hills and valleys, peaks and pits.

The plastic masks, when peeled off such a polished surface, retain on the under side the impression of these irregularities. The result is that the thickness of the film varies greatly, despite its unbelievable thinness.

When placed under an electron microscope, this plastic mask permits the electrons to pass through to the photographic film. But less electrons get through the thicker parts of the mask, since electrons have very little penetrating power.

The result is a shadow photograph of X-ray type, where the shadows are light or dark, exactly like the patterns of hills and valleys in the mask. The photograph therefore is a perfect picture of the face of the polished metal, despite the fact that the electron eye never saw this face.

By this system the electron microscope enlarges the irregularities of the metal face by about 20,000 diameters.

Plan Crop Rotation For Larger Yields

Ithaca—New York farmers who plan the field layout for their 1943 cash crops this winter may thus help to conserve labor and fungicides that would otherwise have to be used in plant disease control, says Prof. Charles Chupp of the New York State College of Agriculture.

The most accurate crop rotation plan can be made on a map of the farm drawn to scale, and bearing a record of the crops grown on all fields during the past few years. It will pay a farmer to take one or more evenings to work out a plan of planting for 1943, as prevention of diseases will save cost of labor and fungicides used in disease control, and also help to prevent lowered crop yields, says Professor Chupp.

Many virus or fungous diseases are easily spread from certain crop or weed plants to others that grow nearby, as well as from diseases carried over from crops grown on the same soil in a previous year. A cropping plan that separates plants that spread disease from one to another can usually be worked out for a farm, as well as a plan to grow each crop on a different field than the one on which it was grown the year before.

Beans, for example, should not be grown next to peas or clover; and lilac bushes along a field of lima beans are sure to spread mildew among the beans. Cucumbers, melons and squash should be in widely separated fields, and distant from fields of soybeans.

Tomatoes will not do well in a field infested with wild horse nettles, and carrots and celery will be riddled by nematodes if they are planted in any field in which the 1942 crop was damaged by these small organisms.

A plan of disease and insect control made in winter will also include an order for all sprays, dusts and chemicals for treating seed, says Professor Chupp. To insure protection of the crop and good yields, these materials must be applied on the exact days on which they are needed. Scarcity of many chemicals means that orders must be placed early.

Societies Will Meet

There will be a joint meeting of the Missionary Society and the Ladies' Aid of Wurts Street Baptist Church at the home of Mrs. Kathryn Madden, 43 Spring street, Friday afternoon, at 2:30 p. m.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—War-peace arguments today persisted as the main motivators of an irregular stock market.

There was some further profit cashing in the recently bulging peace issues and, while selling dried up in the war infants, the majority still exhibited notable recovery timidity. Hesitancy ruled at the start and, near the fourth hour, gains and losses of fractions were fairly well divided. Dealings slowed after a moderately lively opening.

News from Africa and other battlefronts continued cheerful for Wall Street but it was beginning to be realized, after the Armistice Day holiday, that the conflict still might have a long way to go.

Bonds and commodities were a shade mixed.

Stocks supported most of the time included N. Y. Central, which benefited from the first dividend payment since 1931; Pennsylvania, Northern Pacific, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, General Motors, du Pont, Eastman Kodak and Allied Chemical. Among laggards were Bethlehem, U. S. Sight Regained in Bus

While riding in a bus, George Morley, of London, regained his eyesight, lost in 1922 as a result of injuries sustained during an air raid on the British capital in 1918. He was traveling through Sussex, his face turned toward a window, when a dim, greenish blur appeared before him. Startled, he put his hand to his eyes. It was true; he could see. Back in London, he saw for the first time the wife he married 14 years ago. He thinks the return of his sight is traceable to a car accident in 1939.

French Are Not Enemies

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Treasury Department today told French nationals residing within the United States that last week's action which declared unoccupied France to be enemy territory, did not mean that French citizens within the United States became enemy nationals. Treasury officials said that the status of the French nationals here was not changed. They stressed that the action did not block the accounts of French citizens within this country whose accounts had been freed in the past.

Government Is Cautious

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—Secretary of State Hull indicated today that the government was proceeding cautiously in its evaluation of the French situation as transformed by Germany's invasion. He pointed out at his press conference that the Germans had taken over all transmission facilities in France, with the result that little reliable information was available from there and the situation remained acute.

$410,000,000 in Christmas Club Checks This Year

Distribution Will Be Made to 8,000,000 Club Members in Prosperity Week

Four hundred and ten million dollars will be distributed to more than eight million Christmas Club members by approximately five thousand banking and savings institutions and other organizations during National Prospertiy Week starting Monday, November 30, according to an estimate given out yesterday by Herbert F. Rawll, founder and president of Christmas Club, A Corporation, sponsors of National Prosperity Week. The total distribution for 1942 is about 2% in excess of 1941. The average distribution per member amounts to $49.00—slightly more than in 1941. Pearl Harbor is responsible for the very small increase over last year. On December 7, 1941, millions of people throughout the country stopped doing many things until December 20th. This period is the peak time for enrollment and many thousands that were members in 1941 failed to join for 1942.

Based upon reports from individual Christmas Club members received in January of this year as to the use of funds last December, and applying these reports to the entire distribution for 1942, the estimated fund of $410,000,000.00 will be used by the recipients approximately as follows:

Christmas Purchases	30%	$123,000,000.00
Permanent Savings	22%	90,200,000.00
Taxes	13%	53,300,000.00
War Bonds	12%	49,200,000.00
Insurance Premiums	11%	45,100,000.00
Year End Bills	8%	32,800,000.00
Education and Charity	3%	12,300,000.00
Unclassified	1%	4,100,000.00
	100%	$410,000,000.00

Plans for distribution indicate that a larger percentage of the total fund will be voluntarily used this December in the purchase of War Savings Bonds. A total of $75,000,000 is anticipated. To encourage a better understanding of the need for every form of savings during the war, Mr. Rawll stated that Christmas Club is announcing a Victory Through Thrift Slogan Contest for the 8,000,000 members enrolling for 1943. Slogans are to be submitted that best express an incentive for people to save more in Permanent Savings for Post-War Security, save more in War Savings Bonds and to save more in Tax Savings Notes, all from current income in the banks and savings and loan associations of the country. The contest provides awards totalling $5,000.00 all in War Bonds and Stamps at purchase value.

In the distribution of Christmas Club funds this year, New York State leads the other States with about $110,000,000; the estimates for Pennsylvania are $43,000,000; for Massachusetts $38,000,000; for New Jersey $29,000,000. New York's Metropolitan district will receive about $68,000,000.

Total industrial production in the United States during the fiscal year 1943 will double that of the average for 1935-39, says the Department of Commerce.

4-H Gardeners Output Is 3,500,000 Bushels

A record output of over three and one half million bushels of garden vegetables and small fruits will be produced this year by 4-H Club members throughout the nation, in response to the government's call for super-production of these foodstuffs to meet war needs. This output is an increase of 60 per cent over last year's production by the clubsters.

Roundly 350,000 members participated in the 1942 National 4-H Victory Garden contest conducted in cooperation with the Extension Service, in which Sears, Roebuck provided awards consisting chiefly of U. S. War Savings Bonds. This also is an all-time high enrollment in the 4-H gardening project, and shows how vital 4-H production is to the war effort in this as in all lines.

County winners in this competition received gold-filled medals and four representatives of each state's blue award group were awarded a $25 War Savings Bond. One of the latter will be considered in selecting sectional and national winners. All expense trips to the 21st National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, November 29 to December 2, will be awarded to the two highest scoring participants in each of the four extension sections, who will also receive a $100 War Savings Bond apiece.

Committeemen Selected For New A.A.A. Program

Ithaca—Community committeemen of the AAA in about 700 localities of the state will be elected by farmer-members of the program on December 4, says Harold Peet of Pike, vice-chairman of the New York State Agriculture Adjustment Agency committee.

This year for the first time, elections of committeemen in New York State's 55 agricultural counties will be held on the same day as in the other eight states of the northeastern area.

Three farmers are picked as committeemen in each community, and two other farmers are picked as alternates.

In addition to handling local administration of the 1943 AAA program, the men elected on December 4 will be called on to help their U. S. D. A. County Agricultural War Boards in production and rationing programs connected with the war effort, Mr. Peet points out.

These community committeemen will aid farmers to get supplies needed for efficient farm operation next year, he adds. "Farmers know that hard as it was to meet food production goals this year, diversion of labor and materials to other war uses will make it harder yet to maintain 1943 farm production.

Production for war account for two-thirds of total industrial output in the United States during 1943, the Department of Commerce reports.

Fiscal Hearings Open at Capital

Tuberculosis Division Is First on List; Search Is for Economy

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 12 (AP)—The Republican-dominated legislature's investigation of state fiscal affairs under Democratic administration moves finally into the hearing stage today, one week after an election that ends 20 years of Democratic state control.

In view of Republican Thomas E. Dewey's election as governor, effect of the investigation projected by Republicans in search of economies thus may be to trim appropriations under which their party will have to administer state departments.

Republican Senator Arthur Wicks of Kingston, chairman of the 15-member investigating commission, said the first hearing (10 a. m., E.W.T.), involves financial problems of the tuberculosis division in the state health department.

Appearing are Dr. Robert E. Plunkett, general superintendent of tuberculosis hospitals, and the superintendents of hospitals at Raybrook, Oneonta, Mt. Morris and Ithaca. The first hearing followed months of research by the commission into health department financing.

When instituted by the 1942 legislature with an appropriation of $50,000, the investigation was viewed by some observers as a possible source of Republican campaign material.

Hearings were delayed until after election, however, with Wicks and others in the group seeking to avoid any charge of "politics."

In approving the appropriation, Democratic Governor Lehman asserted the fiscal committees from the senate and assembly had sufficient money yearly to make the study but said he had "no objection" to the investigation.

General Motors Output Is Greater Than Peace Record

Detroit, Nov. 12 (AP)—General motors Corporation, largest of the armament makers among the one-time motorcar manufacturers, now is delivering war weapons at a rate greater than the peak of its peace time commercial output, according to C. E. Wilson, president, but it faces major problems in materials and manpower supply.

The company president told a group of army and navy officers, G. M. executives and news writers last night that materials present the biggest immediate problem.

"It is highly important," he said, "that the new materials control plan be worked out without too much red tape."

Pointing out that General Motors currently is employing more hourly-rated workers than at any time in its history, he said:

"We are getting to the point where we must employ men and women who never worked in industry before."

Wilson indicated he questioned the wisdom of job freezing.

"We ought to go a little carefully on the question of freezing men in their jobs," he said. "That may work in the armed forces where men can be assigned specific tasks and carry out orders. In industry it presents a different situation."

He added his belief that the freezing of men in their jobs quickly would be reflected in a lowering of workers co-operation.

General Motors, Wilson said, is not now making plans for peace time business. "We haven't time for that now," he said.

The corporation since the attack on Pearl Harbor has delivered nearly $1,500,000,000 worth of tanks, aircraft engines, guns, shells and other war materials, he said.

Kingston Feels First Snow Flurries This Morning

Snow flurries, the first of the season, broke over Kingston at 10 o'clock this morning as freezing temperatures again gripped the city. This was the first snow of the season in the city, although snow had fallen earlier in the season in the Catskill Mountains.

Temperatures on Tuesday in the city ranged from 35 to 49 degrees at the city hall, while in other sections of the city the mercury dropped even lower. During the night it gradually grew colder until thermometers registered from 28 to 32 degrees in various sections of the city.

According to the records in the city's engineer's office the total rainfall so far this month has been 1.09 inches.

New Fruit Varieties Receive High Rating

Geneva — A first prize for a collection of 65 grape seedlings, awards of merit for three varieties of apples, and a first class certificate for a new variety of early white grapes were given to entries of new fruits exhibited by the State Experiment Station here in the Victory Garden Harvest Festival held recently in Boston under the auspices of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

The collection of unnamed seedling grapes represented the most promising selection from the hundreds of seedlings growing in the Station's grape-breeding project. The Seneca grape was entered in a special class for new fruits where the entries did not compete with each other but were evaluated as to their outstanding characteristics which merited special consideration.

Seneca is one of the products of the efforts of the Station fruit breeders to develop a hardy grape of the vinifera or European type, commonly referred to in this country as "California" grapes. Seneca is almost a pure vinifera with medium sized bunches of oval, yellow berries, according to the Station fruit specialists, who continue their description as follows: "In texture Seneca is firm like a true vinifera melting and tender, and the flavor is sweet, vinous and aromatic. The skin can be eaten with the berry. The vine is vigorous, healthy, productive and hardy. The variety is highly recommended as a dessert grape."

The three apples varieties to receive awards of merit were Kendall, Milton and Macoun, all of the McIntosh type. The award of merit is the highest award given by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for new varieties shown for the first time at a Society exhibit. Milton ripens about a month ahead of McIntosh, while the other two come in about with McIntosh. Planting stock of these new apples and of the Seneca grape, as well as many other new varieties originated by the Experiment Station can be obtained fom the New York State Fruit Testing Association at Geneva which cooperates with the Station in propagating and distributing its new varieties.

Beef Problem Is Seasonal in Basis, Packers Assert

Chicago, Nov. 12 (AP)—If you are unable to obtain a really good steak in your favorite restaurant, or at your butcher's, it isn't because the army has bought all the choice meat. Both the army and the meat packers were agreed upon that fact today.

A spokesman for the Army Quartermaster Corps said, "the army wants good meat, but we aren't trying to corner choice grades. We buy the average run of stuff, and, because the kind of beef coming to market recently hasn't been as good as in the past, we've even lowered the standards."

Meat packers, admitting there had been a slight drop in the amount of choice beef available to consumers, agreed that it wasn't because the army was taking it all, or any important part of it. They said the army bought "good meat—better than average," but not an excessive amount of choice grades.

Packers said the agricultural marketing administration, which does the lend-lease buying, had purchased very little beef of any type. The A.M.A. concentrates upon pork in the meat field.

Whatever decline might be noticeable in the amount of quality beef available to consumers can be attributed, packers asserted, to the fact that this is not the season for choice, well-fed cattle to come to market.

Aroff Is Dismissed

San Francisco, Nov. 12 (AP)—Maurice Aroff, formerly a lieutenant commander, has been dismissed from the navy, Lieut. Marvin McCarthy, naval press relations officer at Washington disclosed last night. Lieutenant McCarthy declined to elaborate on his brief statement. Aroff was tried by a court martial last summer on charges of misconduct and falsehood.

Waste, Fat Should Be Saved for War

Collection Instructions to Be Put in Markets

The Women's Division of the Kingston Salvage Committee met recently at the home of the chairman, Mrs. E. I. McCaffery, to discuss plans for promoting the salvage and collection of waste fats.

Posters and instruction sheets will be placed in all of the city's meat markets, and leaflets will be distributed through the aid of the schools.

The committee is hoping that the women of Kingston will get behind this drive to make it a success as the government is urgently in need of fats.

The leaflets which are being distributed state briefly four things not to do.

Don't take less than 1 pound at a time to your meat dealer.

Don't take fats to the meat dealer in glass containers or paper bags.

Don't let fats stand so long that they become rancid. If they do, the glycerine content is reduced.

Don't take your fats to the meat dealer on week-ends if you can avoid it. Help him by returning them early in the week.

Girl Scout Troops 5 and 7 are assisting in the collection. The money derived from the sale is turned over to the local Service Men's Center on upper Broadway. Anyone who cannot take the fat to a meat dealer and wishes to help the Girl Scouts in the project, may leave his name at the volunteer defense office and a Girl Scout will call at the home.

Henry Millonig Dies; Was Hotel Man for 40 Years

Henry Millonig, 66, prominent hotel man, died at the Benedictine Hospital Wednesday evening where he had been a patient for 10 days. He resided at 97 Clinton avenue and for many years was one of the best known hotel men in this section of the state, having operated hotels and boarding houses in this county for nearly 40 years.

Born in Bremen, Germany, of Austrian parents, on October 26, 1876, Mr. Millonig came to this country in 1892 and made his home in Brooklyn until 1904 when he came to Ulster county where he purchased the Lanesville Hotel which he operated for eight years, selling it to come to Kingston to take over the Hotel Eichler. For a time after his arrival in the United States Mr. Millonig was employed in a grocery store in Brooklyn, later purchasing the business, which he continued to operate for several years before coming to Ulster county.

Mr. Millonig was considered one of the best hotelmen in this section of the country and his knowledge and experience in the operation of restaurants was well known throughout this area.

In 1901 Mr. Millonig married Miss Louisa Bower of Brooklyn, and three years later came to Ulster county to operate the Lanesville Hotel which he purchased at that time. The hotel was a 25-room new hotel which had just been completed by Charles Yeager. This hotel was operated until 1912 by Mr. and Mrs. Millonig when he disposed of it and leased the Hotel Eichler on Railroad avenue in this city which he continued to operate for about two years. The Lanesville Hotel has since been burned.

After conducting the Hotel Eichler for two years Mr. and Mrs. Millonig in 1914 purchased the former McClure Cafe and restaurant on Wall street, opposite the court house. During the time Mr. Millonig was operating the hotel here, financial difficulties involved the proprietor of the Lanesville Hotel and Mr. Millonig was compelled to again take over that property which he also operated in conjunction with his business here. The Lanesville Hotel was later sold to Harry Lane.

In 1919 Mr. Millonig bought the Kipp House at Lexington, Greene county, one of the largest boarding houses in that locality. He operated the boarding house for a short time but in 1920 sold it and returned to Kingston where he purchased the City Hotel on Main street. He operated the City Hotel until 1927 when that property was sold to Messrs. Meyer and Tuck and in 1928 Mr. Millonig leased the old Cronk Hotel on Crown street, known then as the Kingston Hotel, and for five years he operated that business. This hotel was later demolished and is now the site of the Crown Street Terminal.

Again in 1933 Mr. Millonig moved to Railroad avenue where he purchased the West Shore Hotel, but sold it the following year to Charles Wierbach and leased the property on Wall street where he opened "Henry's Tavern," which he continued to operate very successfully until in 1938, because of the illness of Mrs. Millonig, he was compelled to dispose of the business which was sold to Herman Scharmer of Rosendale, who reopened it under the name of Herman's Restaurant. That was Mr. Millonig's last venture in the hotel or restaurant business. However, he did not cease to have an interest in the hotel and restaurant business. He was one of the founders of the Kingston Hotel and Restaurant Association and always took an active interest in the association. For several years he served as treasurer of the association.

Mr. Millonig was a former member of Cordts Hose Company and was affiliated with the Exempts. He was always active in volunteer firemen circles and was a member of A. H. Wicks Hose Company, which is located in the second ward.

Britain's Mills Anxious for Bout With U. S. Champs

By GLADWIN HILL
Wide World Features

London—Hearken, ye olde tyme followers of Phainting Phil Scott and Tommy Farr, to tidings of Britain's outstanding fistic offering of the present day, yclept Freddie Mills, described by partisans as "a second Mickey Walker—only stronger," and aspirant to the mantle of Joe Louis.

(That last may sound farfetched, but so have been some of Uncle Mike Jacobs' matches for Louis—viz., Johnny Paycheck.)

Freddie Mills is a dark, curly-haired good-looking youngster of the Billy Conn type who in the last two years has surged up through a Hollywood-Cinderella rise in British boxing, managing in tandem with a career as sergeant physical instructor in the R.A.F., to become at the age of only 23 the British-recognized world light-heavyweight champion, as well as virtual British heavyweight champion, having decisively walloped the title holder Len Harvey in a technically non-title fight.

The American-recognized light-heavyweight champ is Gus Lesnevich, which present an international problem—a problem which Mills would like to solve by beating Lesnevich. This apparently is impossible, for Gus is in the U. S. Navy.

Prefers 'Go' With Joe

Then Mills, who, at a current weight of 185, hops back and forth between light-heavy and heavyweight classes as facilely as Winston Churchill changes hats, would like to have what our English call a "go" with the Brown Bomber.

They have something in common, because Freddie is known as the Bournemouth Bomber, Bournemouth being a coastal town.

There is a story that Freddie, infatuated with pugilism from his short-pants days, was peering down through the skylight of a Bournemouth boxing hall when his 15-year-old visage was espied by a horizontal fighter just coming to on the canvas below, who was so impressed by Freddie's interest that he helped him get started on his fighting career.

The story is generally accepted as romantic hyperbole—the truth seems to be that Mills actually was hanging around the ringside when a friendly manager offered him guidance—but its existence is an indication of the Horatio-Algerian aura surrounding Freddie's career.

In English boxing, which although a national institution seldom attracts crowds of more than 5,000, there is not the well-defined ladder to success of golden gloves, the tank-town circuit, and eagle-eyed promoters waiting to lift likely youngsters out of the preliminaries.

The traditional testing-ground is "the booths"—the challenge-all-comers rings of carnivals and fairs—and the jump from these to the big time often comes only through some Hollywood-like break. That's what happened to Freddie.

Occupy Town of Bone

London, Nov. 12 (AP) — Reuters said the Vichy radio broadcast today that the town of Bone, in eastern Algeria 60 miles from the Tunisian border, was occupied by American troops this morning.

Buses may soon run on gas in Britain.

Allied Army Is Now Near Tunisia

ped a cryptic hint that operations may be developing about Dakar, French west Africa.

"I think they (Dakar's defenders) are in a rather hopeless position," the spokesman said. He refused to amplify the remark.

40 Divisions Are Rushed

Meanwhile Adolf Hitler was reported rushing 40 divisions from the Russian front toward Italy and Greece today as the victorious Anglo-American expeditionary forces in North Africa poised a growing threat of attack on the "under side" of Nazi-conquered Europe.

Premier Mussolini's own newspaper, Il Popolo D'Italia, called on Italians to hold fast, declaring that the new phase of the war placed Italy "in the front line."

Meanwhile, the French radio asserted that Hitler's grey-clad legions, now overrunning southern (formerly unoccupied) France in violation of the 1940 French-German armistice, would not occupy the French Mediterranean naval base at Toulon.

The broadcast declared that French naval authorities had decided to defend the base against all aggression.

Informed sources in Ankara, Turkey, said two score Nazi divisions (perhaps 350,000 to 500,000 troops) were being withdrawn from the wintry Soviet front and that railroads through Rumania and Hungary were heavily loaded with German troop trains speeding en route to Italy and the Balkans.

Turkey herself, according to the Paris radio, ordered all Turkish soldiers, sailors and airmen to join their units immediately.

Turkey would provide a convenient land bridge to the middle east if Hitler, in desperation, decided on a move to counteract the sweeping triumph of the British eighth army in Egypt.

Perhaps significantly, Turkey and Russia exchanged new messages of friendship.

Other Developments

Other swift-breaking developments:

Italian headquarters, reporting allied naval movements off Tunisia, said "a big enemy destroyer" was hit by Fascist torpedo-carrying planes " and was seen on the point of sinking."

This was the first intimation that allied warships, which have been busy shelling French defenses in Algeria, had moved forward for the developing battle of Tunisia.

A Tass (Soviet news agency) dispatch from Geneva said Hitler and Mussolini, meeting in southern Germany, had agreed on the establishment of a single Axis command in the Mediterranean—under a German general.

Tass also reported that mass disorders broke out at Lyon yesterday when German troops marched through southern France, with crowds shouting "long live free France!" and "down with Laval!"

Pro-Nazi Premier Pierre Laval appeared to have won in his efforts to have the Vichy government submit to Hitler's latest assault on the conquered third republic.

Old Marshal Petain's sad protests against the Axis occupation of the former "free zone" waned, and the Vichy radio said he had called for continued resistance in North Africa.

Authoritative London quarters said the British government still lacked information of any movement of the French fleet from Toulon, up to 7 a. m., Eastern War Time, today, but declared that such a movement might have occurred without the knowledge of the allies.

Lieut.-Gen. Eisenhower, commander of the Anglo-American campaign in North Africa, himself appealed to French naval crews to "join the United Nations in the fight for freedom" by sailing for Gibraltar.

On the Russian front, Soviet dispatches reported a shift of Nazi warplanes to southern Europe.

The newspaper Pravda said that the Germans were using out-dated planes and that in the past 24 hours barely 200 flight had been made over Soviet defenses, compared with a previous daily average of 1,500 to 2,000 flights.

Winter tightened its grip on the Stalingrad front, with the Volga choked by ice floes and sub-zero temperature prevailing.

Nevertheless, the Russians continued to attack the Nazi siege armies and reported they had wiped out two German companies in one sector inside the city and killed 130 Nazi with hand gernades at another point.

In the Caucasus, the situation remained static.

ington, D. C., and Commando Captains C. J. Courtney, R. T. Livingstone and Lieut. J. D. Foot.

"About three weeks before the campaign opened it became evident there was a large group of Frenchmen in North Africa anxious to cooperate with America and it became essential to send a staff of professional officers to contact and make use of these men and obtain essential military information," said Gen. Eisenhower in telling of this modern "message to Garcia" that led to speedy conclusion of the 77-hour occupation campaign.

"Clark and all men on the mission volunteered enthusiastically."

Kaiser Builds Ship In Four Days' Time

Richmond, Calif., Nov. 12 (AP). —Henry J. Kaiser's shipyard here will launch the 10,500-ton Liberty freighter Robert E. Peary at 3:30 p. m., (P. W. T.) (6:30 Eastern War Time)—Exactly four days and 15½ hours after her keel was laid, yard officials announced.

That would make the Peary less than half as long a-building as the ten-day time required to construct the present record-holder, a similar ship launched by another Kaiser yard at Portland, Ore., in September.

Ickes Recommends 12 Per Cent Cut In Oil for East

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP) — Petroleum Coordinator Harold L. Ickes disclosed today he had recommended a cut of nearly 12 per cent in petroleum consumption in the 17 rationed east coast states.

The recommendation was made to War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson, who has authority to direct the Office of Price Administration to make the cut.

Ickes said "I think it has been accepted."

The coordinator declined to discuss methods of effecting the cut.

Ickes, at a press conference, said his recommendation would reduce rationed consumption of all oil and petroleum products on the east coast by 139,000 barrels a day.

The reduction in gasoline consumption, he added, would save about 80,000 barrels a day, or "something like 20 to 25 per cent," and reduce consumption of light and heavy fuel oil by 59,000 barrels a day.

The reduction is necessary, Ickes said, because shipment to the east by railroad, pipeline and barge are now running almost 200,000 barrels a day below the requirement of approximately 1,400,000 barrels a day under present rationing, and need of oil for military purposes is increasing greatly.

U. S. Planes Down 17 Jap Bombers in Solomons Attack

forced from his main positions with heavy losses.

A flanking movement there by Australian troops has cut off the Japanese retreat and "he is endeavoring to cut his way through to the rear," the allied high command communique reported.

But American troops are on hand to prevent that maneuver, flown by aerial transport to the vicinity of Buna, 55 miles northeast of the Oivi battleground in the Owen Stanley mountain area.

Simultaneously on New Guinea another force of allied jungle fighters wiped out enemy troops surrounded south of Gorari. No details were given, nor was there any indication of the number of enemy casualties.

The aerial warfare again reached beyond the South Pacific to the far north Aleutians and resulted in the shooting down or destruction of 16 enemy planes, and possible damage to warships, cargo vessels and shore installations.

At Kiska, there has been virtually no action for several weeks, army bombers attacked and damaged two Japanese cargo vessels. One of the planes was damaged by anti-aircraft fire but returned to its base.

Army planes also roared down on Holtz Bay on Attau Island near the end of the Aleutians archipeligo and destroyed seven float-equipped Japanese fighting planes. They encountered no opposition.

Twice allied reconnaissance units in the South Pacific found and attacked destroyers. But in neither case was it possible to observe results. One flight in the New Guinea area bombed a destroyer off Lae and another unit came upon five destroyers eastward of the New Georgia Islands.

A third aerial attack on surface craft took bombers from the high command into action against shipping off the southern end of Bougainville Island in the northern Solomons. Those craft apparently were aiding in the general Solomons action, possibly carrying supplies. Shore installations there also were bombed.

In the Solomons, pilots of two Grumman "Wildcats" took their navy fighting planes through a formation of 15 Japanese "Zeros" 27,000 feet over Guadalcanal. Their daring attack brought down one of the enemy planes.

Olso on Guadalcanal, army planes joined in the battle with Japanese invaders, and a recheck by the navy of an attack on an enemy cruiser-destroyer formation last Saturday showed that eight "Zeros" and eight biplanes all equipped with floats had been destroyed. Originally only a total of 12 planes were reported shot down in that engagement.

State Revenue Off $6,400,000 in October

A drop of $6,400,000 in New York state tax collections in October, compared with the same month last year, it was announced Wednesday by Carrol E. Mealey, president of the State Tax Commission.

A decline of $1,747,000 in motor fuel tax collections and $186,000 in motor vehicle fees accounted for part of the decrease in receipts. Beverage tax receipts were off $1,230,757, but October receipts from this source last year were swollen by heavy buying in anticipation of a federal tax boost.

Legion Ball Is Successful Event

With nearly 1,300 present, the American Legion Armistice Ball at the municipal auditorium, last evening, is the outstanding attendance success of the season thus far. There were a number of service men throughout the audience and by holding the stage show early in the evening more time was left for dancing. The auditorium was decorated with red, white and blue banners, shields of blue and gold holding American flags and posters urging enlistment with the fighting forces and national defense projects.

War is taking a toll from the list of entertainers available also. One of the six acts booked for the ball was cancelled by the draft. Both Sinclair and LeRoy, a comedy team, are now serving in the army and of the team of Fenwick and Cooke, who substituted, Mr. Fenwick reported this morning at 5 a. m. at Fort Jay. This team gave a humorous acrobatic routine including a clever bicycle stunt.

They were followed by The Maginies with their feats of magic in making a ringing alarm clock disappear, siphoning milk from a bottle across the stage to a bowl across the stage by means of a piece of "string" and using the aid of a soldier from the audience in performing several tricks.

Bert Lynn, inventor of the Vibrolynn, presented arrangements on his new guitar instrument, from the recitation of "Mary Had a Little Lamb" to the dronings of planes and bombs in a musical blitzkrieg. With the aid of searchlights and flashes on the darkened stage, this last number was made more realistic to the audience.

The Memory Lane Trio whose total years of harmony in the entertainment world numbers 210, sang three groups of songs popular at the turn of the century and some which have become folk songs of America. They concluded their portion of the program with some of George M. Cohan's popular airs including "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy" and "It's a Grand Old Flag."

Probably the most adroit entertainment was that of voice impressionist Billy Ames who has been heard on the March of Time program and "The Traveling Reporter" shows of the radio. His impressions of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jimmy Fiddler, Walter Winchell, Fred Allen, Raymond Gram Swing, Gabriel Heater and even Mrs. Roosevelt were expertly given. Mr. Ames was recalled to the stage for encores. He obliged with a skit of Jimmy Durante and a familiar tobacco auctioneer. The stage show ended with ball room dance team of Ann Pritchard and Jack Lord.

Leo Mains acted as master of ceremonies and the entertainment was given under the direction of Harry A. Shea of New York city. Mayor William F. Edelmuth formally opened the ball at 8:30 o'clock and a word of greeting was brought to the audience by Commander William Mellert, chairman of the ball.

Preceding the stage show the orchestra under the direction of Jacob Mollott gave a short concert program. This orchestra played for dancing following the show until 1 a. m. Flowers and refreshments were on sale during the evening under the supervision of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

At 11 o'clock, the usual moment of silence was observed in memory of the service men who have died for their country. The colors were presented under the leadership of Edwin Ashby, veteran of World War I and serving in the army now as private first class. He was assisted by two sailors, James Reilly and James Shultz, and two soldiers, Paul J. George and Tony Giaimo. Taps were sounded by Bugler Frank Sass.

Buboltz-Herrick

A pretty fall wedding took place Sunday afternoon, November 8, at 3:30 o'clock in St. Joseph's Church when Miss Rita Herrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Herrick of 10 Sterling street, became the bride of Leo F. Buboltz, son of Michael Buboltz of 189 Murray street. The Rev. John P. McCaffrey officiated.

The bride wore a royal blue chiffon velvet dress with wine accessories and a corsage of white rose buds. The bride's attendant was her sister, Mrs. John Lawrence. She wore a wine chiffon velvet dress and wine accessories with a corsage of pink rose buds. The bridegroom had as his best man, his brother, John Buboltz.

After the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, after which Mr. and Mrs. Buboltz left for a short wedding trip. Mr. Buboltz will enter army service November 17.

Flewelling-Beck

New Paltz, Nov. 12—Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beck of Manchester Road, Poughkeepsie, of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mildred V. Beck, graduate of New Paltz State Teachers' College, to Sgt. Ernest Flewelling, son of Mrs. Frederick Flewelling of Poughkeepsie. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock on the evening of November 5, in the Army chapel at Kilmer Field, New Brunswick, N. J.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and attended by her sister, Mrs. William Black, as matron of honor. Reginald Flewelling was his brother's best man.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the Roger Smith Hotel, New Brunswick. The bride is a member of the teaching staff of the Huntington Schools. Sergeant Flewelling was graduated from Poughkeepsie schools and attended the Photography School in New York. Prior to entering service he was employed by the New York Telephone Company.

Atharhacton Club Studies Autograph of Sculptress

Mrs. Newton Fessenden of Fair street was hostess yesterday to the Atharhacton Club. Mrs. Charles Arnold, vice president, conducted a short business meeting and Mrs. Everett Fessenden gave the paper of the day, a review of the book, "Heads and Tales" by Melvina Hoffman.

The book is an autobiography of Miss Hoffman's work as a sculptress. She spoke of her arrival in Paris in 1911 to study with Rodin, dean of French sculptors and of the outstanding work she did in the figures of the Hall of Man at the Field Museum at Chicago. This group contains authentic studies of the races of men. In order to create this project, Miss Hoffman travelled throughout the world to study the peoples. It ranks as one of the great achievements in the artistic world.

The club will meet next Wednesday at 4 p. m. at the home of Miss Agnes Scott Smith, 222 Hurley avenue. The next meeting thereafter will be Wednesday, December 2.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personality of a House," "The Blue Book of Social Usage," etc.)

"Thank You for Calling" Is A Telephone Courtesy

A reader who tells me that she has noticed the growing custom of saying "Thank you for calling", when any conversation with a friend has ended, writes further: "I've been wondering why telephone etiquette was different from visiting etiquette. That is, when someone calls to see us we don't thank her for coming but rather express pleasure at seeing her."

To this I must answer, Oh but we do! That is, we say, "Thank you for coming to see me," when we mean it. The telephoned expression is perhaps more often said, because it has to substitute for the missing smile and handshake with which we say good-bye to a visitor.

The Doctor Is Also A Captain

Dear Mrs. Post: My fiance is an M. D. and is now a captain in the United States Army. On our wedding invitations how shall his name be engraved? I understand that military titles take precedence over others, and yet I think it is a shame not to identify him with his profession.

Answer: Officially a doctor with the rank of captain, or higher, in the army, is given his military title. According to this, your invitations should be engraved:

Captain John Mason Jones
Medical Corps, United States Army
(smaller type)

Since it is true that identifying a bridegroom with the medical corps does not definitely require that he be an M. D. for this reason "Dr." is on occasion prefixed to his name. But the form given above is the correct one.

Divorcee Runs Into Confusion

Dear Mrs. Post: Since my divorce I've called myself Mrs. Sara E. Black—using this name socially and in business. (I am well known in business). It would, I am sure, be almost in the nature of a shock to most people to receive a wedding invitation from me in the name of Mrs. Black to my daughter's wedding. (White being my maiden name which I've never been known by in this town). Just how wrong would it be to use this name I am known by.

Answer: "Wrong" is not quite the right word, since the objection to "Mrs." followed by a woman's christian name is merely that of the disapproval of people of best taste. Since you are known by this name and by no other, it would certainly seem sensible to use it rather than to assume another on this one occasion.

Saluting Our Flag

Dear Mrs. Post: Please tell me what the dictates of good taste prescribe in the following case: If a woman who is to be an instructor in a public school has a badly deformed right hand, what should she do during the ceremony of saluting the flag when the Pledge of Allegiance is given daily?

Answer: I would suggest that she hold out her left hand.

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad however to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "A Dance Can Be Simple." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman P. O. Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y. Leaflets cannot be mailed unless self-addressed envelope bears correct amount of postage. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Engagement Announced

Mrs. John Hobart Holcomb of Saugerties announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Jean Frances Holcomb, of Catskill, to Douglas V. Bush, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bush of Catskill. Miss Holcomb is a graduate of Catskill High School and is employed in the War Council office. Mr. Bush is employed by the Catskill post office. No date has been set for the wedding.

Kobel-Schroeder

Mrs. Elly Schroeder, owner of Schroeder's Mountain Lake Resort, and Joseph Kobel of Route 1, Kingston, were united in marriage by Justice of the Peace Leonard Albert of Tillson, Monday, November 9, at 4:30 p. m. at Tillson. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ritter. Mr. Kobel leaves November 13, to report for duty in the United States Army.

FOOD

How to Stretch That Meat

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
Wide World Food Editor

With taxes hitting us all harder than ever and living costs so high, the family food budget will need special watching this winter.

One of the best ways to reduce food costs is to serve nutritious and taste-appealing dishes which make meat go farther. You can use meat more often in the form of stews, pot pie, pastry roll and vegetable meat hash or loaf which give the meat flavor without using large amounts.

Meat is one of the best sources of protein in the diet. Milk, cheese, poultry, fish, eggs, dry beans, soy beans and peanuts, however, are also good protein foods. Dry beans are inexpensive, energy-supplying foods and "they stick to the ribs" on cold days. They need to be seasoned with something spicy and especially appetizing.

Chicken Croquettes

3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons minced green pepper
2 tablespoons minced pimiento
½ cup milk
½ cup chicken stock
1½ cups chopped cooked chicken
Sifted bread or cracker crumbs
1 egg, beaten with 3 tablespoons milk and dash of salt

Combine tapioca, salt, paprika, green pepper, pimiento, milk and stock in top of double boiler. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook 8 to 10 minutes after water boils again, stirring frequently. Add chicken and mix thoroughly. Chill. Shape into cones. Roll in crumbs, dip in egg mixture, then roll again in crumbs. Fry in deep fat (390 F.) 1 minute, or until golden brown. Drain. Makes 8.

CHICKEN CROQUETTES: Thrifty and unrationed.

MEAT VEGETABLE CAKES use a pound of meat to serve 5 or 6: Mix together 1 pound chopped beef (any economy cut), 1 cup boiled rice, 1 cup cooked carrots and 2 tablespoons each chopped celery, parsley and onions. Add ¾ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika and one egg (or 2 yolks). Shape into cakes about 2/3 inches thick. Sprinkle with flour and brown on both sides in 3 tablespoons fat heated in frying pan. Cover and cook 10 minutes over low heat. Top and surround with savory sauce or gravy made from drippings. Serve with stewed tomatoes, cabbage relish salad and fresh apple sauce and ginger cookies for dessert.

PEANUT RICE LOAF: To serve 4 mix together 1 cup chopped salted peanuts, 1 cup boiled rice or bread cubes, ½ cup diced celery, 2 tablespoons each chopped onions, parsley and pimentos. Add ¼ cup hot milk, 1 beaten egg, ½ teaspoon each paprika and salt and 3 tablespoons fat, melted. Pour into buttered baking dish. Bake 30 minutes in moderate oven. Serve with hot tomato sauce, escalloped cabbage, bran muffins and apricot cobbler.

CHEESED EGGS can be prepared in short time and call for simple staples usually found in the refrigerator. Make up 2 cups creamy white sauce, add 2/3 cup grated or finely sliced cheese and 4 hard-cooked eggs, sliced. Cook until blended in double boiler. Stir several times. Add ½ cup chopped ripe or green olives. Serve with buttered beets, tossed green salad and apple roll with cream.

MACARONI AND CHEESE takes on new interest when some mushrooms are added. Try this: Melt 5 tablespoons butter and add 1/3 cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon each celery salt and paprika. Add 2 cups milk and cook slowly until creamy sauce forms, stir in 2/3 cup sliced or grated cheese and ½ cup cooked or canned mushrooms. Cook slowly until blended. Add 3 cups cooked macaroni and pour into buttered, shallow baking dish. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake 45 minutes in moderate oven. Serve with mashed turnips, grapefruit salad and baked date or raisin pudding with orange sauce.

Syracuse Backers Depend Upon Tommy Maines in Colgate Game Saturday

Former K. H. S. Star Is Ready for Big Tilt of Career; Hopes Pinned on Tom

Syracuse, N. Y. Nov. 12—If the football fan could answer the question, "What's Tommy Maines going to do, Saturday?", then maybe he'd know the result of the Syracuse-Colgate game this Saturday, November 14 to be played before a capacity crowd in Archbold Stadium, Syracuse.

Playing excellent ball this fall from his tailback spot, Tommy has had hard luck during his varsity career, expecially when it comes to the annual Red Raiders-Orange duel.

Big Tom has only played two minutes against Colgate in two years. His sophomore year, an injury in the previous game, prevented him from even seeing action against the Maroon, while last fall, he came off the bench nursing a slight injury, and then knocked himself and Indian Bill Geyer out of the game, as he made a vicious tackle on the speedy Raider to prevent a touchdown. Tommy was only in the game for two minutes.

Helped in Upset Win

The only other time Tommy ever played on the grid against the Maroon, it was a blazing Orange sunset, with the Syracuse speed back, registering three touchdowns for the Orange to defeat the Colgate cubs almost single-handedly.

Just what fortune, Big Tom will have this Saturday is any grid fan's guess. He's big and fast and is in good condition ready to go. Tommy has been the leading back for the Orange since his joining the Hill forces three years ago. He's the leading passer and runner on the team, and is the most competent defensive safety man the Orange has had in years. He's also a tough man to bring down when he starts returning those enemy kicks.

After watching the Orange workout hard yesterday, sideliners realized immediately the importance of Maines and the way Coach Ossie Solem has built his hopes about Tommy for this even contest Saturday.

Perhaps that old political slogan could be changed to read, "As Maines goes, so goes Syracuse." And All loyal Orange fans are hoping that Tommy goes.

Emerick's Ladies' Jottings

Another week's round for the Emerick's Ladies' Bowling League was completed Tuesday night. Between the weather and the war, the ladies are up and down. On the first shift the Mayorettes took two from Elstons as Madaline Schline came into her own with a 191 single and 466 triple. She also made the 5-6-9 split. . . For Elstons Marge Williams was in there with a 513 series and a 180 single. She converted the 8-10 split. Cora Emerick connected on the 5-10. . . . For the league leaders, Williams Lake overpowered the Alpines two to one as Sally Kuehn shot a 187 single and 457 series. Nan Brodhead cleared the 5-9-10 nicely. For the Alpines Dot Fleming had a 170 single and 487 triple besides coming through on the tough 3-9-10 split. . . . Becks took two from Schwenks as Carolyn Mohr and Adelaide Ashley paced them with 183 and 483. For Schwenks Helen Hayes looked like her self after a summer lay-off. Lillian Buswell blasted a 167 and 425. . . . . Well, it can be told that Ethel Wetzel is the Ertel's good luck charm. The Ertels took two from Phelan & Cahill as M. Callahan rolled a 153 and 407. Jane Holcomb was in there, but luck was not so Jane had to be content with some tough luck scores. Whereever did that kick-back ball come from Jane? . . . G. Ertel blames the weather and we don't blame her for the series of 7-10 splits she ran into. . . . E. Osterling throws a nice ball and comes in with some neat scores and more of the latter are sure to come her way as the season rolls on. . . . For Phelan & Cahill Phillys Gehringer rolled 419 and Bruck a 159. . . . The Minasians took two from Standards as V. Carpennilli rolled 176 and 413. B. Hyatt made the 1-2-7-9. Rose Chamberland came through with a 164 single and 430 series. Doris Wilson came through with flying colors on the 1-2-7-6 split. M. Reinas, egged on by some other than the sponsor himself, took three games from Kingston Coal as Bea Coddington poured out a 185 single. Helen Smart made the 5-7-8 split while Ethel Wetzel converted the 3-10 and 2-5-9-10 splits. Nice shooting, Ethel. . . . Gert Breitfeller was high for the losers with a 167 single and 378 series. . . . Scores of Tuesday's matches did not reach the sports desk until after 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning which made it too late for Wednesday night's publication. A plea to the responsible party is asked so that these sheets will be at The Freeman sports department no later than 9 o'clock the morning following the matches. This will make it easier all around.

Cys Hit Two Marks

With Alyce Riseley blasting away in her usual sensational style, Cys continued to roll along in a blaze last night in the Colonial Women's League at the Central Recreation alleys. Alyce poured out a sizzling 556 series and a 209 single as Cys registered a new high single of 856 and also established a new team triple of 2409.

Riseley's 209 and 556 sparked Cys but the club had some other valuable help from Ethel Wetzel who hammered out a 520 on a string of 179, 187 and 154. Bea Coddington chimed in with a 464, Tillie Clearwater posted 443 and Helen Smart climaxed the high-powered outfit with a 426. Incidentally, Cys won three straight games from the Zeroettes.

The regular Colonial Women's Memos, a weekly feature of the doings in the league, will be published as usual this week.

"Y" International Scores

Bill Bush's blazing 546 triple on scores of 199, 172 and 175 highlighted the Y. M. C. A. International League games last night. Bill's efficient bowling helped the E. & T. squad to capture three straight from The Freeman No. 2 team. Harry Minard had high single of 204 in the match. Tommy Tomshaw's 144 and 388 topped the losers.

Sears took three from the Terrors as Gallop led the way with a 200 single and 511 triple. His other marks were 137 and 174. Robinson's 501 was high for the losing keglers.

Matthews finished the night's activities as that squad won three straight from Elstons. F. Short blasted a 191 single game and wound up with a 470 series. Walt Elston's 413 was high for the losing team.

Catholic League Scores

In the other shift of the Catholic Bowling League at the Central alleys last night F. Hershenroder's 220 single and 595 triple took undivided honors. Hershenroder's string of 209, 220 and 166 sparked St. Anns who won three games anyway as the Presentations of Port Ewen forfeited the match.

Hogie Rask of the St. Peters of Rosendale team came in with second high series as he poured out a 527. His scores were 179, 174 and 174, pretty consistent bowling in any man's league. C. Port had a high single of 188 in the match for the Immaculate Conception outfit.

St. Peters of Kingston won two from the Knights of Columbus. Ed Norton's 506 triple and Johnny Raible's 200 paced the winners. Ed Sohn's 492 was high for the Knights.

Whirlaway Rates as Top 'Horse of Year'; Wipes Out Money-Winning Mark

Ben Jones' Colt Picked Over Alsab; Whirly Has Had Tougher Race Campaign

By SID FEDER

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—It is somewhat superfluous, like the lace "panties" on a lamb chop, to hand Whirlaway any more posies than he already has, but with the returns just about complete, it begins to look like Mr. Big Tail is the "horse of the year" again for 1942.

This will no doubt raise more than a mild beef among the members of the Alsab cheering and chowder society, a wild-eyed collection of rooters who firmly believe any horse other than their hero is a classy candidate for a glue factory.

Their argument is that the Sab hung it on Whirly two out of the three times they met, that the Chicago Express piled up a bigger bankroll this year and that, in winding up his season yesterday by running on a wrenched ankle and still knocking off a set of handicap gallopers in the Victory Handicap at Belmont, Alsab was quite a bundle of hayburner.

All for Whirly

That's their story, but from there on the record rides with Warren Wright's whizz-bang. He has gone through a campaign even stiffer than Alsab's and has carried weight burdens bearing striking resemblance to loaded brewery trucks. Yet, through as tough a campaign as any gee-gee has galloped in years, he remained as sound as the mint, while the Sab had to knock off a couple of months with sore legs.

On top of that, Whirly picked this year to wipe out Sea Biscuit's money-winning record. His $8,625 pay-check for the Governor Bowie Handicap at Pimlico yesterday skyrocketed his three-season bank account to $548,461.

Alsab picked up $227,715 for 1942, compared with Whirlaway's $198,800. However, he had the benefit of 10 purses from $25,000 to $75,000 to do it. Mr. Long Tail had a crack at only one of more than $25,000. The Sab blew a lot of his fanciest financial opportunities, like the Derby and the Belmont, while the war came along to rob Whirly of his one shot at the heavy sugar—the Santa Anita $100,000.

Taking the cold numbers, Alsab went to the races 22 times in 277 days—an average of about once every 12½ days—won eight starts and was out of the money in four. Whirly, beginning his campaign later, had 20 trips to the post in 216 days—about once every 10 4/5 afternoons—won ten, was second in eight and was never out of the money.

Has Spotted Rivals

In 10 of his last 15 jobs, Whirlaway had 130 or more on his back and ran anywhere from seven furlongs to 2¼ miles with it, while spotting his rivals up to 30 pounds apiece. He gave Alsab seven pounds the day he whipped the Chicago champ. This was the "scaleweight" difference between a three and four year old, but you can't overlook the fact that the Sab had the edge, because it came along in October when a three year old has just about grown up.

Twice Whirlaway set track records, once at Suffolk Downs the day he broke the Biscuit's money-winning mark by taking the mile and an eighth Massachusetts Handicap in 1.48 1/5. Twice it took track records to beat him, and a third time Bolingbroke had to run to a new North American mark for a mile and a half to turn the trick. Bolingbroke, a five-year-old, carried 115 and Whirly 132 that afternoon. The Sab had more than 126 pounds on his back only once.

Virtually no new clothing is to be had in Germany.

'Y' Can Now Accommodate More Men Overnight

Through the generosity of several Navy men who have been living at the Y.M.C.A. during the time they were stationed in Kingston, at the local shipyards, the Y. will be better able to take care of service men who apply there for sleeping quarters. Several of the Navy men who will shortly be transferred to active duty at sea have donated their mattresses to the Y. since they will be issued new ones when they put to sea.

The local Y.M.C.A. like all Associations throughout the country, offers free sleeping accommodations to service men passing through the city but has been hampered by lack of equipment. In the past, cots have been provided but there were not enough mattresses. Thus the donation of the sailors from the Hiltebrant yard means that more service men can be cared for. This gesture on their part to aid their fellow service men will make it possible to accommodate about a half dozen more service men in the Y. dormitory.

All Y.M.C.A. facilities such as showers, bath, game rooms and other equipment are open free of charge to service men in uniform at all times.

Tax Laws Should Be Known by Cooperatives

Ithaca, N. Y.—Farm cooperatives must be operated strictly within the provisions of the income-tax law to be exempt from corporation income tax, says Prof. Whiton Powell of the New York State College of Agriculture. Farmers who are members, stockholders or directors in farm cooperatives should be sure that their organizations are so run as to be tax-exempt, to avoid embarrassment by a sudden call for funds from the federal tax collector.

Many persons think that farm cooperatives are exempt from tax because they market farm produce or buy farm supplies on a group basis, says Prof. Powell. Actually each cooperative must file with the collector of internal revenue a form which specifies just how the business is operated. Principal rules which make a cooperative legally tax-exempt are the following:

A cooperative must be owned and controlled only by farmers, so only farmers should be members or stockholders with the right to vote.

More than half of the business of the cooperative must be transacted with members or stockholders. In a purchasing business, not more than 15 per cent of the business may be with persons who are neither farmers or members. This means that a cooperative must keep for proof, records of business done each year with each member and non-member.

No Profit

The income tax-exempt cooperative must operate so that no one makes a profit from other persons. Dividends must be limited to 8 per cent on capital stock, for example, and member and non-member patrons must be treated alike. Non-members patrons must receive patronage dividends at the same rate as members. If reserves are built up for later distribution, the cooperative must keep track of how much is due all patrons alike. There must be no way in which member patrons can benefit at the expense of non-member patrons.

Incorrect distribution of patronage dividends is one of the simplest faults by which cooperatives lose their exemption from income tax, says Powell.

Farmers who are members of small cooperatives which buy and sell supplies for a few local communities may find a study of the rulings on corporation taxes valuable to their organization.

Officers of cooperatives who want advice on organization and operation of their business, may request their county agricultural agent to arrange for it.

Liberia, where U. S. troops have established a base, is a republic, founded and developed with American sympathy and financial aid.

Freed slaves from the United States established Liberia in 1822, declared it a republic in 1847, modelled the constitution on ours. This country helped with loans and by buying Liberian rubber, oil, nuts, ivory and ginger.

On the South Atlantic Coast, Liberia faces Europe-South Africa sea routes for about 350 miles. Inland, it extends from 75 to 150 miles.

President is Edwin J. Barclay, serving an eight-year term expiring in 1944, who with his Cabinet forms the Executive branch. The Legislature consists of eight Senators elected for six years, and 15 Representatives elected for four.

Most of Liberia is covered with tropical forests, rich in timber. Railroads are almost totally lacking, but there are many waterways. Total population is 1,500,000; of these 100,000—English-speaking Protestants along the coast—are civilized.

Farmers Are Requested To Make Maple Syrup

Ithaca—Farmers who can "swap labor" and find enough sap buckets and other equipment to tap their sugar maple trees in the spring should be rewarded by a good market for maple products next year.

Extra workers for the sugaring, and new equipment for gathering and boiling maple sap will not be available for the 1943 season, says Prof. James D. Pond, of the New York State College of Agriculture. But every farmer who has a good sugar bush and can manage to operate it, will be furnishing consumers with a fine-flavored sugar or syrup of the kind that was in great demand in 1942.

Some farmers have planned pipelines or troughs to carry sap from high points in the sugar bush to the storage tanks at the sap house, to save much heavy work. Others will plan to tap only the most productive trees. A few maple producers who have tested the sugar content of the sap from various trees will tap only the ones with the sweetest sap.

The "glass age" in containers for maple syrup will really come next spring, predicts Prof. Pond, as no tin containers will be supplied. Probably only a few hundred tin cans for syrup are left over from last year, in the entire state.

Sap and syrup thermometers, and hydrometers for measuring the weight of syrup, are plentiful, so farmers will be able to pack their maple products to meet high standards. Felt filters, needed for graded syrup, are also plentiful.

Former Boxing Champion Dies After Operation

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—"Philadelphia Jack O'Brien," 64, former world's light heavyweight boxing champion, died today in Polyclinic Hospital after an operation. He was a resident of Ventnor, N. J.

O'Brien, whose real name was Joseph F. Hagan, won the light heavyweight championship by knocking out Bob Fitzsimmons in the 13th round of a match in San Francisco on December 20, 1905. O'Brien last fought in 1912.

In recent years O'Brien operated a training gymnasium in New York. He is survived by his widow, five sisters and a young brother, also a fighter and known as "Young Philadelphia Jack O'Brien."

How Uncle Sam Got His Name

During the War of 1812, Troy, N. Y., was an important clearing center for food for the army. Here a well-known meat packer had his business. Most of the beef that filled the stomachs of the lusty American soldiers was provided by this packer, arriving in oak casks labeled, naturally enough, "U. S." for United States. It happened that the packer, Samuel Wilson, was affectionately known as Uncle Sam, partly to distinguish him from a younger Samuel Wilson who lived in the city. The soldiers soon began calling their food "Uncle Sam's beef," and as the initials of Wilson's nickname were the same as those of his country it was not long before Uncle Sam was used as a title for the government by the American people.

About 45 out of every 100 persons in the United States in 1940 resided in towns of less than 2,500 population.

Official Says Sport Is Great for Relaxation

Chicago, Nov. 12 (AP)—John B. Kelly, federal coordinator of physical fitness, says that "golf is great for physical relaxation and we won't think anyone is unpatriotic for going out to brush away the mental cobwebs."

Kelly, speaking before the Professional Golfers Association, recommended the continuation of all recreational sports not interfering with the war effort. The P. G. A. closed its two-day meeting by re-electing Ed Dudley president and deferring until early next year a decision on whether to hold its annual P. G. A. tournament.

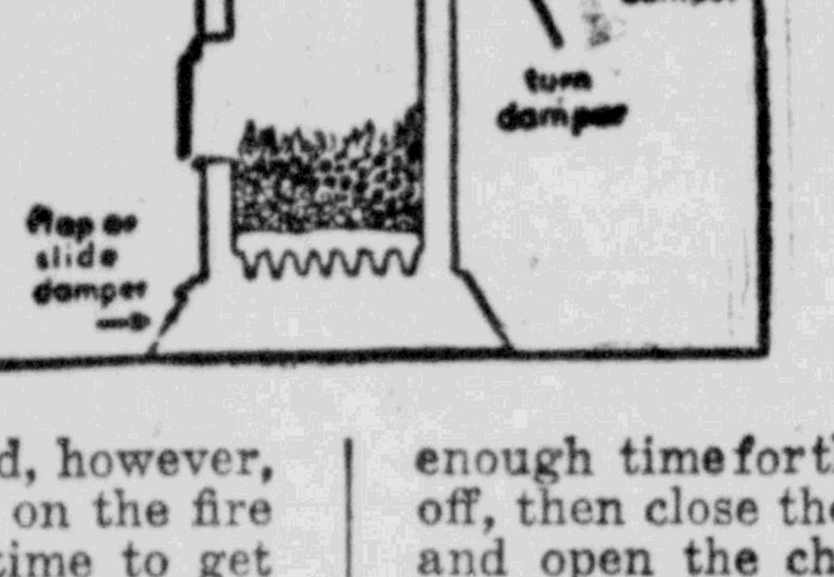
How to cut the cost of Heating Your Home

BY John Barclay
AMERICA'S HOME HEATING EXPERT

Quick Heating Required in the Morning

If there is any time when you want the house to warm up quickly, it is on cold mornings. Here are some suggestions that will help you to bring heat through your house quickly.

First of all, shake the grates gently and only until you see the first red glow in the ashpit. Next, open the ashpit damper and close the check damper until the fire is burning briskly. If the fire was banked the night before you probably won't need to add any coal. If fresh coal is needed, however, only put a thin layer on the fire at first and give it time to get well started. Then, when the house is comfortably warm, put on a full charge of coal and set the dampers at their normal position.



If by chance the fire should die down and is nearly out, don't add a full charge of coal right away. That will only smother the fire and put it out completely. In this case, open the ashpit damper, close the check damper and add a small amount of coal at a time. Then when the fire gets going again, shake the grates gently and add a full charge of coal. Allow enough time for the fumes to burn off, then close the ashpit damper and open the check damper. In this way you will save a lot of coal—and many trips to the cellar.

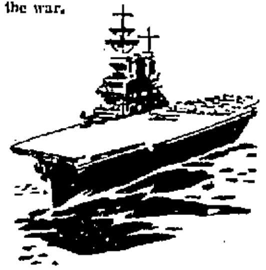
What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The Airplane Carrier is one of the most important factors of modern warfare. The transport of planes and a base for their landing and refuelling on the high seas where operation of land based planes is impossible, is vital to the success of the war.



Our Navy has several carriers under construction, but the need for more is apparent. The cost runs into millions of dollars, depending on the size of the carrier. Your purchase of War Bonds will help pay for these carriers which have played such an outstanding role in our action in the Pacific. INVEST AT LEAST TEN PERCENT of your income every payday in War Bonds.

To Play at Ball Thanksgiving Eve

ENOCH LIGHT

Enoch Light and his orchestra, and six acts of Broadway stars, will feature the sixth annual ball of the Congregation Ahavath Israel on Thanksciving Eve, November 25, in the Municipal Auditorium.

Herman Rafalowsky, general chairman of the annual ball, said today that indications pointed to the fact that this ball would be one of the outstanding social events of the season, and the program of entertainment would be one of the best ever staged in the city.

Light and his orchestra are well known to radio fans. Featuring The Light Brigade, a small six-piece band within the band, the Ocarina Trio, and Starlight, a glamorous young singing star, the band stacks up as one of the outstanding young musical organizations of the country.

Recently the orchestra leader received the plaque of the month awarded by Song Hits Magazine. The award was presented for outstanding musical entertainment. In addition to his ranking as a foremost orchestra leader, Enoch Light also holds a degree from Johns Hopkins University, and he was studying medicine when the Loew and R.K.O. vaudeville theatres offered him a contract to take his college orchestra on a tour of their houses.

The band has been featured from coast to coast and on the continent where the band remained for three years as the outstanding American orchestra in Europe.

ULSTER GIRLS LIKE JOBS

Ulster girls have made an outstanding success of their wartime jobs in factories and work with great zeal, it is disclosed in Belfast. The latest idea to encourage workers who make aircraft parts in dispersal areas is to take them in relays to the main factories where they are shown the assembled planes.

89 Service Men Register At Center During October

During the month of October there were 89 original registrations of service men at the local center. Several of these men came in many times so that there are on the registration book at the present time over 200 entries. Among the men who visited the center were 15 English sailors, six flyers, several men from Stewart Field at Newburgh, besides many of the sailors stationed at the local shipyards, and several army men.

The men who have visited the center have been served lunches and suppers, given tickets for football games, dances and entertainments. Many local people have left their names at the center as being desirous of entertaining the men in their homes for dinner and the men have been sent to their homes for many an enjoyable evening. The committee is deeply grateful to the ladies in the Red Cross Canteen service who have served the meals to the men at the center, and to the many citizens who have entertained them in their homes.

Four hitch-hikers have been sent to Y. M. C. A. for lodging. There was no charge for the service men who were put up over night at the "Y".

Dances are held for the men on Wednesday evenings and every Sunday night buffet suppers are served.

The following donations were received during the month of October: C. M. Thomas, stationery; Harry Van Aken, lock and keys; Mr. Troy, maintenance of juke box; additional furniture and supplies, Mrs. Harry Barnhart, Mrs. Frank Brown, Mrs. C. Freer, Mrs. James Chase, Dr. Mathers, Mrs. Elizabeth Washburn, Elston Sport Shop, Captain Albright and Bundles for Britain.

The following Canteen supplies have been donated: 20th Century Club, pies and cake; Schwenks, bread; Peterman's, bread; Ketterers, bread; Grunenwald, bread; Pratt Boice, milk; W. C. T. U., tea and coffee; Harry Beck, bacon and ham; Johnny Pulvirinti, apples; Mrs. A. R. Newcomb, apples; Mrs. Charchian, apples; Mrs. William Hookey, Jr., eggs.

Canteen and food supplies have also been donated by the following: First Aid Class of Port Ewen, Senior Service Scouts Troop No. 11, Mrs. Grace Gadd, Mrs. Francis Bruno, Mrs. De Vall Dunbar, Mrs. Frank Brink, Mr. Hicks. Cigars were donated by Mr. Morgan.

There have been so many magazines donated that it has been hard to keep a complete record of them.

It is with great satisfaction that this report is made, for the members of the committee in charge of the Service Men's Center feel that it is truly serving the purpose for which it was established and that the citizens of Kingston are cooperating in every way.

Condition Is Improved

The condition of James Ray, who has been an employe of the Rhinebeck-Kingston Ferry Company for a number of years, is improving. Mr. Ray has been a patient in the Kingston Hospital since Monday.

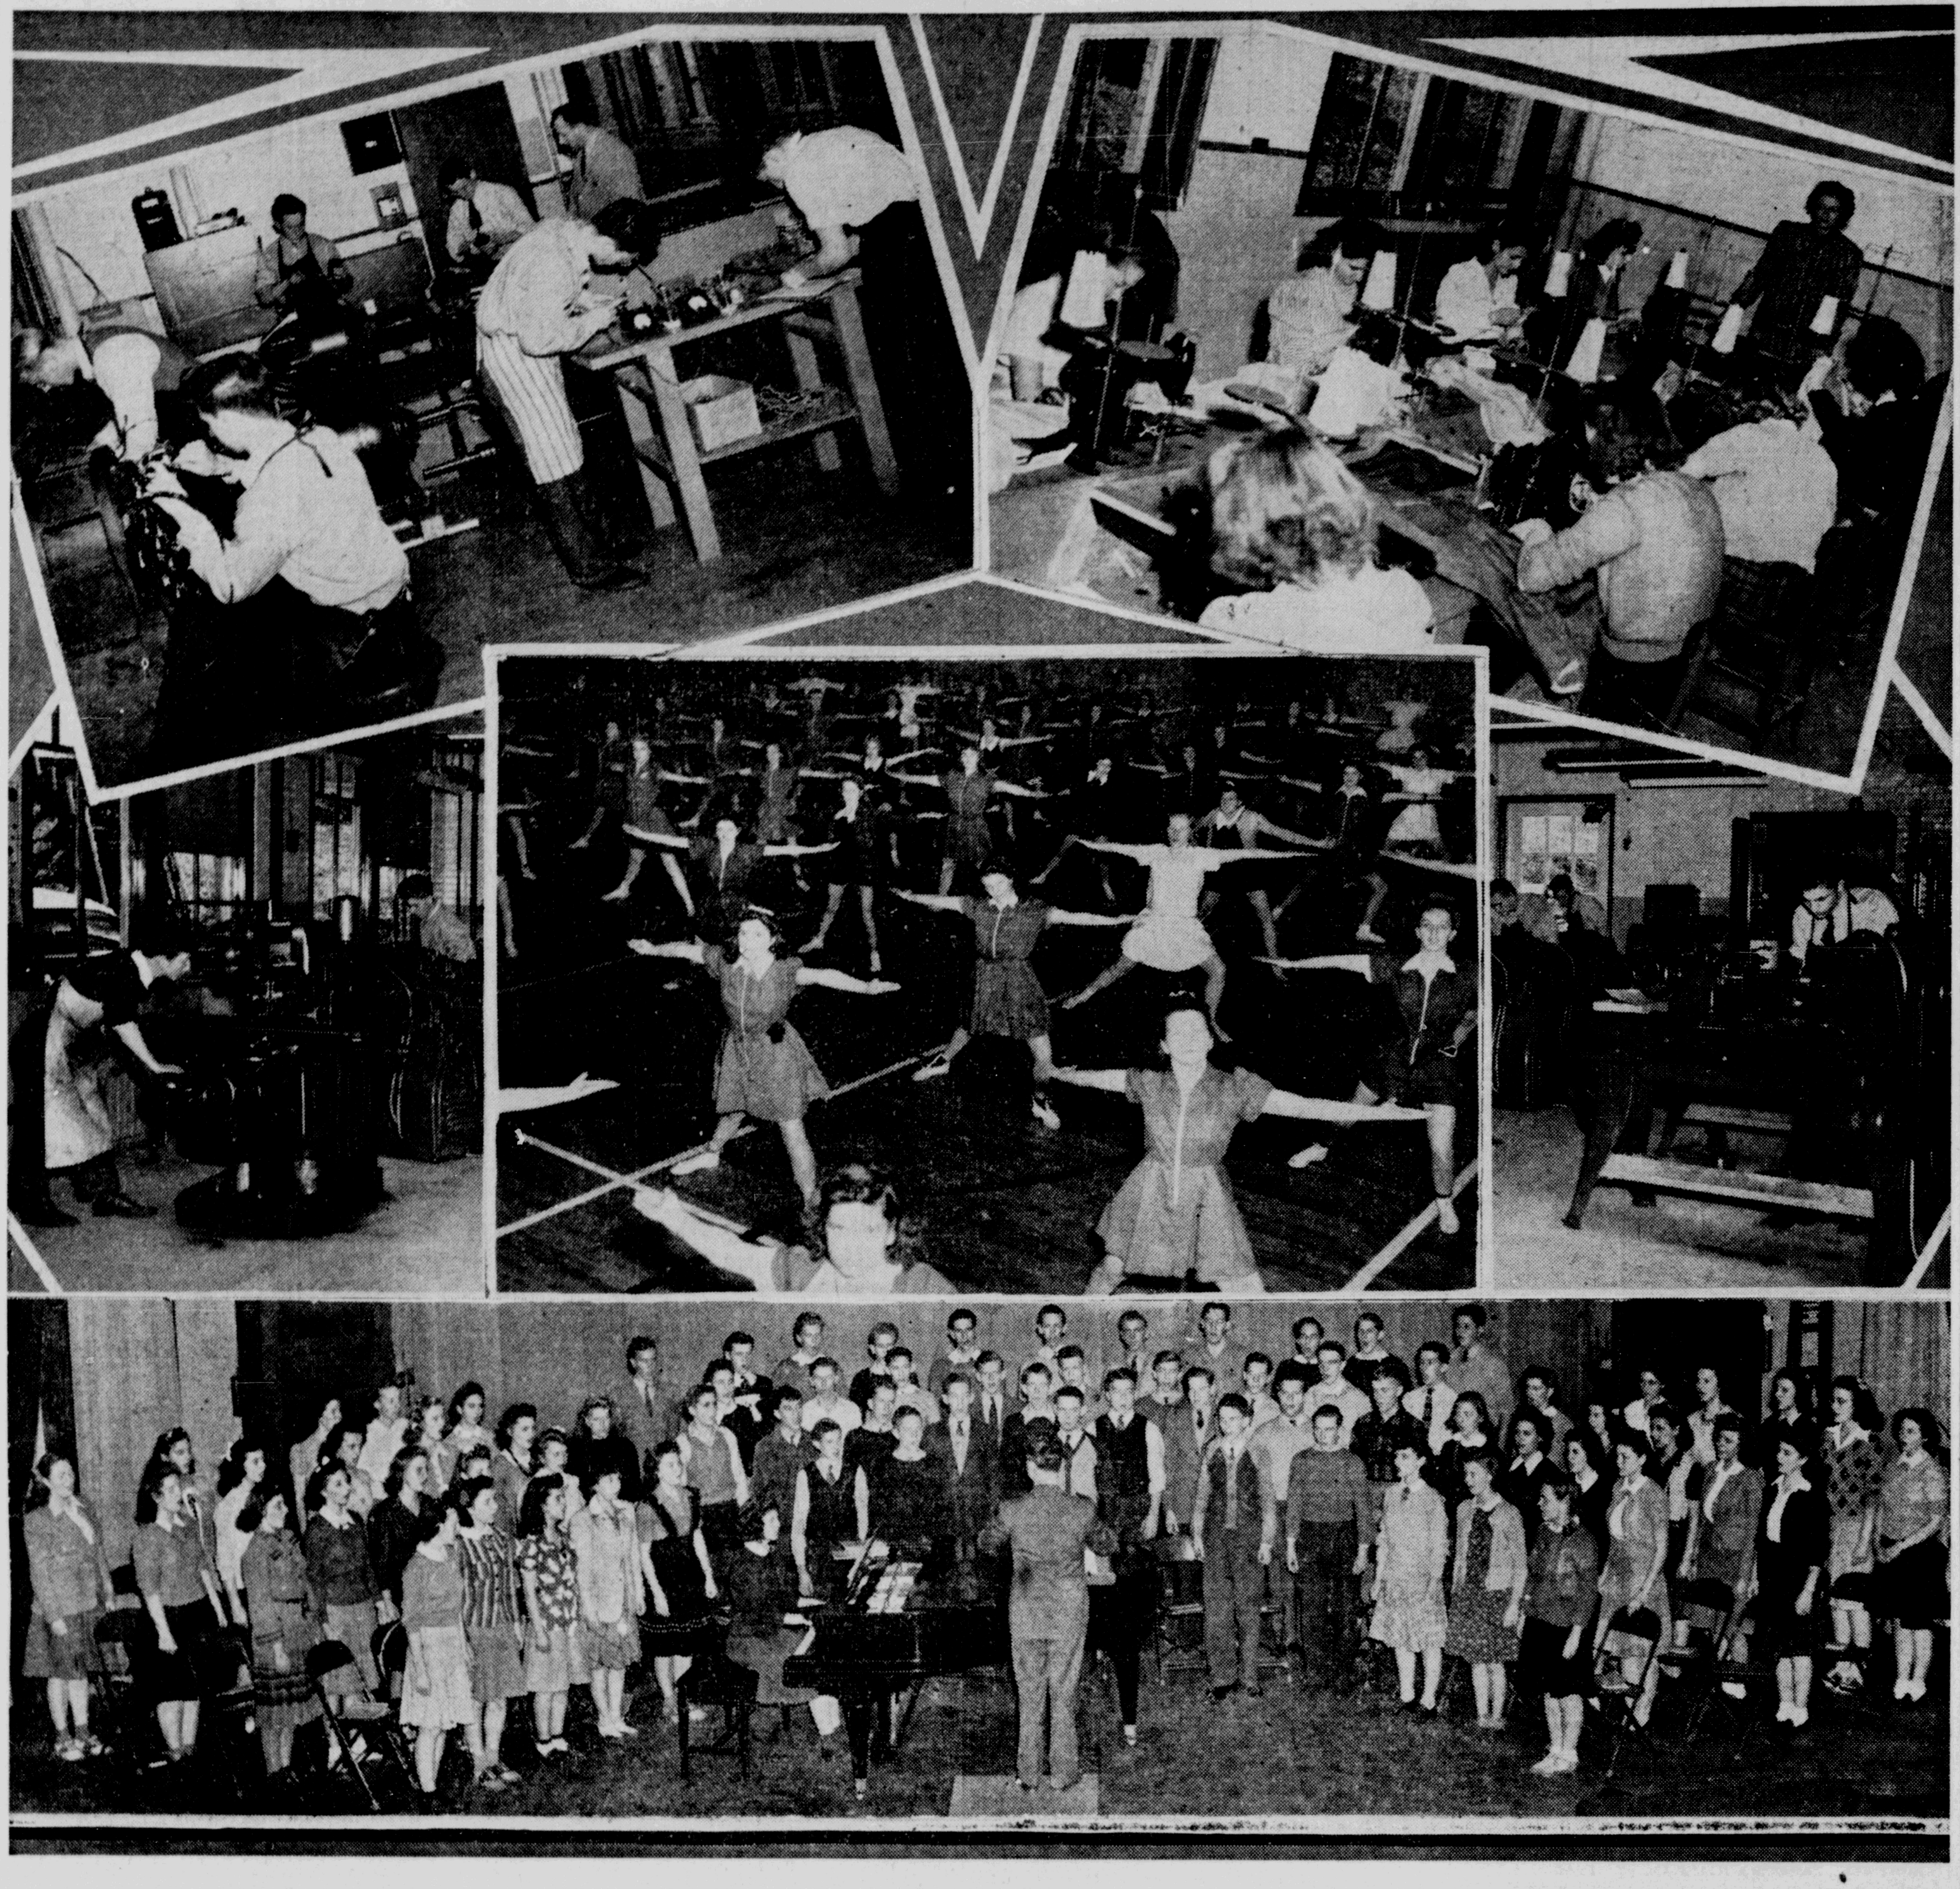
Educational Week Is Followed at High School



Freeman Photos

The Freeman continues the observance of Educational Week, with views of activities at the Kingston High and Vocational School. The vocational school has aligned its program to fit in with local industry, and the excellent shops have given many of the youth of the community an opportunity to get the training necessary for vital war industries.

for lack of labor," the report said, adding:

"There have been scores and hundreds of public utterances from Washington telling about the manpower problem, criticizing the public for failure to cooperate in a non-existent program to solve it, and threatening a draft of labor or a draft of women or this or that form of compulsion.

"In the absence of any over-all policy and program for mobilization of manpower, the sub-committee on manpower has decided that it would be a mistake for Congress to even consider passage of any drastic compulsory legislation."

The committee said it was satisfied that when a definite policy that "makes sense" was announced, "voluntary cooperation will be forthcoming in full measure from the overwhelming majority of the American people."

Boys' Choir of First Reformed to Broadcast

The Boy's choir of the First Reformed Church, consisting of 25 boys ranging in age from eight to 14 years, has been invited to present a half hour's program over radio station WKNY tomorrow (Saturday) morning at 11:30. They will be assisted by a quartet of girls from the Intermediate girls' choir of the same church, both groups being under the direction of the Rev. Herbert C. Greenland, associate pastor.

Their program will be as follows: "Seek Ye the Lord," Roberts, Boys' choir and Girls' quartet; solo, "Thanks", O'Hara, master Torm Larsen; "The Lord Is My Shepherd," Smart, Girls' quartet; solo, "Mighty Lak a Rose," Nevins, master Ronald Buchanan; "The Holy City," Adams, Torm Larsen and boys' choir.

Opportunity Knocked

Fort George G. Meade, Md., Nov. 12 (AP)—Privates Jerome Fischer and Hold Pomerantz listened today to a lot of that business about "opportunity knocks but once" and this is why: The pair, awaiting appointment as aviation cadets, were walking along in Washington and were offered a lift. They refused politely, looked again and then froze into salutes. In the car was Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff.

and told by the commander of one of the attacking forces.

With maps and photographs he explained the general headquarters order. He sketched the whole picture in general terms and then in great detail pictured the task of his "battle team."

He pointed to the main objective of his force on the map and said "our objective is to take that point and, damn it, nothing is going to stop us. Your orders are to keep going regardless of what happens."

In a similar assembly, Lieut. Col. A. H. Rosenfeld, former Camden, N. J., attorney, explained the order.

Colonel Gives Order

In a formal order to a combat team, the colonel declared the operation must continue "no matter how tough the going is, how tired we get or what the opposition is. I am proud of all of you and I know that we are going to be successful in this supreme adventure. Let us all bow humbly before the great God of battles and pray that we may live up to our heritage of being an army which has never started a war, but which has never lost one."

"So, with 'For God and Country' on our lips and in our hearts, we enter the battle for preservation of our homes, our families, our institutions and for the preservation of civilization itself," the colonel concluded.

Correspondents joined the convoy where it was reorganized for the journey into battle. They were not even told what their port of embarkation would be. They knew only that they were going on an offensive operation with the United States forces. The rest was a mystery.

Only on arrival at the port town did I learn I was assigned to a transport carrying a battalion which was destined to be a spearhead of the landing on the Algerian coast.

As a result of whispered grapevine warnings in London I equipped myself with the heaviest wool clothing. It did not take me long aboard ship, however, before I realized our mission was in the south, not the north. I had to borrow cotton underwear from a considerate major because I had brought only the heaviest the London quartermaster could provide.

I lived on the ship as part of an army unit, attending conferences to detail plans of action, sharing the hopes and apprehensions of the junior officers and men and watching as all—commander to private—keyed themselves for the dangerous landing and ticklish job.

I had been assigned a place in the fourth wave of boats which would put me on the Algerian beach at approximately 3:30 a. m.—in time to see the action.

As I was sitting on my steel helmet with my typewriter on a chair in a cabin disordered by hasty packing of clothes and weapons writing this story, the voice of the colonel came over the loud speaker in a final talk to his command.

"In just a few hours we are going over the side of the ship and it is a record run," he said.

He warned the men to respect native customs, be friendly to people and "not to shoot unless the situation demands it." Then he ended:

"Go out and do your job like soldiers and God bless you."

Supreme Court Adjourns Term

No Cases Ready for Trial Today; Two Default

No cases were ready for trial when Supreme Court convened this morning after recessing over Armistice Day and Justice Bergan adjourned the term until next Monday, excusing the jurors until that time.

Two actions which were at the head of the day calendar for trial were found not ready and Justice Bergan postponed the actions to Wednesday. One is an action for injunction and money damages brought by the Kerhonkson Water Company, Inc., against Abraham Feinberg and another, while the second action is one brought by Rebecca Feinberg against Kerhonkson Water Company, Inc., under a nuisance theory. Manuel Dittenheimer appears for the Feinbergs and Lawrence Levine for the water company.

An action on contract brought by William Y. Velie and another against Harry Zellner and another, which was second on the day calendar, went by default. The defendant failed to appear in court and Justice Bergan directed judgment for plaintiff and struck out the answer of defendant. Rusk & Rusk appeared for the plaintiff and Bregman and Slow for the defendants.

No. 161, Winnisook, Inc., a domestic corporation, against Lewis J. Hallenbeck, a breach of contract action, also resulted in a direction of judgment for plaintiff when defense failed to appear. Justice Bergan directed the answer stricken and judgment for plaintiff. Thomas Plunket appeared for plaintiff and William E. Riseley appeared for defendant.

Monday morning the day calendar will again be called and additions will be made when necessary at the opening of court, Justice Bergan said. Several cases were added to the alarm calendar at the sessions today.

The day calendar for Monday is: 65, 162, 173, 179, 188, 210 and 241, 199 and 221, 253, 255.

Mitchell Heads List

Enemy Subs Sank Only 11 Allied Ships in October

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—Enemy submarines, which destroyed 111 Allied and neutral merchantmen in the western Atlantic during June, the highest monthly total, sank only 11 in October, their lowest kill in that area, recorded announcements showed today.

This total might be revised upward should other sinkings have occurred in October which have not yet been announced.

But the battle of the Atlantic entered a new phase with opening of the North African front presaging heavier United Nations supply ship traffic through submarine-infested north and south Atlantic waters.

The British air ministry reported two months ago that the majority of U-boats spotted were in the Bay of Biscay, where Nazi submarines, en route to and from hunting grounds in the Atlantic, run the British sea and air patrol gauntlet. American airmen, flying four-motor Consolidated Liberators, have joined R. A. F. fliers over the bay in new round-the-clock offensives against the torpedo menace.

Prime Minister Churchill, who lauded the convoy system off American coasts, warned that Allied losses to submarines still were heavy. Rear Airmiral Emory S. Land declared the number of enemy U-boats destroyed was growing month by month, but predicted that submarines would sink more Allied merchantment during the longer nights of winter and rough weather.

Although enemy submarines cut deep into the Allied merchant marine, counter-blows against them, as listed by First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander, raised to 570 the number destroyed, damaged or captured.

At least 522 merchantment have been announced sunk in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor, Associated Press records showed, including 203 American vessels, 92 British, 49 Norwegian and 31 Panamanian.

Fourteen ship captains are known to have been taken prisoner aboard Axis U-boats since June, apparently in an attempt by the enemy to weaken the supply of trained master mariners. England has lost four skippers, the United States three, Norway two and Panama, Latvia, Greece, Uruguay and Poland one each.

Minnesota University Has Developed New Flax Type

Coincident with the pinching off of flaxseed imports from South America, the University of Minnesota announced that it has developed a new flax—Biwing—of higher average quality and yielding ability than varieties now grown here.

Five years ago, more than 75 per cent of the flaxseed crushed in the United States for linseed oil, one of the chief ingredients of paint and varnish, was imported from South America. Gradually production here was stepped up, but even last year more than 24,000,000 bushels of seed were imported, compared with a domestic crop of 31,485,000 bushels.

During the first six months of this year approximately 7,790,000 bushels of seed were imported but it now appears that will be all for 1942, as the War Production board has halted flaxseed shipments from South America because of a lack of shipping space.

Thus, domestic production must be stepped up materially, and it is the hope of Minnesota agronomists that the Biwing variety will play an important part in lessening the impact of the import restriction. It is expected to yield appreciably above the ten-bushel-per-acre state average of recent seasons.

Adding to the cash income farmers get from the crop is the manufacture of cigarette papers from flax straw, an industry which developed when the war limited imports of this type of paper. Farmers previously had considered the straw worthless. The meal remaining after the oil has been extracted has been a standard livestock feed for years.

Woman Does Governing

For more than a year, the shire of Ethridge, in North Queensland, has been governed solely—and with unusual efficiency—by a woman, Mrs. Ethel Latchford.

In addition to the administration of all local government business, Mrs. Latchford had collected taxes, enforced ordinances and in some instances performed the duties of magistrate.

She was appointed in the fall of 1941 after the Ethridge shire council, composed exclusively of men, decided its continued deadlocks over various matters were holding up business and asked to be dissolved.

Shandaken Health Committee Reports

Summary of Work for '42 Is Given at Meeting

The Public Health Nursing Committee of Shandaken reported the following summary of work at the annual county meeting October 28 at the Stuyvesant Hotel:

The Town of Shandaken Nursing Committee extends greetings of 1942 to the fourth annual regional meeting.

We now hold our consultations in our new health center rooms at Allaben. These rooms consist of a large reception room, doctor's consulting and examining room, a room for the dental hygienist and a toilet and washroom completely equipped for our little children. We have a large supply closet and ample space for our loan closet. Fluorescent lighting and new oil heaters.

Our record for the past year is as follows:

Eighty-seven children vaccinated.

Twenty children treated at the dental trailer in addition to the many pre-school children who were treated by the dental hygienist at the consultations.

Our town health officer, Dr. Charles Quinn, held a clinic for school children this year and 103 children were vaccinated and given toxoid.

We distributed two gallons of cod liver oil last year and are starting this fall with two gallons.

Our obstetrical bundles the past year cost over $60, so you can readily see that the population of our town is increasing.

We work in close cooperation with Miss O'Shea and at the present time have eight orthopedic cases.

This year we had Dr. Joseph Ferriola and R. Kittley, his assistant, with the dental trailer. Seventeen clinics were held. We started with 25 patients and finished 20. Twenty-five X-rays were taken, nine anesthesias given, 13 extractions, 130 silver fillings in baby teeth, 37 fillings in permanent teeth, two cement fillings in baby teeth, two temporary fillings in baby teeth, nine silver nitrate treatments. There were 13 children examined for the first time, 12 children re-examined and 95 revisits.

Our county nurse, Miss Behrens, has had a very trying and busy year. She certainly has endeared herself to our community. Many of her cases needed daily care and she has never failed to make her daily visit.

We have been handicapped this year by transportation, as every one has. Owing to the gasoline and tire restrictions we are now using the buses for certain districts and it seems to be working out fairly well.

We have noticed this year, that the parents seem to be in better financial condition and all tonsil and eye cases have been taken care of by the parents.

Through the appreciation of one of the mothers, whose children have been attending our clinics since we started three years ago, our health rooms are kept spotlessly clean.

The town of Shandaken Nursing Committee wishes to take this opportunity of thanking our town board for its wonderful cooperation in renovating the health center. It also appropriated $800 for the use of the health center this year.

Respectfully submitted,
MRS. W. H. CRUICKSHANK,
President, Shandaken Public Health Nursing Committee.

Taking It and Liking It

Australian soldiers are noted for their great fighting ability—and toughness—but one American infantry division, training somewhere in the Commonwealth for the fight against the Japanese, has impressed Australian newspaper men and radio commentators as about the last word in taking it and liking it.

Gordon Williams of the Australian Broadcasting company recently traveled with this division on maneuvers. In 10 days, carrying full equipment—an average of about 62 pounds—they traversed some of the wildest jungle country in Australia. They marched, during one five-day period, more than 122 miles, preparing their own food. They went at top speed in the sham fighting. Some platoons had to carry heavy mortars through the jungle growth. They made it on schedule and not one man fell by the wayside.

"They impressed one as being a division of lumber jacks," said Williams, "but really every man jack of them, according to personnel officers, came from some urban center in the United States. If this division is a sample of the American army as a whole, and I am assured that it is not different from the others, then I cringe to think of what will happen to the enemy when the heat's really on."

Three Good Meals A Day Are Needed Including A Real Breakfast

Your Food—and Nutrition

In planning an adequate diet for adults and children, the entire day's food ration should be considered as a whole. The "yardstick" of good nutrition, recommended by the government, lists eight groups of food to be eaten every day. By planning three substantial meals a day, a sufficient amount of each group of food can be included without difficulty.

This means that breakfast has become a real meal again. Fruit, eggs, and part of the day's requirement of meat may be eaten at breakfast. Sausage, bacon and ham slices are favorite meats for breakfast because they are tempting to the appetite, easily prepared and a good source of energy.

Skimpy breakfasts are out, for the duration. If you aren't doing enough work to need a hearty first meal of the day, you aren't doing your share! But the chances are that you do need this added nourishment, whether you realize it or not. Many persons not accustomed to busy days have been doing themselves harm by eating too little in the morning.

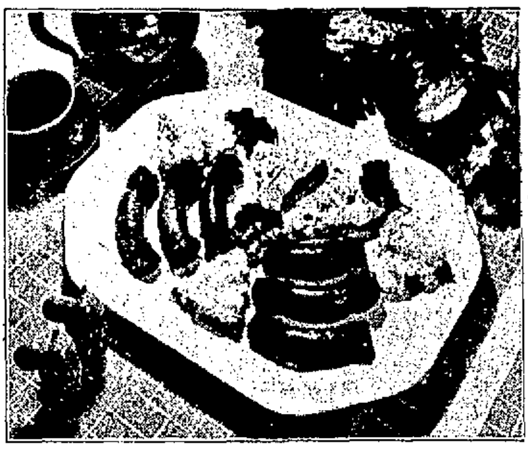
Begin the day with a breakfast that will "stand by you" at least until noon. Homemakers should see that each member of the family follows this rule. That includes the school children who need energy for work and play.

Sausage Links

Sausage Patties

Country Style Sausage

A Tip-Top Breakfast Dish



Country style sausage and scrambled eggs on toast points, are a fast. It is a combination good for fine main dish for a hearty break lunch or supper as well.

This doesn't mean that breakfasts need be fussy meals, or hard to prepare. Simple, everyday fare such as sausage and scrambled eggs, added to the usual menu of fruit juice, toast and coffee, will turn a snack into a real meal.

Delicious for Breakfast

Sausage as breakfast fare has two important features. It is tasty enough to whip up even a lazy appetite, and it is easy to cook. In addition, it is nutritious. The fat it contains is a fine source of energy, and the lean part of the pork provides protein, minerals and vitamins.

Pork sausage comes in three familiar styles. There is the bulk sausage, which can be shaped into patties, the little sausage links and country style sausage, which is contained in a continuous casing to be cut into any desired lengths.

Sausage should be cooked slowly, in moist heat. Here is the standard method of cooking sausage links or country sausage. It isn't necessary to prick the links when they are cooked at low temperature.

Sausage Links

Place the sausage in a cold frying pan. Add about two tablespoons of water. Cover the pan and cook slowly until the water evaporates. Remove the cover and allow the sausage to brown.

Bulk Sausage

Shape into patties. Place in skillet over low heat and cook slowly until they are a golden brown on both sides, and thoroughly cooked through.

Eggs can be scrambled in the sausage drippings after the sausage has been removed from the pan. Pour off the excess fat, and don't waste any of it.

Munchy dog food

COSTS less than HALF as much as CANNED DOG FOOD

Every lb. of Munchy (water added) makes 3 lbs. of meat laden, vitamin enriched dog food. Munchy contains over twice as much meat per pound as canned dog food. Just add water and serve. Dogs like its taste — you'll like its economy.

Brazil Produces Fuel

Brazil is getting charcoal and important by-products from a pilot plant recently constructed in Sao Paulo because of the scarcity of charcoal and strategic chemicals. The plant which has a daily capacity of half a ton of charcoal, also produces acetic acid, methyl alcohol, and tar acetone, as well as non-condensable gases, including butene, hydrogen, and methane. Engineers favored an initial plant four times larger, but shortage of equipment compelled adoption of a more conservative plan.

VOLUNTARY meat rationing (2½ lbs. per person weekly) is under way, government rationing is to come. Meat's main value in diet is muscle-building protein. This chart shows the quantity of other types of food that supply the same amount of protein as one pound of red muscle meat (pork, veal, beef, lamb). The substitutes won't make up entirely for meat, however, because some of the proteins, particularly the vegetable, are of less value; and the iron and vitamin contents vary, but are usually less.

Is it ever wise to borrow money?

We don't believe anyone should ever borrow to buy things that are not actually needed... nor should they get a loan for any unessential purpose.

There are times, however, when a loan is the only wise solution to a money problem, or when it is to a person's advantage to borrow. For instance, to pay off a debt, for medical, hospital or dental expenses, car or house repairs, or some other worthy purpose. In such cases we'd like to serve you.

"Personal" makes loans on signature, furniture or auto, and doesn't involve your friends or employer. Sensible monthly payments are arranged. $9.75 a month repays a $100 loan in 12 months and other amounts are in proportion. If you need $10 to $300 and a loan is the best solution to your problem, come in or phone us today.

Plan Crop Rotation For Larger Yields

Ithaca—New York farmers who plan the field layout for their 1943 cash crops this winter may thus help to conserve labor and fungicides that would otherwise have to be used in plant disease control, says Prof. Charles Chupp of the New York State College of Agriculture.

The most accurate crop rotation plan can be made on a map of the farm drawn to scale, and bearing a record of the crops grown on all fields during the past few years. It will pay a farmer to take one or more evenings to work out a plan of planting for 1943, as prevention of diseases will save cost of labor and fungicides used in disease control, and also help to prevent lowered crop yields, says Professor Chupp.

Many virus or fungous diseases are easily spread from certain crop or weed plants to others that grow nearby, as well as from diseases carried over from crops grown on the same soil in a previous year. A cropping plan that separates plants that spread disease from one to another can usually be worked out for a farm, as well as a plan to grow each crop on a different field than the one on which it was grown the year before.

Beans, for example, should not be grown next to peas or clover; and lilac bushes along a field of lima beans are sure to spread mildew among the beans. Cucumbers, melons and squash should be in widely separated fields, and distant from fields of soybeans.

Tomatoes will not do well in a field infested with wild horse nettles, and carrots and celery will be riddled by nematodes if they are planted in any field in which the 1942 crop was damaged by these small organisms.

A plan of disease and insect control made in winter will also include an order for all sprays, dusts and chemicals for treating seed, says Professor Chupp. To insure protection of the crop and good yields, these materials must be applied on the exact days on which they are needed. Scarcity of many chemicals means that orders must be placed early.

Societies Will Meet

There will be a joint meeting of the Missionary Society and the Ladies' Aid of Wurts Street Baptist Church at the home of Mrs. Kathryn Madden, 43 Spring street, Friday afternoon, at 2:30 p. m.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—War-peace arguments today persisted as the main motivators of an irregular stock market.

There was some further profit cashing in the recently bulging peace issues and, while selling dried up in the war infants, the majority still exhibited notable recovery timidity. Hesitancy ruled at the start and, near the fourth hour, gains and losses of fractions were fairly well divided. Dealings slowed after a moderately lively opening.

News from Africa and other battlefronts continued cheerful for Wall Street but it was beginning to be realized, after the Armistice Day holiday, that the conflict still might have a long way to go.

Bonds and commodities were a shade mixed.

Stocks supported most of the time included N. Y. Central, which benefited from the first dividend payment since 1931; Pennsylvania, Northern Pacific, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, General Motors, du Pont, Eastman Kodak and Allied Chemical. Among laggards were Bethlehem, U. S. Steel, American Telephone, International Telephone, Douglas Aircraft, Western Union, Chrysler and Kennecott.

Devoid of the "whereases" of customary Presidential proclamations, this one started with a quotation from the 92nd Psalm: "It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord."

Former Residents Get Unemployment Benefits

Albany — Former New York state workers, now looking for work and residing in other states, collected at total of $349,880 in unemployment insurance benefits from New York state in September, according to figures released today by Milton O. Loysen, Executive Director of the Division of Placement and Unemployment Insurance.

During September a total of 3,226 claims were filed against the division by out-of-state workers under the inter-state benefit program. A total of 218 of these claims are still pending determination.

Mr. Loysen also reported that during the first nine months of this year $2,069,206 has been disbursed to out-of-state idle workers. In all, 152,112 individual checks were necessary for these payments.

Lester S. Purdy, 37, of 14 Post street, pleaded guilty to operating an automobile without having an operator's license when he was arraigned before Judge Matthew V. Cahill in police court today, and was fined $10 which he paid.

Purdy was arrested by Officers Peter Camp and Archie Van Aken at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, after the truck he was driving was in collision with a bus operated by Earle Van Keuren of New Paltz, at the intersection of Ravine and Abeel streets. Purdy was driving a truck owned by Morris Meidenberg of 13 West Strand. No personal injuries were reported in the crash, but both machines were damaged.

Sight Regained in Bus

While riding in a bus, George Morley, of London, regained his eyesight, lost in 1922 as a result of injuries sustained during an air raid on the British capital in 1918. He was traveling through Sussex, his face turned toward a window, when a dim, greenish blur appeared before him. Startled, he put his hand to his eyes. It was true; he could see. Back in London, he saw for the first time the wife he married 14 years ago. He thinks the return of his sight is traceable to a car accident in 1939.

French Are Not Enemies

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Treasury Department today told French nationals residing within the United States that last week's action which declared unoccupied France to be enemy territory, did not mean that French citizens within the United States became enemy nationals. Treasury officials said that the status of the French nationals here was not changed. They stressed that the action did not block the accounts of French citizens within this country whose accounts had been freed in the past.

$410,000,000 in Christmas Club Checks This Year

Distribution Will Be Made to 8,000,000 Club Members in Prosperity Week

Four hundred and ten million dollars will be distributed to more than eight million Christmas Club members by approximately five thousand banking and savings institutions and other organizations during National Prospertiy Week starting Monday, November 30, according to an estimate given out yesterday by Herbert F. Rawll, founder and president of Christmas Club, A Corporation, sponsors of National Prosperity Week. The total distribution for 1942 is about 2% in excess of 1941. The average distribution per member amounts to $49.00—slightly more than in 1941. Pearl Harbor is responsible for the very small increase over last year. On December 7, 1941, millions of people throughout the country stopped doing many things until December 20th. This period is the peak time for enrollment and many thousands that were members in 1941 failed to join for 1942.

Based upon reports from individual Christmas Club members received in January of this year as to the use of funds last December, and applying these reports to the entire distribution for 1942, the estimated fund of $410,000,000.00 will be used by the recipients approximately as follows:

Christmas Purchases	30%	$123,000,000.00
Permanent Savings	22%	90,200,000.00
Taxes	13%	53,300,000.00
War Bonds	12%	49,200,000.00
Insurance Premiums	11%	45,100,000.00
Year End Bills	8%	32,800,000.00
Education and Charity	3%	12,300,000.00
Unclassified	1%	4,100,000.00
	100%	$410,000,000.00

Plans for distribution indicate that a larger percentage of the total fund will be voluntarily used this December in the purchase of War Savings Bonds. A total of $75,000,000 is anticipated. To encourage a better understanding of the need for every form of savings during the war, Mr. Rawll stated that Christmas Club is announcing a Victory Through Thrift Slogan Contest for the 8,000,000 members enrolling for 1943. Slogans are to be submitted that best express an incentive for people to save more in Permanent Savings for Post-War Security, save more in War Savings Bonds and to save more in Tax Savings Notes, all from current income in the banks and savings and loan associations of the country. The contest provides awards totalling $5,000.00 all in War Bonds and Stamps at purchase value.

In the distribution of Christmas Club funds this year, New York State leads the other States with about $110,000,000; the estimates for Pennsylvania are $43,000,000; for Massachusetts $38,000,000; for New Jersey $29,000,000. New York's Metropolitan district will receive about $68,000,000.

Total industrial production in the United States during the fiscal year 1943 will double that of the average for 1935-39, says the Department of Commerce.

4-H Gardeners Output Is 3,500,000 Bushels

A record output of over three and one half million bushels of garden vegetables and small fruits will be produced this year by 4-H Club members throughout the nation, in response to the government's call for super-production of these foodstuffs to meet war needs. This output is an increase of 60 per cent over last year's production by the clubsters.

Roundly 350,000 members participated in the 1942 National 4-H Victory Garden contest conducted in cooperation with the Extension Service, in which Sears, Roebuck provided awards consisting chiefly of U. S. War Savings Bonds. This also is an all-time high enrollment in the 4-H gardening project, and shows how vital 4-H production is to the war effort in this as in all lines.

County winners in this competition received gold-filled medals and four representatives of each state's blue award group were awarded a $25 War Savings Bond. One of the latter will be considered in selecting sectional and national winners. All expense trips to the 21st National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, November 29 to December 2, will be awarded to the two highest scoring participants in each of the four extension sections, who will also receive a $100 War Savings Bond apiece.

Committeemen Selected For New A.A.A. Program

Ithaca—Community committeemen of the AAA in about 700 localities of the state will be elected by farmer-members of the program on December 4, says Harold Peet of Pike, vice-chairman of the New York State Agriculture Adjustment Agency committee.

This year for the first time, elections of committeemen in New York State's 55 agricultural counties will be held on the same day as in the other eight states of the northeastern area.

Three farmers are picked as committeemen in each community, and two other farmers are picked as alternates.

In addition to handling local administration of the 1943 AAA program, the men elected on December 4 will be called on to help their U. S. D. A. County Agricultural War Boards in production and rationing programs connected with the war effort, Mr. Peet points out.

These community committeemen will aid farmers to get supplies needed for efficient farm operation next year, he adds. "Farmers know that hard as it was to meet food production goals this year, diversion of labor and materials to other war uses will make it harder yet to maintain 1943 farm production.

Production for war account for two-thirds of total industrial output in the United States during 1943, the Department of Commerce reports.

Tuberculosis Division Is First on List; Search Is for Economy

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 12 (AP)—The Republican-dominated legislature's investigation of state fiscal affairs under Democratic administration moves finally into the hearing stage today, one week after an election that ends 20 years of Democratic state control.

In view of Republican Thomas E. Dewey's election as governor, effect of the investigation projected by Republicans in search of economies thus may be to trim appropriations under which their party will have to administer state departments.

Republican Senator Arthur Wicks of Kingston, chairman of the 15-member investigating commission, said the first hearing (10 a. m., E.W.T.), involves financial problems of the tuberculosis division in the state health department.

Appearing are Dr. Robert E. Plunkett, general superintendent of tuberculosis hospitals, and the superintendents of hospitals at Raybrook, Oneonta, Mt. Morris and Ithaca. The first hearing followed months of research by the commission into health department financing.

When instituted by the 1942 legislature with an appropriation of $50,000, the investigation was viewed by some observers as a possible source of Republican campaign material.

Hearings were delayed until after election, however, with Wicks and others in the group seeking to avoid any charge of "politics."

In approving the appropriation, Democratic Governor Lehman asserted the fiscal committees from the senate and assembly had sufficient money yearly to make the study but said he had "no objection" to the investigation.

Henry Millonig Dies; Was Hotel Man for 40 Years

Henry Millonig, 66, prominent hotel man, died at the Benedictine Hospital Wednesday evening where he had been a patient for 10 days. He resided at 97 Clinton avenue and for many years was one of the best known hotel men in this section of the state, having operated hotels and boarding houses in this county for nearly 40 years.

Born in Bremen, Germany, of Austrian parents, on October 26, 1876, Mr. Millonig came to this country in 1892 and made his home in Brooklyn until 1904 when he came to Ulster county where he purchased the Lanesville Hotel which he operated for eight years, selling it to come to Kingston to take over the Hotel Eichler. For a time after his arrival in the United States Mr. Millonig was employed in a grocery store in Brooklyn, later purchasing the business, which he continued to operate for several years before coming to Ulster county.

Mr. Millonig was considered one of the best hotelmen in this section of the country and his knowledge and experience in the operation of restaurants was well known throughout this area.

In 1901 Mr. Millonig married Miss Louisa Bower of Brooklyn, and three years later came to Ulster county to operate the Lanesville Hotel which he purchased at that time. The hotel was a 25-room new hotel which had just been completed by Charles Yeager. This hotel was operated until 1912 by Mr. and Mrs. Millonig when he disposed of it and leased the Hotel Eichler on Railroad avenue in this city which he continued to operate for about two years. The Lanesville Hotel has since been burned.

After conducting the Hotel Eichler for two years Mr. and Mrs. Millonig in 1914 purchased the former McClure Cafe and restaurant on Wall street, opposite the court house. During the time Mr. Millonig was operating the hotel here, financial difficulties involved the proprietor of the Lanesville Hotel and Mr. Millonig was compelled to again take over that property which he also operated in conjunction with his business here. The Lanesville Hotel was later sold to Harry Lane.

In 1919 Mr. Millonig bought the Kipp House at Lexington, Greene county, one of the largest boarding houses in that locality. He operated the boarding house for a short time but in 1920 sold it and returned to Kingston where he purchased the City Hotel on Main street. He operated the City Hotel until 1927 when that property was sold to Messrs. Meyer and Tuck and in 1928 Mr. Millonig leased the old Cronk Hotel on Crown street, known then as the Kingston Hotel, and for five years he operated that business. This hotel was later demolished and is now he site of the Crown Street Terminal.

Again In 1933 Mr. Millonig moved to Railroad avenue where he purchased the West Shore Hotel, but sold it the following year to Charles Wierbach and leased the property on Wall street where he opened "Henry's Tavern," which he continued to operate very successfully until in 1938, because of the illness of Mrs. Millonig, he was compelled to dispose of the business which was sold to Herman Scharmer of Rosendale, who reopened it under the name of Herman's Restaurant. That was Mr. Millonig's last venture in the hotel or restaurant business. However, he did not cease to have an nterest in the hotel and restaurant business. He was one of the ounders of the Kingston Hotel and Restaurant Association and always ook an active interest in the asociation. For several years he erved as treasurer of the associaion.

Mr. Millonig was a former memer of Cordts Hose Company and as affiliated with the Exempts. He as always active in volunteer iremen circles and was a member f A. H. Wicks Hose Company, hich is located in the second ard.

Beside his wife, one son, Henry, r., four grandchildren and several ieces and nephews survive.

Funeral services will be held rom the W. N. Conner Funeral ome, 296 Fair street, Saturday fternoon at 2 o'clock. Relatives nd friends may call any time Friay or Saturday at the Funeral ome. Burial will be in Montreose cemetery.

Britain's Mills Anxious for Bout With U. S. Champs

By GLADWIN HILL
Wide World Features

London—Hearken, ye olde tyme followers of Phainting Phil Scott and Tommy Farr, to tidings of Britain's outstanding fistic offering of the present day, yclept Freddie Mills, described by partisans as "a second Mickey Walker—only stronger," and aspirant to the mantle of Joe Louis.

(That last may sound farfetched, but so have been some of Uncle Mike Jacobs' matches for Louis —viz., Johnny Paycheck.)

Freddie Mills is a dark, curly-haired good-looking youngster of the Billy Conn type who in the last two years has surged up through a Hollywood-Cinderella rise in British boxing, managing in tandem with a career as sergeant physical instructor in the R.A.F., to become at the age of only 23 the British-recognized world light-heavyweight champion, as well as virtual British heavyweight champion, having decisively walloped the title holder Len Harvey in a technically non-title fight.

The American-recognized light-heavyweight champ is Gus Lesnevich, which present an international problem—a problem which Mills would like to solve by beating Lesnevich. This apparently is impossible, for Gus is in the U. S. Navy.

Prefers 'Go' With Joe

Then Mills, who, at a current weight of 185, hops back and forth between light-heavy and heavyweight classes as facilely as Winston Churchill changes hats, would like to have what our English call a "go" with the Brown Bomber.

They have something in common, because Freddie is known as the Bournemouth Bomber, Bournemouth being a coastal town.

There is a story that Freddie, infatuated with pugilism from his short-pants days, was peering down through the skylight of a Bournemouth boxing hall when his 15-year-old visage was espied by a horizontal fighter just coming to on the canvas below, who was so impressed by Freddie's interest that he helped him get started on his fighting career.

The story is generally accepted as romantic hyperbole—the truth seems to be that Mills actually was hanging around the ringside when a friendly manager offered him guidance—but its existence is an indication of the Horatio-Algerian aura surrounding Freddie's career.

In English boxing, which although a national institution seldom attracts crowds of more than 5,000, there is not the well-defined ladder to success of golden gloves, the tank-town circuit, and eagle-eyed promoters waiting to lift likely youngsters out of the preliminaries.

The traditional testing-ground is "the booths"—the challenge-all-comers rings of carnivals and fairs—and the jump from these to the big time often comes only through some Hollywood-like break. That's what happened to Freddie.

Occupy Town of Bone

London, Nov. 12 (P) — Reuters said the Vichy radio broadcast today that the town of Bone, in eastern Algeria 60 miles from the Tunisian border, was occupied by American troops this morning.

Roses may soon run on gas in Britain.

ped a cryptic hint that operations may be developing about Dakar, French west Africa.

"I think they (Dakar's defenders) are in a rather hopeless position," the spokesman said. He refused to amplify the remark.

40 Divisions Are Rushed

Meanwhile Adolf Hitler was reported rushing 40 divisions from the Russian front toward Italy and Greece today as the victorious Anglo-American expeditionary forces in North Africa poised a growing threat of attack on the "under side" of Nazi-conquered Europe.

Premier Mussolini's own newspaper, Il Popolo D'Italia, called on Italians to hold fast, declaring that the new phase of the war placed Italy "in the front line."

Meanwhile, the French radio asserted that Hitler's grey-clad legions, now overrunning southern (formerly unoccupied) France in violation of the 1940 French-German armistice, would not occupy the French Mediterranean naval base at Toulon.

The broadcast declared that French naval authorities had decided to defend the base against all aggression.

Informed sources in Ankara, Turkey, said two score Nazi divisions (perhaps 350,000 to 500,000 troops) were being withdrawn from the wintry Soviet front and that railroads through Rumania and Hungary were heavily loaded with German troop trains speeding en route to Italy and the Balkans.

Turkey herself, according to the Paris radio, ordered all Turkish soldiers, sailors and airmen to join their units immediately.

Turkey would provide a convenient land bridge to the middle east if Hitler, in desperation, decided on a move to counteract the sweeping triumph of the British eighth army in Egypt.

Perhaps significantly, Turkey and Russia exchanged new messages of friendship.

Other Developments

Other swift-breaking developments:

Italian headquarters, reporting allied naval movements off Tunisia, said "a big enemy destroyer" was hit by Fascist torpedo-carrying planes " and was seen on the point of sinking."

This was the first intimation that allied warships, which have been busy shelling French defenses in Algeria, had moved forward for the developing battle of Tunisia.

A Tass (Soviet news agency) dispatch from Geneva said Hitler and Mussolini, meeting in southern Germany, had agreed on the establishment of a single Axis command in the Mediterranean—under a German general.

Tass also reported that mass disorders broke out at Lyon yesterday when German troops marched through southern France, with crowds shouting "long live free France!" and "down with Laval!"

Pro-Nazi Premier Pierre Laval appeared to have won in his efforts to have the Vichy government submit to Hitler's latest assault on the conquered third republic.

Old Marshal Petain's sad protests against the Axis occupation of the former "free zone" waned, and the Vichy radio said he had called for continued resistance in North Africa.

Authoritative London quarters said the British government still lacked information of any movement of the French fleet from Toulon, up to 7 a. m., Eastern War Time, today, but declared that such a movement might have occurred without the knowledge of the allies.

Lieut.-Gen. Eisenhower, commander of the Anglo-American campaign in North Africa, himself appealed to French naval crews to "join the United Nations in the fight for freedom" by sailing for Gibraltar.

On the Russian front, Soviet dispatches reported a shift of Nazi warplanes to southern Europe.

The newspaper Pravda said that the Germans were using out-dated planes and that in the past 24 hours barely 200 flight had been made over Soviet defenses, compared with a previous daily average of 1,500 to 2,000 flights.

Winter tightened its grip on the Stalingrad front, with the Volga choked by ice floes and sub-zero temperature prevailing.

Nevertheless, the Russians continued to attack the Nazi siege armies and reported they had wiped out two German companies in one sector inside the city and killed 130 Nazi with hand gernades at another point.

In the Caucasus, the situation remained static.

ington, D. C., and Commando Captains C. J. Courtney, R. T. Livingstone and Lieut. J. D. Foot.

"About three weeks before the campaign opened it became evident there was a large group of Frenchmen in North Africa anxious to cooperate with America and it became essential to send a staff of professional officers to contact and make use of these men and obtain essential military information," said Gen. Eisenhower in telling of this modern "message to Garcia" that led to speedy conclusion of the 77-hour occupation campaign.

"Clark and all men on the mission volunteered enthusiastically."

Kaiser Builds Ship In Four Days' Time

Richmond, Calif., Nov. 12 (P). —Henry J. Kaiser's shipyard here will launch the 10,500-ton Liberty freighter Robert E. Peary at 3:30 p. m., (P. W. T.) (6:30 Eastern War Time)—Exactly four days and 15½ hours after her keel was laid, yard officials announced.

That would make the Peary less than half as long a-building as the ten-day time required to construct the present record-holder, a similar ship launched by another Kaiser yard at Portland, Ore., in September.

Ickes Recommends 12 Per Cent Cut In Oil for East

Washington, Nov. 12 (P) — Petroleum Coordinator Harold L. Ickes disclosed today he had recommended a cut of nearly 12 per cent in petroleum consumption in the 17 rationed east coast states.

The recommendation was made to War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson, who has authority to direct the Office of Price Administration to make the cut.

Ickes said "I think it has been accepted."

The coordinator declined to discuss methods of effecting the cut.

Ickes, at a press conference, said his recommendation would reduce rationed consumption of all oil and petroleum products on the east coast by 139,000 barrels a day.

The reduction in gasoline consumption, he added, would save about 80,000 barrels a day, or "something like 20 to 25 per cent," and reduce consumption of light and heavy fuel oil by 59,000 barrels a day.

The reduction is necessary, Ickes said, because shipment to the east by railroad, pipeline and barge are now running almost 200,000 barrels a day below the requirement of approximately 1,400,000 barrels a day under present rationing, and need of oil for military purposes is increasing greatly.

U. S. Planes Down 17 Jap Bombers in Solomons Attack

A flanking movement there by Australian troops has cut off the Japanese retreat and "he is endeavoring to cut his way through to the rear," the allied high command communique reported.

But American troops are on hand to prevent that maneuver, flown by aerial transport to the vicinity of Buna, 55 miles northeast of the Oivi battleground in the Owen Stanley mountain area.

Simultaneously on New Guinea another force of allied jungle fighters wiped out enemy troops surrounded south of Gorari. No details were given, nor was there any indication of the number of enemy casualties.

The aerial warfare again reached beyond the South Pacific to the far north Aleutians and resulted in the shooting down or destruction of 16 enemy planes, and possible damage to warships, cargo vessels and shore installations.

At Kiska, there has been virtually no action for several weeks, army bombers attacked and damaged two Japanese cargo vessels. One of the planes was damaged by anti-aircraft fire but returned to its base.

Army planes also roared down on Holtz Bay on Attau Island near the end of the Aleutians archipeligo and destroyed seven float-equipped Japanese fighting planes. They encountered no opposition.

Twice allied reconnaissance units in the South Pacific found and attacked destroyers. But in neither case was it possible to observe results. One flight in the New Guinea area bombed a destroyer off Lae and another unit came upon five destroyers eastward of the New Georgia Islands.

A third aerial attack on surface craft took bombers from the high command into action against shipping off the southern end of Bougainville Island in the northern Solomons. Those craft apparently were aiding in the general Solomons action, possibly carrying supplies. Shore installations there also were bombed.

In the Solomons, pilots of two Grumman "Wildcats" took their navy fighting planes through a formation of 15 Japanese "Zeros" 27,000 feet over Guadalcanal. Their daring attack brought down one of the enemy planes.

Also on Guadalcanal, army planes joined in the battle with Japanese invaders, and a recheck by the navy of an attack on an enemy cruiser-destroyer formation last Saturday showed that eight "Zeros" and eight biplanes all equipped with floats had been destroyed. Originally only a total of 12 planes were reported shot down in that engagement.

They were: Joseph Hilton Smyth, Old Lyme, Conn.; Walker Grey Matheson of Washington, and Irvine Harvey Williams, a British subject living in Noroton, Conn.

State Revenue Off $6,400,000 in October

A drop of $6,400,000 in New York state tax collections in October, compared with the same month last year, it was announced Wednesday by Carrol E. Mealey, president of the State Tax Commission.

A decline of $1,747,000 in motor fuel tax collections and $186,000 in motor vehicle fees accounted for part of the decrease in receipts. Beverage tax receipts were off $1,230,757, but October receipts from this source last year were swollen by heavy buying in anticipation of a federal tax boost.

Syracuse Backers Depend Upon Tommy Maines in Colgate Game Saturday

Former K. H. S. Star Is Ready for Big Tilt of Career; Hopes Pinned on Tom

Syracuse, N. Y. Nov. 12—If the football fan could answer the question, "What's Tommy Maines going to do, Saturday?", then maybe he'd know the result of the Syracuse-Colgate game this Saturday, November 14 to be played before a capacity crowd in Archbold Stadium, Syracuse.

Playing excellent ball this fall from his tailback spot, Tommy has had hard luck during his varsity career, expecially when it comes to the annual Red Raiders-Orange duel.

Big Tom has only played two minutes against Colgate in two years. His sophomore year, an injury in the previous game, prevented him from even seeing action against the Maroon, while last fall, he came off the bench nursing a slight injury, and then knocked himself and Indian Bill Geyer out of the game, as he made a vicious tackle on the speedy Raider to prevent a touchdown. Tommy was only in the game for two minutes.

Helped in Upset Win

The only other time Tommy ever played on the grid against the Maroon, it was a blazing Orange sunset, with the Syracuse speed back, registering three touchdowns for the Orange to defeat the Colgate cubs almost single-handedly.

Just what fortune, Big Tom will have this Saturday is any grid fan's guess. He's big and fast and is in good condition ready to go. Tommy has been the leading back for the Orange since his joining the Hill forces three years ago. He's the leading passer and runner on the team, and is the most competent defensive safety man the Orange has had in years. He's also a tough man to bring down when he starts returning those enemy kicks.

After watching the Orange workout hard yesterday, sideliners realized immediately the importance of Maines and the way Coach Ossie Solem has built his hopes about Tommy for this even contest Saturday.

Perhaps that old political slogan could be changed to read, "As Maines goes, so goes Syracuse." And All loyal Orange fans are hoping that Tommy goes.

Emerick's Ladies' Jottings

Another week's round for the Emerick's Ladies' Bowling League was completed Tuesday night. Between the weather and the war, the ladies are up and down. On the first shift the Mayorettes took two from Elstons as Madaline Schline came into her own with a 191 single and 466 triple. She also made the 5-6-9 split. . . . For Elstons Marge Williams was in there with a 513 series and a 180 single. She converted the 8-10 split. Cora Emerick connected on the 5-10. . . . For the league leaders, Williams Lake overpowered the Alpines two to one as Sally Kuehn shot a 187 single and 457 series. Nan Brodhead cleared the 5-9-10 split. For the Alpines Em Fleming had a 170 single and 487 triple besides coming through on the tough 3-9-10 split. . . . Becks took two from Schwenks as Carolyn Mohr and Adelaide Ashley paced them with 183 and 483. For Schwenks Helen Hayes looked like her self after a summer lay-off. Lillian Buswell blasted a 167 and 425. . . . Well, it can be told that Ethel Wetzel is the Ertel's good luck charm. The Ertels took two from Phelan & Cahill as M. Callahan rolled a 153 and 407. Jane Holcomb was in there, but luck was not so Jane had to be content with some tough luck scores. Whereever did that kick-back ball come from Jane? . . . G. Ertel blames the weather and we don't blame her for the series of 7-10 splits she ran into. . . . E. Osterling throws a nice ball and comes in with some neat scores and more of the latter are sure to come her way as the season rolls on. . . . For Phelan & Cahill Phillys Gehringer rolled 419 and Bruck a 159. . . . The Minasians took two from Standards as V. Carpenilli rolled 176 and 413. B. Hyatt made the 1-2-7-9. Rose Chamberland came through with a 164 single and 430 series. Doris Wilson came through with flying colors on the 1-2-7-6 split. M. Reinas, egged on by some other than the sponsor himself, took three games from Kingston Coal as Bea Coddington poured out a 185 single. Helen Smart made the 5-7-8 split while Ethel Wetzel converted the 3-10 and 2-5-9-10 splits. Nice shooting, Ethel. . . . Gert Breitfeller was high for the losers with a 167 single and 378 series. . . . Scores of Tuesday's matches did not reach the sports desk until after 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning which made it too late for Wednesday night's publication. A plea to the responsible party is asked so that these sheets will be at The Freeman sports department no later than 9 o'clock the morning following the matches. This will make it easier all around.

Cys Hit Two Marks

With Alyce Riseley blasting away in her usual sensational style, Cys continued to roll along in a blaze last night in the Colonial Women's League at the Central Recreation alleys. Alyce poured out a sizzling 556 series and a 209 single as Cys registered a new high single of 856 and also established a new team triple of 2409.

Riseley's 209 and 556 sparked Cys but the club had some other valuable help from Ethel Wetzel who hammered out a 520 on a string of 179, 187 and 154. Bea Coddington chimed in with a 464, Tillie Clearwater posted 443 and Helen Smart climaxed the high-powered outfit with a 426. Incidentally, Cys won three straight games from the Zeroettes.

The regular Colonial Women's Memos, a weekly feature of the doings in the league, will be published as usual this week.

"Y" International Scores

Bill Bush's blazing 546 triple on scores of 199, 172 and 175 highlighted the Y. M. C. A. International League games last night. Bill's efficient bowling helped the E. & T. squad to capture three straight from The Freeman No. 2 team. Harry Minard had high single of 204 in the match. Tommy Tomshaw's 144 and 388 topped the losers.

Sears took three from the Terrors as Gallop led the way with a 200 single and 511 triple. His other marks were 137 and 174. Robinson's 501 was high for the losing keglers.

Matthews finished the night's activities as that squad won three straight from Elstons. F. Short blasted a 191 single game and wound up with a 470 series. Walt Elston's 413 was high for the losing team.

Catholic League Scores

In the other shift of the Catholic Bowling League at the Central alleys last night F. Hershenroder's 220 single and 595 triple took undivided honors. Hershenroder's string of 209, 220 and 166 sparked St. Anns who won three games anyway as the Presentations of Port Ewen forfeited the match.

Hogie Rask of the St. Peters of Rosendale team came in with second high series as he poured out a 527. His scores were 179, 174 and 174, pretty consistent bowling in any man's league. C. Port had a high single of 188 in the match for the Immaculate Conception outfit.

St. Peters of Kingston won two from the Knights of Columbus. Ed Norton's 506 triple and Johnny Raible's 200 paced the winners. Ed Sohn's 492 was high for the Knights.

Whirlaway Rates as Top 'Horse of Year'; Wipes Out Money-Winning Mark

By SID FEDER

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—It is somewhat superfluous, like the lace "panties" on a lamb chop, to hand Whirlaway any more posies than he already has, but with the returns just about complete, it begins to look like Mr. Big Tail is the "horse of the year" again for 1942.

This will no doubt raise more than a mild beef among the members of the Alsab cheering and chowder society, a wild-eyed collection of rooters who firmly believe any horse other than their hero is a classy candidate for a glue factory.

Their argument is that the Sab hung it on Whirly two out of the three times they met, that the Chicago Express piled up a bigger bankroll this year and that, in winding up his season yesterday by running on a wrenched ankle and still knocking off a set of handicap gallopers in the Victory Handicap at Belmont, Alsab was quite a bundle of hayburner.

All for Whirly

That's their story, but from there on the record rides with Warren Wright's whizz-bang. He has gone through a campaign even stiffer than Alsab's and has carried weight burdens bearing striking resemblance to loaded brewery trucks. Yet, through as tough a campaign as any gee-gee has galloped in years, he remained as sound as the mint, while the Sab had to knock off a couple of months with sore legs.

On top of that, Whirly picked this year to wipe out Sea Biscuit's money-winning record. His $8,625 pay-check for the Governor Bowie Handicap at Pimlico yesterday skyrocketed his three-season bank account to $548,461.

Alsab picked up $227,715 for 1942, compared with Whirlaway's $198,800. However, he had the benefit of 10 purses from $25,000 to $75,000 to do it. Mr. Long Tail had a crack at only one of more than $25,000. The Sab blew a lot of his fanciest financial opportunities, like the Derby and the Belmont, while the war came along to rob Whirly of his one shot at the heavy sugar—the Santa Anita $100,000.

Taking the cold numbers, Alsab went to the races 22 times in 277 days—an average of about once every 12½ days—won eight starts and was out of the money in four. Whirly, beginning his campaign later, had 20 trips to the post in 216 days—about once every 10 4/5 afternoons—won ten, was second in eight and was never out of the money.

Has Spotted Rivals

In 10 of his last 15 jobs, Whirlaway had 130 or more on his back and ran anywhere from seven furlongs to 2¼ miles with it, while spotting his rivals up to 30 pounds apiece. He gave Alsab seven pounds the day he whipped the Chicago champ. This was the "scaleweight" difference between a three and four year old, but you can't overlook the fact that the Sab had the edge, because it came along in October when a three year old has just about grown up.

Twice Whirlaway set track records, once at Suffolk Downs the day he broke the Biscuit's money-winning mark by taking the mile and an eighth Massachusetts Handicap in 1.48 1/5. Twice it took track records to beat him, and a third time Bolingbroke had to run to a new North American mark for a mile and a half to turn the trick. Bolingbroke, a five-year-old, carried 115 and Whirly 132 that afternoon. The Sab had more than 126 pounds on his back only once.

Former Boxing Champion Dies After Operation

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—"Philadelphia Jack O'Brien," 64, former world's light heavyweight boxing champion, died today in Polyclinic Hospital after an operation. He was a resident of Ventnor, N. J.

O'Brien, whose real name was Joseph F. Hagan, won the light heavyweight championship by knocking out Bob Fitzsimmons in the 13th round of a match in San Francisco on December 20, 1905. O'Brien last fought in 1912.

In recent years O'Brien operated a training gymnasium in New York. He is survived by his widow, five sisters and a young brother, also a fighter and known as "Young Philadelphia Jack O'Brien."

How Uncle Sam Got His Name

During the War of 1812, Troy, N. Y., was an important clearing center for food for the army. Here a well-known meat packer had his business. Most of the beef that filled the stomachs of the lusty American soldiers was provided by this packer, arriving in oak casks labeled, naturally enough, "U. S." for United States. It happened that the packer, Samuel Wilson, was affectionately known as Uncle Sam, partly to distinguish him from a younger Samuel Wilson who lived in the city. The soldiers soon began calling their food "Uncle Sam's beef," and as the initials of Wilson's nickname were the same as those of his country it was not long before Uncle Sam was used as a title for the government by the American people.

About 45 out of every 100 persons in the United States in 1940 resided in towns of less than 2,500 population.

Official Says Sport Is Great for Relaxation

Chicago, Nov. 12 (AP)—John B. Kelly, federal coordinator of physical fitness, says that "golf is great for physical relaxation and we won't think anyone is unpatriotic for going out to brush away the mental cobwebs."

Kelly, speaking before the Professional Golfers Association, recommended the continuation of all recreational sports not interfering with the war effort. The P. G. A. closed its two-day meeting by re-electing Ed Dudley president and deferring until early next year a decision on whether to hold its annual P. G. A. tournament.

How to cut the cost of Heating Your Home

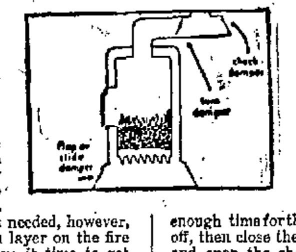
AMERICA'S HOME HEATING EXPERT

Quick Heating Required in the Morning

If there is any time when you want the house to warm up quickly, it is on cold mornings. Here are some suggestions that will help you to bring heat through your house quickly.

First of all, shake the grates gently and only until you see the first red glow in the ashpit. Next, open the ashpit damper and close the check damper until the fire is burning briskly. If the fire was banked the night before you probably won't need to add any coal. If fresh coal is needed, however, only put a thin layer on the fire at first and give it time to get well started. Then, when the house is comfortably warm, put on a full charge of coal and set the dampers at their normal position.



If by chance the fire should die down and is nearly out, don't add a full charge of coal right away. That will only smother the fire and put it out completely. In this case, open the ashpit damper, close the check damper and add a small amount of coal at a time. Then when the fire gets going again, shake the grates gently and add a full charge of coal. Allow enough time for the fumes to burn off, then close the ashpit damper and open the check damper. In this way you will save a lot of coal—and many trips to the cellar.

Freeman Photos

The Freeman continues the observance of Educational Week, with views of activities at the Kingston High and Vocational School. The vocational school has aligned its program to fit in with local industry, and the excellent shops have given many of the youth of the community an opportunity to get the training necessary for vital war industries.

for lack of labor," the report said, adding:

"There have been scores and hundreds of public utterances from Washington telling about the manpower problem, criticizing the public for failure to cooperate in a non-existent program to solve it, and threatening a draft of labor or a draft of women or this or that form of compulsion.

"In the absence of any over-all policy and program for mobilization of manpower, the sub-committee on manpower has decided that it would be a mistake for Congress to even consider passage of any drastic compulsory legislation."

The committee said it was satisfied that when a definite policy that "makes sense" was announced, "voluntary cooperation will be forthcoming in full measure from the overwhelming majority of the American people."

Boys' Choir of First Reformed to Broadcast

The Boy's choir of the First Reformed Church, consisting of 25 boys ranging in age from eight to 14 years, has been invited to present a half hour's program over radio station WKNY tomorrow (Saturday) morning at 11:30. They will be assisted by a quartet of girls from the Intermediate girls' choir of the same church, both groups being under the direction of the Rev. Herbert C. Greenland, associate pastor.

Their program will be as follows: "Seek Ye the Lord," Roberts, Boys' choir and Girls' quartet; solo, "Thanks", O'Hara, master Tom Larsen; "The Lord Is My Shepherd," Smart, Girls' quartet; solo, "Mighty Lak a Rose," Nevins, master Ronald Buchanan; "The Holy City," Adams, Tom Larsen and boys' choir.

Opportunity Knocked

Fort George G. Meade, Md., Nov. 12 (AP)—Privates Jerome Fischer and Hold Pomerantz listened today to a lot of that business about "opportunity knocks but once" and this is why: The pair, awaiting appointment as aviation cadets, were walking along in Washington and were offered a lift. They refused politely, looked again and then froze into salutes. In the car was Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff.

and told by the commander of one of the attacking forces.

With maps and photographs he explained the general headquarters order. He sketched the whole picture in general terms and then in great detail pictured the task of his "battle team."

He pointed to the main objective of his force on the map and said "our objective is to take that point and, damn it, nothing is going to stop us. Your orders are to keep going regardless of what happens."

In a similar assembly, Lieut. Col. A. H. Rosenfeld, former Camden, N. J., attorney, explained the order.

Colonel Gives Order

In a formal order to a combat team, the colonel declared the operation must continue "no matter how tough the going is, how tired we get or what the opposition is. I am proud of all of you and I know that we are going to be successful in this supreme adventure. Let us all bow humbly before the great God of battles and pray that we may live up to our heritage of being an army which has never started a war, but which has never lost one."

"So, with 'For God and Country' on our lips and in our hearts, we enter the battle for preservation of our homes, our families, our institutions and for the preservation of civilization itself," the colonel concluded.

Correspondents joined the convoy where it was reorganized for the journey into battle. They were not even told what their port of embarkation would be. They knew only that they were going on an offensive operation with the United States forces. The rest was a mystery.

Only on arrival at the port town did I learn I was assigned to a transport carrying a battalion which was destined to be a spearhead of the landing on the Algerian coast.

As a result of whispered grapevine warnings in London I equipped myself with the heaviest wool clothing. It did not take me long aboard ship, however, before I realized our mission was in the south, not the north. I had to borrow cotton underwear from a considerate major because I had brought only the heaviest the London quartermaster could provide.

I lived on the ship as part of an army unit, attending conferences to detail plans of action, sharing the hopes and apprehensions of the junior officers and men and watching as all—commander to private—keyed themselves for the dangerous landing and ticklish job.

I had been assigned a place in the fourth wave of boats which would put me on the Algerian beach at approximately 3:30 a. m.—in time to see the action.

As I was sitting on my steel helmet with my typewriter on a chair in a cabin disordered by hasty packing of clothes and weapons writing this story, the voice of the colonel came over the loud speaker in a final talk to his command.

"In just a few hours we are going over the side of the ship and it is a record run," he said.

He warned the men to respect native customs, be friendly to people and "not to shoot unless the situation demands it." Then he ended:

"Go out and do your job like soldiers and God bless you."
